Fabulous DeMille Dies at 77

Highlights, Career, 2C

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. —(AP)— Cecil Blount DeMille, a founder of the Hollywood film industry and the most successful of all movie makers, died of a heart attack Wednesday at 77.

It was the third serious heart attack for the producer-director, whose name became a symbol of flamboyant films. He suffered the first in Egypt in November 1954, during location scenes for his last great Biblical epic, "The Ten Commandments." He refused doctors' advice to stop the film, saying, "I'll continue working until God wants me to quit."

Last June he suffered another attack. But in December he undertook a strenuous tour to exploit the last film he supervised, "The Buccaneer." The end came at 5:30 a.m. at his Hollywood home with his daughter Cecilia and her husband, Joseph Harper, at his bedside.

DeMille's wife for 57 years, also in ill health, was not immediately told of his death. But friends said she had sensed something was wrong.

The filmland titan died at the peak of a 45-year history in films. His second making of "The Ten Commandments" was just overtaking "Gone With the Wind" as the biggest money-maker of all time.

His other movies—"Greatest Show on Earth," "Samson and Delilah," "The Unconquered," etc.—were huge successes.

He was proud that his version of the Christ story, "The King of Kings," has been showing somewhere in the world every day since it was released in 1927.

He never won an Oscar for direction. The academy, perhaps in recognition of his great record, finally named "The Greatest Show on Earth" the best picture of 1952.

DeMille's death leaves Samuel Goldwyn the sole survivor of the famous triumvirate who started Hollywood in the big-time back in 1912.

DeMille was born Aug. 12, 1881, at Ashfield, Mass., of a Dutch family that came to America in 1658. His father was a schoolteacher turned playwright who introduced his sons to the theater world.

Cecil started as an actor and in 1902 married a fellow member of the E. H. Sothern troupe, Constance Adams. They had four children: Mrs. Harper, Mrs. Anthony Quinn, John and Richard DeMille. There are 13 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

The family announced that the funeral will be held Friday at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church in Hollywood. Private interment will follow in a $250,000 mausoleum DeMille built in Hollywood cemetery in 1953.

Ike Gets Housing 'Dare'

Veto Will Fail, Lawmaker Says

By FREDERIC SHERMAN
Herald Real Estate Editor

CHICAGO—President Eisenhower is going to get the chance to veto the biggest housing bill in the history of this country.

That was the challenge thrown at the White House Wednesday by Rep. Albert Rains of Alabama in a fiery speech to the National Association of Home Builders. He predicted Congress will override Ike's expected veto of a bill providing almost two billion dollars in special aid for housing and urban renewal.

Rains had been scheduled to talk about the problems of financing community facilities in mushrooming suburban areas. But he whipped the builders into rounds of applause with an attack on Republican Party leaders who are pushing for Ike's balanced budget.

"I read in the papers that I'm one of the big Democratic spenders in Washington because I want a decent house for every American family under the private enterprise system," Rains said.

Rains accused the White House of trying to balance the budget at the expense of programs that have become a part of the nation's growth.

"Mr. Eisenhower wants to hand back to the cities the responsibility for urban renewal, flood control and a dozen other important programs. But you don't hear the White House talking about turning back some of the federal tax sources to the cities," Rains said.

Rains told the builders he doesn't believe in government housing and this was worth loud applause. But the Alabama congressman followed with the gambit of his old log cabin school that didn't have electricity. You guessed it. It had a pine knot fire just like the one Abraham Lincoln studied by.

"It took TVA and REA to bring in electricity under the same kind of government help that I am asking for housing," he said. "The White House keeps saying we can't afford it. But those people in high places don't seem to understand the difference between spending and housing programs that don't cost the government a cent."

A bill Rains introduced last week provides 500 million dollars in special assistance to support mortgage prices. It includes the same amount for college housing loans, 1½ billion over three years for outright grants to the cities for slum clearance and urban renewal and 200 million in direct loans for housing for the elderly.

"I have great personal admiration for the President, but it is obvious he is beginning to believe his campaign speeches. If he stops the housing industry this year he will bring a terrible depression down on this country," Rains concluded in a storm of applause.

Tito Arrives In Ceylon

COLOMBO —(AP)— President Tito of Yugoslavia arrived in Ceylon Wednesday on the last stop of his tour of so-called neutral Asian countries.

Tito was to meet Premier Solomon Bandaranaike later for talks on the international situation. They are expected to reaffirm their abstention from alignment with both the Communist and Western power blocs.

Shallow, But Too Deep for Them

Gusher Was a Real Gasser!

TULSA, Okla.,— (UPI) — The Sooner State Drilling and Producing Co. of Coleman, Tex., recently brought in the world's shallowest oil well, a healthy 4,000-barrel-an-hour gusher in southern Oklahoma—at a depth of 2½ feet.

Unfortunately, the well nine miles east of Bretch, Okla., had to be abandoned soon after it came in.

The well sprayed over the top of the rig and continued to flow at the rate of more than 4,800 barrels an hour, until it was choked off 40 minutes later.

There was no fire, no damage to drilling rig and no crew injuries. About 2,700 barrels of oil were recovered, most of which flowed into an adjacent slush pit.

All was going like clockwork when suddenly the happy smiles on the faces of the drillers turned to frowns, then astonishment, and finally horror.

What caused the consternation was the unhappy discovery that the oil was coming from a 16-inch pipeline, owned by the Service Pipe Line Co., of Tulsa.

The line was repaired and the rig moved for another try.

Atlas Death Witnessed In Pacific

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. —(AP)— The flaming death-plunge of America's biggest satellite apparently was witnessed from two places in the Pacific, the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory said Wednesday.

The observatory said it had received what appeared to be "very reliable" reports from the naval station on Guam and from the Navy cruiser Rochester which was in the Guam area.

Smithsonian officials said they received a radio message from Guam that a "fiery red comet" had been observed streaking through the sky at 9:10 a.m.

The skipper of the USS Rochester radioed that a "possible Atlas sighting" had been made at about 9:08 a.m.

Both these times would be near midnight Wednesday night, Guam time.

Cubans Cheer Castro Pledge That Executions Won't Stop

By Herald Wire Services

HAVANA, Cuba — Fidel Castro told a wildly-cheering crowd of Cubans Wednesday that the new regime will revise or wipe out burdensome foreign concessions granted by the fallen Batista dictatorship.

In a fiery speech, the rebel chief made it clear he will continue with the execution of Batista "assassins and torturers."

Estimates of the crowd ranged from 500,000 to one million. The massive turnout was all the more impressive in view of the fact that the total population of all of Cuba is just under six million.

As Castro spoke to the record crowd gathered before Havana's Presidential Palace, reports from interior cities said at least 22 more Batista followers had been cut down by military firing squads, bringing to an estimated 250 the total of those reported executed since the overthrow of Fulgencio Batista on New Year's Day.

The bearded rebel leader said his victorious revolutionary movement had been made the target of the "most infamous, the most criminal campaign ever launched against a people."

He blamed the campaign on foreign business interests because "they know that we are going to ask for the cancellation of all the onerous concessions made to foreign interests" by the Batista government.

(The immediate reaction in the American business colony on Castro's threat to restrict foreign concessions was that contracts probably would be studied and revised to comply with regulations of the revolutionary regime.

(The billion dollars the U.S. interests have invested in Cuban enterprises are spread heavily in public utilities, including American and Foreign Power Co. and the American-owned Cuban Telephone Co., an AT&T affiliate.

(Gambling casinos, whose future is undecided, are a big factor of American investment. Other investments include hotels, Moa Bay Mining Co., a nickel production plant worth 43 million dollars, Esso, Texaco, Shell, Republic Steel plants[illegible] nitrogen company and much money invested in the sugar industry.)

Castro's first appearance on the scene was from a helicopter which flew over the crowd and the palace to land on Zayas Park, on the other side of the palace from the crowd. Those who recognized him from the ground broke into wild cheering.

Cubans of all ranks and ages had poured through downtown Havana streets and into the "People's Square" facing the palace to acclaim Castro and endorse his wholesale execution of "war criminals" of the toppled Batista dictatorship.

Among those who heard Castro were two U.S. congressmen and 46 American newsmen, as well as journalists from other countries, who were invited here to witness Wednesday's demonstration and the next series of "war crimes" trials. The two congressmen were Rep. Charles O. Porter (D., Ore.) and Rep. Adam Clayton Powell (D., N.Y.).

The invitations were extended after snowballing criticism, particularly in the U.S., that the swift rebel trials and executions were a "bloodbath" with no legal basis.

Castro was greeted by a

Long Wait in Hot Sun

He Packed 'em In-- And Scores Fainted

By JAMES BUCHANAN

And he wasn't giving away a thing.

In fact, he kept half a million people waiting in the hot sun for three hours just to tell him he'd been right all along.

They told him, too, in no uncertain terms that they wanted the new Cuban government to go on trying and killing war criminals.

They came from the length and breadth of the island to fill the four-block-long plaza in front of the Presidential Palace.

And they overflowed into every side street and the park behind the palace, and filled every rooftop and balcony within a two-block area of the speaker's platform.

"I believe there were 500,000 people answering Castro's call for a show of faith in the new regime.

Women fainted by the score and were fanned back into consciousness standing up — unable to fall.

Dip to 40s Forecast Tonight

You can still frolic in spring-like weather today, but the weatherman says it's going to turn chilly again tonight with a drop in temperatures to about 40 degrees.

A cold front rolling over Florida from the northwest is due to bring a nippy blast of air to Miami by late afternoon, the Weather Bureau said Wednesday.

Temperatures in the low 40s are forecast for Greater Miami suburbs late tonight and early Friday. Areas near the water should stay in the low 50s.

In extreme north Florida, readings in the low 30s were predicted for late today.

Forecasters said it was too early to say how long the chill will stay.

Mikoyan Lands Safe

COPENHAGEN —(AP)— Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan arrived here by plane early today after his visit to the U.S. and an unscheduled stopover in Newfoundland.

The Scandinavian airliner Mikoyan originally boarded for his flight from the U.S. made an emergency landing Tuesday night at Argentia, Nfld., because of fire and engine trouble. The passengers and crew spent 17½ hours at the U.S. Naval base in Argentia.

A second SAS plane sent to the rescue from Copenhagen, picked them up Wednesday to complete the flight here.

Immediately after his arrival here, Mikoyan was driven to the Soviet embassy. He was scheduled to leave later for Moscow aboard a Soviet TU104 jetliner.

Forecast: Rain, Sleet And Snow

Ice Knocks Out Power Lines

CHICAGO — (UPI) — Winter's worst storm chased nearly 4,000 persons from flood-threatened homes and buried the mid-continent under blizzard snows Wednesday.

The vast storm, ranging from the Rockies to the Appalachians, also sent tornadoes and flood waters racing through the Southland.

The storm claimed a rising price in property damage and human lives. A count shows at least 31 deaths blamed on weather-caused traffic accidents, exhaustion, drowning and tornadoes. They included nine in Indiana, eight in Illinois, four in both Iowa and Kentucky, two in New Mexico, and one each in Kansas, Michigan, Ohio and Oklahoma.

Weathermen said there was no real letup in sight. Instead of dying, the storm had reached the Atlantic seaboard and promised gale winds for the Northeast. Iced highways made driving treacherous through practically all of the Midwest, while cold wave warnings were up from the Ohio Valley to the Middle Gulf States and the Virginias.

Tornadoes and devastating winds up to 90 miles an hour roared through parts of Alabama, Tennessee, Mississippi, Georgia, Louisiana and Kentucky. Three persons died in Kentucky twisters, a hole "as big as a house" was blown through the Gretna, La., courthouse.

The six state flood rampage came when rains of more than four inches, breaking out on the storm's advancing front, pounded down on frozen ground which could not absorb the water. The rainwater poured into creeks and rivers and came out again in the form of devastating floods.

High waters forced 3,000 of the 16,000 residents of Mount Vernon, Ohio, from their homes, flooded the state Capitol of Columbus, created a state of emergency at Sharon, Pa., and closed highways in southern Indiana. Buffalo, N.Y., motorists abandoned their cars in the flooded streets.

From New Mexico to Indiana, Westerners and Midwesterners struggled to dig out of foot-deep snows. Schools, factories and roads were closed through nine states and traffic in the big cities of Kansas City, St. Louis, Dallas and Chicago became paralyzed.

Ice knocked out the power in scores of Midwest towns. At Decatur, Ill., the Red Cross set up shelter for an expected 2,500 persons driven from their

'Alfalfa' Shot In Fight

SAN FERNANDO, Calif. —(AP)— Former child movie actor Carl (Alfalfa) Switzer, 33, was shot to death Wednesday night in a fight, police said.

As a freckle-faced boy, Switzer appeared in many "Our Gang" comedies and other pictures between 1936 and 1942.

Police Sgt. H. C. Clark said he was told that Switzer was shot when he went to a home in the San Fernando Valley to collect money.

Clark said a fight developed and Switzer was shot. Switzer died while being taken to a hospital.

'Recalled for Consultations'

Didn't 'Flee' Cuba, Says Envoy Rubirosa

Special To The Herald

CIUDAD TRUJILLO — Porfirio Rubirosa, the Dominican Don Juan, diplomat and sometime sports car racer, arrived here Wednesday afternoon from Cuba via Miami for diplomatic consultations.

He spoke of politics, Havana, and racing — but of women — no.

Accompanying Rubirosa was his beauteous young, French actress wife. And the suave diplomat, whose amours brought him more of an international reputation than his diplomatic skill, deftly spoke of politics, yet managed to court his lovely wife.

The great Latin lover, who has been representing his country in Cuba, denied that he was on thin standing with the Castro government and fled Cuba because Batista fell.

"I enjoy my assignment there and see no reason why I would not return to Havana."

Mrs. Rubirosa, his fifth wife, kept holding hands with her husband and exchanging romantic glances with him while he discussed politics.

She also had with her a woven basket which contained a trio of Chihuahuas which she petted occasionally. And when she wasn't holding onto Porfirio, she was clinging to a nine-inch Raggedy Ann cloth doll.

Asked if he planned to do any more sports car racing, Rubirosa looked at his wife and said:

"No. I will do no more. I am too busy, and besides . . ." The words trailed off but he glanced at his wife.

An excellent reason to surrender racing.

PAA Talks Recess; No Strike Set

Contract negotiations between Pan American World Airways and the Transport Workers Union were recessed in New York Wednesday, but a union official said no date has been set for a strike of some 8,000 PAA employes.

"We will resume the negotiations on Friday," William Grogan, international vice president of the TWU, told The Herald by telephone.

He said the contract talks have not been terminated and that "there is no real significance" to postponement of negotiations over a new contract.

"We're just coasting for a day or so," Grogan said. "There are a number of issues on which we have not reached agreement."

Eastern Air Lines, meanwhile, announced formal signing of a contract with the Air Lines Stewards and Stewardesses Association. An Eastern spokesman said the new contract, effective through Jan. 31, 1960, provides more pay and improved working conditions for Eastern's 1,400 flight attendants.

Biggest issue in the talks between Pan American, the TWU and a federal negotiator is the union demand for a cut in weekly working hours from 40 to 37½.

homes because of power and water failures.

The Southland had floods as well as tornadoes. They forced the evacuation of 20 to 25 families at Lake City, Tenn., and a shift of prisoners at the Anderson County jail. The Tennessee mining towns of Briceville and Beech Grove were isolated behind flooded highways.

The worst twister blast swept western and central Kentucky. Near Caneyville, a black funnel killed two housewives and injured their husbands.

A church and several barns went down before a twister which hit Yokena, Miss., near Vicksburg. Wind damage was estimated at $100,000 at Adamsville, Tenn.; a twister swept away a 300-foot highway patrol tower at Lawrenceburg, Tenn., and more tornadoes wrecked buildings near Eva and Cullman, Ala.

National Guard troops moved into Mount Vernon to aid in this mass evacuation caused by a 3.69-inch downpour. The flood's first victim was a 17-year old boy who drowned trying to leap from the front porch of his flooded home to a truck pulling away.

Boats and ambulances were used to remove the sick from a 10-block area at Lima, Ohio, which was under water.

The Coast Guard, meanwhile, evacuated 25 persons stranded on the west channel of Rocky River near Cleveland, and authorities sent a distress call to a National Guard armory for amphibious tanks to rescue families in the Cleveland suburb of Eastlake. Ice chunks on the flooding Rocky River were two feet thick and as big as a room.

At Columbus, the worst flood in 23 years on the Scioto and Olentangy Rivers drove hundreds from their homes. Gov. Michael V. DiSalle alerted the National Guard and Highway Department to be ready for new emergencies.

In northwest Pennsylvania, Sharon Mayor Michael J. Dunn declared a state of emergency after the Shenango River poured into downtown stores. The Civil Defense and extra police were called out.

In southern Indiana, rains measuring up to 5.13 inches deep sent flood waters swirling over highways. School buses couldn't get through the floods in Jackson, Washington, Scott and Wayne counties, and a Decatur county teacher, Mrs. Anna Walke, 43, was rescued by boat after spending more than two hours in a car which had been swept into Salt Creek flood waters.

Chicago endured freezing rain and more snow in the wake of an overnight storm which dumped almost a foot of snow. More than 200 schools closed down in the Chicago area.

In Missouri, drifts were seven feet deep at Chillicothe, all public and parochial schools closed in storm-swept Kansas City along with some factories, and power went out for 40,000 persons in a St. Louis suburb.

Hundreds of snowbound schools were closed across Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Iowa, Michigan, Kansas, Colorado and Oklahoma.

600-Ft. TV Tower Falls, Kills Woman

Fred Gregg, owner of Radio Station WLAP in Lexington, said the huge steel tower almost cut the building in half.

"The big tower whipped around in the wind and then fell directly across the center of the station," Gregg said.

The dead woman was identified as Mrs. Susan Grazley, who had been working at WLEX-TV for about three or four months.

Mrs. Nita Wash, bookkeeper at the station, and an unidentified man who was standing in front of the building were injured and taken to the hospital.

the crowd, then taken by stretcher to first aid tents.

When the surge hit the edge of the crowd, people went down like ten-pins.

They arrived loaded with banners and placards saying "Death to the Traitors," and "Kill Now — Not Later."

There were many in English, some proclaiming "Cuban Mothers Demand Death to Avenge Their Sons."

Those who held their signs in the air at 2 p.m. when Castro was scheduled to appear, couldn't put them down until 6:45 p.m. when the rally finally broke up.

They couldn't because they were packed in shoulder-to-shoulder and hip-to-hip.

Castro, who may be the most public relations-conscious national leader today, goofed on this rally.

He told his people to be on hand at 2 p.m., but didn't show up until 3:30 p.m. and didn't begin speaking until after 4:30 p.m.

In the meantime, he gave them no music or other entertainment. Just a hot sun that boiled tempers which grew hotter as the wait grew longer.

Castro made what was for him a short appearance. He spoke for only an hour and a half.

At one point in his speech, a shapely young Cuban girl in the revolutionary attire of a tight red sweater and black skirt was passed over the heads of the crowd, apparently in a dead faint. Her body moved from hand to hand and went directly beneath and in front of Castro as if she were some living offering to a pagan god.

Once past the rebel leader, however, she quickly came to life.

The rebel troops which handled Batista's army had more trouble with the Cubanos of Havana. The army buttressed its blockade around the speaker's platform with tanks and trucks, but when Castro appeared the people crawled over them and ended up directly under his nose.

Castro wasn't the only one who learned the Cubans were satisfied with the way the executions are going. Every U.S. and Latin American newsman was button-holed on the street and told why it was necessary to kill the men who themselves had killed and tortured.

The people's stories are too simple to have been made up for propaganda, and the pictures mothers show you of what happened to their sons couldn't have been faked.

There is no doubt in the mind of anyone who saw the demonstration Wednesday that the Cubans believe the quick execution of their war criminals is necessary and just.

Perhaps by U.S. standards the justice comes too quickly. The Cubans themselves believe a firing squad is too quick. But they believe they are more humane in killing quickly than in torturing their prisoners for hours and days as they and their families were tortured by Batista.

Mrs. Virginia Gucker, 47, wife of Arthur J. Gucker, business manager of The Miami Herald, died Tuesday. She had been in ill health for about two years.

A resident of Miami 17 years, she had been active in social and civic affairs. She was a member of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, Miami Woman's Club, the Bath Club and the Miami Shores Country Club.

Mrs. Virginia Gucker . . . dies at 47

She was a leader in the annual Easter Lily Balls, sponsored to aid the Crippled Children's Society.

Graduated from Southern Junior College, Chattanooga, Tenn., she was the widow of Kingsley A. Shaw when she moved to Miami from Gainesville.

She and Mr. Gucker were married in February, 1947.

Mrs. Gucker continued to be as active as possible until her death.

On Dec. 20, she insisted that the annual Christmas party for her young daughter, Mary Anne, must be held as usual. Friends did much of the work in arranging it, but she watched the festivities from a chair as 10-year-old Mary and 20 friends made the house bright with holiday gaiety.

Survivors include two daughters, Mary Anne, at home, and Mrs. E. Bruce Capper, III, Dallas; one brother, Jesse Burts, Jr., Miami; her mother, Mrs. T. Finley Cato, Miami, and one grandson.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Friday in Van Orsdel Northside Mortuary, 3333 NE Second Ave., with private interment in Southern Memorial Park.

deafening ovation when he appeared on the speakers rostrum at 5 p.m. The start of his address was delayed several minutes by the thunderous acclaim.

Describing the Cuban crowd as a "jury of one million men and women, of all social classes, of all religions, of all political creeds," Castro asked that "those who are in accord with our justice raise their hands."

Castro, then said, "Gentlemen, representatives of the diplomatic corps, newspapermen from all over the continent: a jury of one million Cubans of all ideas and social classes has voted. Let those democrats, or those who call themselves democrats, say if this is not indeed democracy, if this is not indeed respecting the will of the people."

Earlier, Castro had unleashed an attack on those who had criticized the actions of the revolutionary government but had remained silent about the evils of the Batista dictatorship:

"While the tyrant lived in this palace, who sold the interests of the country and granted the most onerous concessions to the foreigners, no one attacked him, no press campaign was carried out against him abroad, no congressional voices were raised to accused him."

Castro won another cheer from the mass of humanity before him when he asked if they approved of his recommendation of his brother, Raul, as second-in-command of the revolution to succeed him if he should be killed.

Virtually all normal activities ceased in Havana at 11 a.m. to allow the crowd to gather before the palace.

He was followed by Provisional President Manuel Urrutia, who said he would seek changes in laws on international asylum so "dictators and collaborators" could not take refuge in foreign embassies.

National Summary

The vicious winter storm in the midwest spread its effects throughout the eastern half of the country.

The low center moving slowly northward through eastern Indiana was gaining force as warm moist air from the Gulf continued to stream into the pattern.

Heavy rains ahead of the system broke records with a band of thunderstorms from the southern Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico.

Tornadoes were reported in the northern half of Mississippi and Alabama and into central Kentucky.

One band of most violent weather was moving across Ohio, Tennessee and into eastern Alabama while the storms associated with the sharpest drop in temperatures were along the front that stretched from the low center to Cincinnati, Nashville, Florence, Ala., Mississippi and New Orleans.

In the northeast moderate to heavy rains on top of snows of nearly a foot have created the danger of flash floods in western New York and Pennsylvania during the period of the sharp warming ahead of the storm.

New Judge Is Picked By Collins

Leland B. Featherstone, longtime Miami attorney and treasurer of the Dade Democratic Executive Committee, was appointed Wednesday by Gov. LeRoy Collins as a judge of the Dade Civil Court of Record.

Featherstone succeeds Judge David J. Heffernan, who will retire Feb. 1. Other members of the court are Judges Norman Hendry, John Blanton and Hal Dekle.

Featherstone, who lives at 918 NW 45th St., with his wife and daughter, Diana Lee, 13, was born in Carterville, Ill., and came to Miami in 1921 from Arlington, Ky. He graduated from Miami Senior High School in 1925, and received his law degree from the University of Florida.

Auditors Report Generators Don't Work Properly

TVA Buys $46-Million Worth of Faulty Units

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Government auditors reported Wednesday that the Tennessee Valley Authority has bought 46 million dollars worth of generators that don't work properly.

Campbell said in an audit of TVA operations that the agency has run into "serious problems" with the 14 turbo-generators, which it bought for installation at its Shawnee and Kingston steam plants.

As originally installed, the report said, the generators failed to meet the heat rate specified in the contracts. This required the use of more coal to get a given heat rate, thus boosting fuel costs.

The audit said some improvements resulted when three units were modified but they still didn't meet the contract specification and tests of an additional modification have been agreed upon.

"Serious mechanical difficulties also have been encountered in operating these machines," the report continued.

Campbell said it was understood that the main cause of these troubles was metallurgical, involving the turbine spindle and blades, and Westinghouse had agreed on replacing some major parts and repairing others.

The report said TVA informed Campbell's General Accounting Office "it is studying questions related to" the "substantial" damages it has suffered.

Meanwhile, an agreement has been reached that TVA will not take any action regarding a claim until Dec. 31, 1959 and Westinghouse on its part waived all statutes of limitations until Dec. 31, 1962.

Turning to over-all TVA operations, Campbell recommended again, as he has in the past, that the agency be required to pay the Treasury interest on the government's $1,196,000,000 investment in the TVA power program.

Campbell took a dim view of actions by the TVA board in the fiscal years 1956 and 1958 authorizing $270,000,000 in expansion programs to be financed out of TVA revenues. He recommended that if Congress wishes TVA to use its power revenues this way, it require the agency to get prior approval.

Your Money And The Expressway

Out Of Motorists' Pockets

A SECRET meeting hardly seems the right place to concert plans which could cost motorists here from $76 to $112 million. Yet that is what happened in Miami this week.

The closed-door parley centered around Bertram D. Tallamy, federal highway administrator. Closeted with him were William D. Singer, Miami member of the State Road Board, and a select group.

Topic of the huddle: how to build an expressway from N.W. 29th St. to the Miami River despite the fact that designs for it don't qualify for the 90-per cent federal money administered by Tallamy's Bureau of Public Roads.

The local suggestion: let motorists in Dade County foot the bill through an added penny-a-gallon tax on gasoline, and maybe some day Congress can be persuaded to buy the finished product.

Cost of this expressway link has been estimated variously at from $76 to $112 million. As we said, the motorists — under the plan—would pay it all.

REPORTERS, the eyes and ears of the public, were excluded from the powwow, but Mr. Tallamy was quoted afterward as saying he "could not guarantee" federal money for the project.

No one, so far as we can ascertain, suggested redesigning the roadway to make it eligible immediately for the 90-per cent contribution offered under the highway program.

That seems to be the simple, sensible course.

No stubborn clinging to a preconceived picture should stand in the way of solving downtown Miami's traffic problem. If part of the solution is an expressway in the federal interstate road network, this community's leaders should be about the business of meeting the federal requirements. That way, work could start at once by borrowing on guaranteed federal money.

WHY the secrecy?

One cent a gallon on gasoline may sound like chicken-feed, but it adds up to $3 million a year in Dade County. To repeat: Every penny of that would come out of the pockets of motorists here. They have a right to know all about any plan to make them pay this sum.

As for the prospect of a federal refund later, who would get that money, in the unlikely event it should be forthcoming? Not the individual mororist who had paid it—that's for sure.

Besides, there are disadvantages to an optional county-by-county gas tax.

If levied only in Dade County, it would send a number of motorists to filling stations in some adjoining county. A more practical basis, if such a tax is to be authorized at all, would be to make it optional for all or none of the counties in each of the five State Road Department districts.

Even so, a multi-county district which elected to collect the extra penny a gallon probably would suffer a loss in its share of statewide road money. Viewed from Tallahassee, a district levying the local tax would appear to be well off, needing less from the state.

The real question is whether such an added tax is necessary. The most thorough study ever made of Florida's road needs said: "Estimates of revenue from present sources indicate that the 4-cent gas tax and the 80-per cent surplus of the second gas tax should be adequate to bring all primary roads to standard in 20 years."

That report, by the influential Florida Legislative Council, was filed nearly five years ago. It called for specific steps to make the revenue from existing taxes meet the need. Not all of these have been taken. Instead, suggestions are being revived for charging motorists an extra penny a gallon for gasoline.

The Colossus Of Hollywood

ALL that was "stupendous" in the excited world of movie production might have been summed up in the career of Cecil B. deMille. He took Hollywood out of a cow pasture and put it on the map. He invented the screen extravaganza with its teeming extras, its lavish settings, its simple but emotional themes — and its amazing box office successes — often rewriting history in celluloid. He created stars whom only Dad remembers and he developed youngsters as fresh to today as a line in a Broadway column. He was bold and arrogant, kindly and sentimental by turn: He never knew real failure, for he had a sure instinct for the common taste. He built an industry that knew his hand from infancy to whatever maturity it has achieved — one more of artistry, perhaps — and the colossal world of Hollywood will never see another like him.

Let's Finish This Job!

This vital community activity, which supports the basic private health, welfare and recreation agencies, is lagging badly in collections this year. After two months of hard campaigning UF is still one-third short of its goal. There is implicit tragedy in that fact.

It means that, if not corrected, one-third of the human needs which these agencies serve will go unmet. Children, adults and whole families will suffer.

With the campaign renewed for a final effort, let's get on with it quickly and then turn to other pressing community matters.

One of these may well be to find out why the United Fund lagged, and make sure this doesn't happen again.

The Horse Before The Cart

THERE'S little that is new in this year's Economic Report which President Eisenhower transmitted to Congress. Prosperity, employment, price stability, inflation — all come in for mention.

But there's something that is different. In accenting this year the inflationary aspect of wage increases which are not tied to greater productivity, the President at last put the horse before the cart. He said, forcefully:

> Increases in money wages and other compensation not justified by the productivity performance of the economy are inevitably inflationary. They impose severe hardships on those whose incomes are not enlarged. They jeopardize the capacity of the economy to create jobs for the expanding labor force. They endanger present jobs by limiting markets at home and impairing our capacity to compete in markets abroad. In short, they are in the end, self-defeating.

And there was more of same. Last year Mr. Eisenhower played this theme once over lightly.

Simply this: It is increasingly clear to all who work that the dollar buys increasingly less. Good wages with their ample buying power have made this country what it is — a paragon of world prosperity. But good wages can only be sustained by a better day's work, and this is the simple economics of the matter.

Uneconomic strikes that upset this process are a symptom of the trouble. For example, in our business, which is newspapering, 1958 saw the second highest number of strikes since 1947. Typical of these was the multi-million-dollar tieup of New York newspapers caused by a strike of deliverymen. The loss is irrecoverable.

The lag in productivity as wages are forced higher is also a deterrent to employment. Some industries are not hiring more men, according to the Employers Association of Greater Chicago in a Wall Street Journal survey, because of the rising cost of fringe benefits. This "indirect pay" has come to average $981 per person, so it's cheaper to pay overtime where needed than to add to the payroll.

Of course, no single element or interest in the economy can or should escape responsibility for inflation. This applies as well to price-gouging in business and waste in government. But greater productivity is the very nub of the matter. The President did well to dramatize it.

The Painful Path To Solvency

Those issues well may be the survival of the present government of Argentina and the future effectiveness of the economic policies of the United States throughout all of troubled Latin America.

The critical first test of those policies is taking place in Argentina, wracked by inflation and spiralling living costs. To bail out that nation's foundering economy, this country extended loans and credits totalling $329 million — the largest financial aid ever given a Latin American neighbor. In return — and this is the key point in our new attitude — we insisted on a program of austerity and financial sacrifice for Argentinos at home.

That was the point around which the opposition groups could rally.

Supporters of ousted Dictator Peron, whose unsound fiscal policies were largely responsible for that nation's ills, and the Communists, who fish eagerly in any troubled waters, called a general strike. Argentinos, seeing the purchasing power of their pesos drop, without inflationary adjustment, rioted and caused bloodshed.

PROBABLY no head of state ever visited this country while his own land was in such turmoil.

But the stakes are high. On the Argentine side Frondizi wants to bolster trade relations and obtain private business and industrial commitments to pump new life into the Argentine economy. Whatever happens now at home, this he must do.

On our side we are eager to help Argentina's first democratically-elected president in 28 years make a go of the policies which we suggested as a prerequisite to economic aid.

If Frondizi succeeds, other nations may follow his painful path to solvency. If Frondizi fails, the formula by which we would help those neighbor nations which help themselves may be in question.

Form Of Capital Punishment

Editor The Herald: Capital punishment is when Uncle taxes you to get the capital to go into business in competition with you, and then taxes whatever profits you may make in order to pay his losses.

Capital punishment is when Uncle, by inflating the currency, which deflates the dollar, reduces the purchasing power of every government bond you have invested your capital in.

By the same deft form of pickpocketry, Uncle reduces the purchasing power of all working capital of every business. And furthermore, capital punishment is when Uncle does not permit you to set aside, tax free, enough depreciation reserves to replace your tools, machinery and equipment when they wear out.

You have to make up the difference in cost out of your capital which Uncle taxes as if it were genuine income. Uncle knows better, but he does it just the same.

Uncle borrows your savings and promises to pay you so much per cent on his bond. But when his bond falls due, Uncle makes you kick back by his income tax from 20 to 91 per cent of the interest he promised.

No other borrower has that privilege.

Hoffa Flouts Our Constitution

Editor The Herald: I see we send people to Russia to see how they run their schools and their defense as well as other things.

I think we should get Russia to look over our Constitution. It seems we have no one to interpret the Constitution when we let a man like Hoffa take the reins in his own hands. I wonder how the writers of the Constitution would feel when they tried to write into the Constitution human welfare, justice, truth and honesty and all things to make a happy nation.

Editor The Herald: The U.S., mostly Washington Batista supporters, are prostrate with grief over Castro executions. But, we notice, they were darn careful to exact their last pound of flesh at Nuremberg. And when the U.S. blew thousands of women and children to bits at Hiroshima there was not a peep of protest.

If the Castros see fit to liquidate every Batista gangster they can lay hands on, well and good. Maybe future would-be dictators will have something to think about other than shutting mouths with bullets and stealing all the cash in sight.

U.S. sob sisters should bear in mind what would have happened if things had turned out differently in Cuba. There would have been mass executions, probably in the most prominent plaza in Havana.

The whole problem in rearing a child is that by the time you finally realize how he should be handled, he is usually beyond handling. As Kierkegaard observed, "Life is so difficult because it must be lived forward, but it can only be understood backward."

Nothing could be further from the truth than the common belief that artists are impractical dreamers; when they care to bother, they are the most realistic and practical of persons; but they know that much of what we call "serious living" is mere foolishness and vanity and greed; their dreams are closer to the inner nature of man than our drives for material success and transitory fame.

All of us are a little afraid of seeming dull when we meet some great or impressive personality; and it is worth keeping in mind that the great or impressive personality is likewise a little afraid of failing to live up to our expectations. An awareness of this should ease self-consciousness on both sides.

When a man of ancient wealth and unassailable position has a son who decides to become a bum, why shouldn't we call him a "downstart?"

Mid-Bay Road Calls For Civic Umph

By JOHN PENNEKAMP

IT'S GOING TO TAKE a lot of civic umph to get that mid-bay road started within the next two and one-half years, but it can be done.

The highway, which will be one of the most spectacular marine drives in the world, probably will cost a good deal less to build than any road of comparable length.

Most of the base already is there, and more is to come.

In addition to its appeal as a drive, its utility as a limited access north-south road through the county is above question. At the same time providing parking spaces for scenic viewing and the creation of recreational areas along its route would be little more than matters of design.

Pennekamp

So, what's the delay?

* * *

The channel now is 100 feet wide and eight feet deep. The federal government is engaged in a project to widen it to 125 feet and deepen it to 12.

The additional bay bottom that will come from this work will bring most of the spoil bank well above the bay's level at high tide.

Private developers would like that spoil. Others would want to build islands for speculation along its route, but the Metro commissioners seem alert to and opposed to both prospects.

The problem is to speed up the federal government's deepening program.

* * *

WORK HAS BEEN going on southward from Jacksonville for many years. The deeper channel is complete from Jacksonville to Wabasso, about 145 miles north of Miami. Currently $1.9 million is being spent on the 20-mile strip from Wabasso to Fort Pierce.

It should be possible to induce the federal engineers to begin in this area and start deepening northward to meet the dredges that are coming south. If that is done, the base for the road can be had years earlier than anticipated.

The Metro commissioners, supported by civic-minded residents and by organizations pledged to the public interest will have to (1) convince Senators George Smathers and Spessard L. Holland and Rep. Dante Fascell that they should push for that change, and (2) "lend them a hand" in Washington.

The Waterway is the "safe route" for small vessels and a harbor for larger ones when the weather is bad outside.

It has enormous commercial tonnage potential with the Miami River, Port of Miami and Port Everglades users as contributors.

In 1950 the total tonnage, principally on barges, in this district was 300,000. By 1956 it had reached 1.5 million tons. Its use is expected to multiply as the deepening and widening program progresses.

* * *

Through most of Florida the situation is as here: a spoil bank, available as the base for a road, is at its side.

Repeated efforts to induce the state to explore the possibility of a full-length highway along its route have met with indifferent road department response.

Residents of the Jacksonville, St. Augustine, Daytona Beach, New Smyrna, Melbourne and Stuart areas have several times discussed and drawn preliminary plans for such a highway along the 168-mile length of the Mantanzas and Indian Rivers in that area.

May be if we get the Dade County portion built, thus demonstrating its economy of construction, popularity as a toll or free road, and possibilities as a sightseeing and recreational area, the others will follow suit.

But, to get underway, work first has to be done in Washington.

Today And Tomorrow

Distrust In Europe Is Affront To U.S.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

ANTHONY NUTTING, writing from London on Mikoyan's visit, has succeeded in demonstrating how hard it is for even the friendliest nations to understand one another.

Lippmann

Nutting reports that it is being "seriously debated" in London whether the United States is moving towards "a two-power deal" with the Soviet Union. After a long report on how much our motives are suspected in Europe, he proceeds to lecture us on what we must do to make our European friends feel better about us.

What we must do, according to Nutting, is precisely what in fact we have been doing day by day, namely, to make "a full and reassuring report" to all our NATO partners, and to discuss and agree with them "on future policies and procedures." A failure to do these things which we are doing, says Nutting quite solemnly, "would be playing Russia's game beyond the point of safety."

* * *

IF THIS IS the kind of uninformed suspicion which exists in London it is enough to make anyone despair of the effectiveness of a free press. Here are two allies, both speaking the same language, both enjoying free institutions, both able to print and to read whatever they choose, both committed to the same international ideals, and yet a writer with connections in official quarters in London suspects us of being so foolish and so disloyal that we are contemplating a two-power deal at the expense of Europe.

I do not expect us to be understood or trusted in Moscow. But we have earned the right to be trusted by our closest allies. We do not betray our friends, and the suspicion that we are so gullible that Mikoyan can "sell" us into betraying our friends is an affront to the honor of America and an insult to its intelligence.

* * *

THE PUBLIC part of Mikoyan's visit seems to me to show that between the Communist world and ours there can be little free and open communication on the great issues. We live in very different worlds. We see things with very different eyes. We judge them with very different minds.

The best we can do is to negotiate cautiously more or less at arm's length. But the kind of full understanding needed for political cooperation is a very long way off. It was, therefore, absurd to invite Mikoyan to subject himself to a public exhibition like "Meet the Press" and it was absurd for Mikoyan to accept. The show was as useful as an attempt to mate a whale which lives in the sea with an elephant which lives on the land.

Those who have studied carefully the problem of communication between the Soviet Union and the West know that the communication cannot be general but must be specialized. The mathematicians and the physical scientists can communicate with one another. So can the engineers or the agriculturists. So can artists. So can experienced and sophisticated statesmen. So can ordinary tourists meeting ordinary people.

But Mikoyan cannot talk to the American people in the mass nor could Nixon talk, even if he had the freedom of the Soviet radio, to the Russian people in the mass.

* * *

AS TO RESULTS of Mikoyan's tour, they cannot be measured by the crowds and the headlines, by the curiosity of the people who saw him or by their courtesy. The results will be tested as we see whether or not we are moving towards negotiations on the whole German question. For surely that was the real objective of Mikoyan's visit, as it is the objective of the Soviet gambit in Berlin.

His purpose cannot have been to enter a popularity contest, for which he is as little qualified as he would be for a beauty contest. If the purpose of his visit was to open up the German question, he is not going home empty-handed. For the President and Dulles have shown that they hope to make the German question negotiable if Moscow is seriously interested in negotiating.

Berlin Confederation Might Gain West's OK

By PETER LISAGOR

Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

WASHINGTON — Unmistakable signs of a thaw have begun to appear in the frozen Western position on German reunification.

These signs include a willingness among U.S. officials to discuss such previously unmentionable ideas as "confederation" between West Germany and Communist East Germany.

LISAGOR

If West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer will stand still for it, a four-power working group is expected to be created in the near future to study a variety of proposals on German unity.

* * *

THIS CHANGE in outlook here was prompted not by the revent visit of Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan. It was instead generated by the Soviet note of last Nov. 27 demanding Western withdrawal from Berlin in order to turn it into the Moscow concept of "a free city."

That note impressed administration officials with the need to attempt to find new tactical designs for meeting the Russians on the whole question of German reunification.

Mikoyan's preoccupation with Berlin and Germany while he was here helped to stimulate this budding new look at Germany.

What officials here are doing may better be described as a desire to bore a hole in the ice to see if there's any motion underneath.

* * *

THE CONFEDERATION idea, as broached by the Russians, was regarded here as a gimmick to freeze in perpetuity the division of Germany even though it was not spelled out in detail.

It became a horrid word as a result, especially to Adenauer.

Confederation as a possible first step toward real unification of Germany in time, with a free choice of allies, is now being bandied about as a way toward a better negotiable position for the West.

It seems hardly likely now that the Russians would accept any Western idea of what confederation would be like.

But it's their word, and some officials would like to dress it up in acceptable Western style and stick them with it.

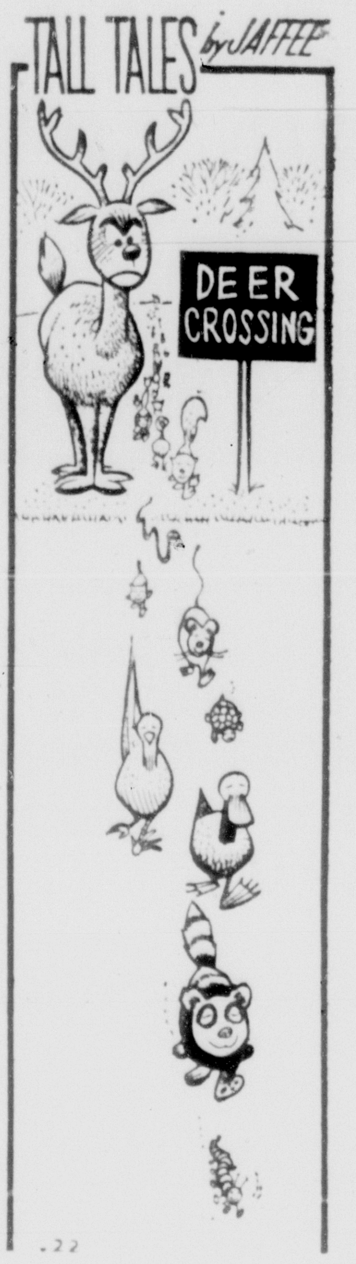
* * *

THE REALIZATION has grown here that the West cannot forever hang by their thumbs on the Berlin issue without ultimately risking war over it.

This does not mean any perceptible weakening of resolve to maintain Allied rights in that city. It does mean a desire to scrap the old and increasingly outdated diplomatic position if possible.

Among some ideas proposed in this early stage is one that would urge the West Germans to move their capital from Bonn to Berlin while establishing a new and more formal relationship with East Germany.

A series of working arrangements between the two states would then be negotiated — on the basic assumption that West Germany would be the stronger magnet in a contest of two distinct political and economic systems.



Slum Clearance Fund Total Is Congress vs. Ike Fight

This is the final article of the three-part series by CQ Staff Writer George Wilson on problems facing U. S. cities. It deals with the tough problems of urban renewal and the impending struggle between Congress and the administration over funds.

By Congressional Quarterly

WASHINGTON — The federal program for clearing away slums, which marks its 10th birthday this year, is having trouble with its legal guardians.

One guardian, the Eisenhower Administration, wants to give the program less federal help. The other, Congress, wants to give it more.

Standing in the background like anxious relatives are the nation's mayors. They are pulling for more federal help. They say they cannot clean up the slums on their own.

Cold figures show that something will be done. Out of 1.35 billion dollars that Congress has authorized since 1949, only 24 million dollars is left. The rest has been spent or promised.

Cities are clamoring for federal slum clearance money. As of Dec. 31, 1958, applications for federal money totalled 583 million dollars. Of that amount, 179 million dollars worth was approved, mostly because of limited funds.

* * *

THE EISENHOWER Administration concedes more federal money must be authorized. But it has made it clear that it wants to loosen and then cut the federal apron strings on the slum clearance programs.

Pending bills reflecting the administration viewpoint call for appropriating an additional 100 million dollars to continue the program between now and June 30, 1959.

What the administration wants on a long term basis has not been announced, but it is certain to be more modest than Democratic proposals.

A bill introduced by "Mr. Housing" of the Senate, Chairman John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.) of the Housing Subcommittee, calls for 2.1 billion dollars over six years for the slum clearance program.

This compares with the 1.3 billion dollar, six-year program the Eisenhower Administration supported in 1958.

Besides appropriating less money, the administration in 1958 recommended reducing the federal share of a slum clearance project's cost from two-thirds to 50 per cent.

The cities want a 10-year program of 600 million dollars a year. Sen. Joseph S. Clark (D., Pa.) has introduced a bill to carry out their recommendations. He contends the cities cannot raise the necessary money to do the job. Less federal money, he says, means less slum clearance.

There is no question that the slum clearance program will get more money. The only question is how much and whether President Eisenhower will veto a bill calling for more money than he wants.

The program has undergone less policy changes since 1949. Basically, this is how it works. The city bulldozes away a slum area and puts in such facilities as sewer and water lines.

Then it sells the cleared site to a private developer so he can put up new houses and shops.

The difference between what the city paid to clear the site and the money it got from the developer represents the net loss. The federal government pays two-thirds of this net loss on projects that meet its requirements.

Although 1.326 billion dollars has been promised to cities for slum clearance projects, only 157 million dollars of that amount has been spent. This it because of the long lag between the time a project is approved and is actually completed.

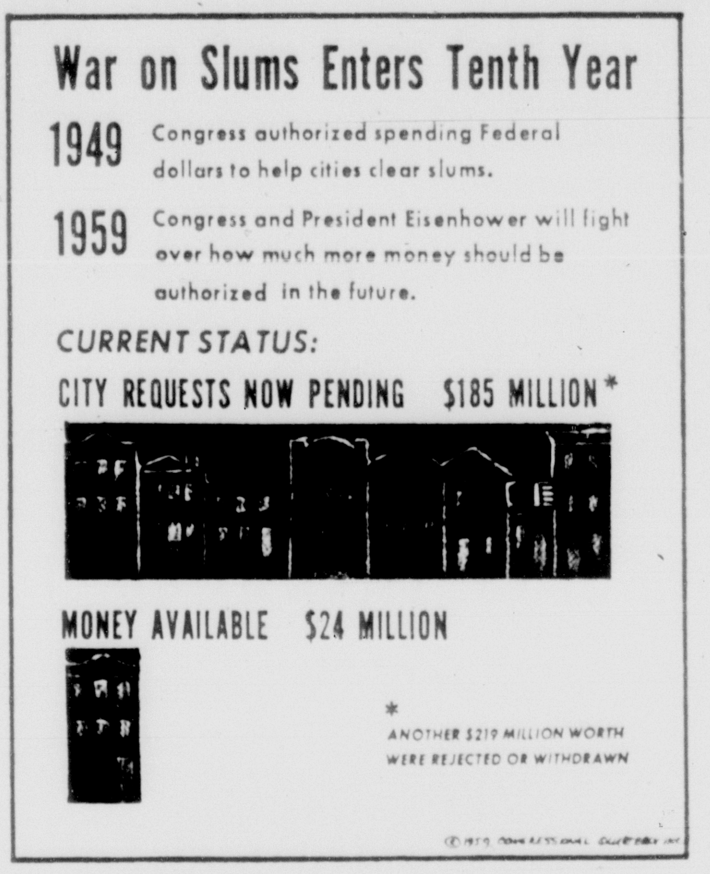
All told, 668 slum clearance projects in 41 states, the District of Columbia and Hawaii and Puerto Rico have been approved by the Federal Urban Renewal Administration. Of the 668, only 18 have been completed since 1949.

* * *

DESPITE the federal pump priming, slums are cropping up faster than they are being cleared away.

Outgoing administrator Albert M. Cole of the Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency predicts the tide will turn by 1970, but says it would take another 1.35 billion dollars in Federal money.

Congress appears willing to appropriate far more than that for the second 10 years of the slum clearance program. Its efforts in 1959 to authorize a generous allowance for the program shape up as one of the major battles of the budget.



Florida Out in Cold

Florida cities aren't eligible for U. S. slum clearance aid because of a State Supreme Court ruling in a Daytona Beach case that a public body can't condemn land for resale, which is necessary for redevelopment by private enterprise.

Protest Directed To Castro

Dear Senor Castro:

As a reporter who covered the Cuban revolution and indirectly contributed to your buildup as a "Liberator" and "New Clean Face" in the cruel jungle of Latin - American politics I have the right to protest.

SPARKS

I protest against the rhythm of the firing squads that are turning you — in a few heady days — from "Liberator" to "Master of an Abbatoir."

You are destroying the symbol of yourself as a spokesman for the dignity of the little man and substituting a symbol of a bearded bully, spokesman for the mob.

Senor Castro — have you gone mad?

"Revenge! Violence!" are not cries of bright tomorrows to unite Cuba but primitive animal squeals of dark yesterdays to make your island a subtropic of Hatfields-and-McCoys.

As a graduate lawyer you are wise in the ugly history of how passion replaces evidence to the jackal chorus of: "Blood! Blood! Blood!"

When a suspect is tried by the side of the still warm corpse justice is always blind. A mob does not offer evidence —if offers a rope.

SENOR CASTRO — are you sick with victory?

Where is the idealist who recently promised visiting journalists true peace to bind all wounds? The idealist who denounced Batista's "packed courts?"

I wonder where he is when I learned the execution of 14 alleged torturers was delayed three hours until there was enough sun for Havana's TV cameras.

Senor Castro! Are you on a holiday from reason or do we now see, naked, the true Castro — idealist in struggle, monster in power?

Pray you will yet control the trash infiltrated among your good peoples. End this arbitrary slaughter! Postpone all trials until heads cool — and facts firm.

Or else those of us who contributed to your build-up will stand, like Cuba's integrity, betrayed.

And we will resume our game of patience, waiting, waiting, for the inevitable hour when the bullet of revenge boomerangs and finds your brain.

Or when you, too, flee like Batista, softened by the spoils, craven. A mob, Senor Castro, never stops — traditionally it makes a complete circle.

Still with hope, I remain your worried friend,

Business Gave Mikoyan OK But Labor Was Reluctant

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Anastas Mikoyan, the fast-talking, hard-traveling deputy premier of Russia, has now gone back to Moscow, but the results of his trip are still being analyzed and debated in the diplomatic corps and elsewhere in Washington.

His trip is being assayed as probably the most important development in American-Russian relations since the death of Stalin.

PEARSON

Mikoyan departed with the Eisenhower administration just as firmly entrenched against any change in economic aloofness toward Russia; also with the Berlin policy unchanged.

The fact that talks were held and got nowhere probably added to the official tenseness of the cold war.

A showdown has to come sooner or later over Berlin, and as the deputy premier warned shortly before he returned home, this could mean a hot war.

* * *

However, the fact that Mikoyan would tour the United States, risk injury from hostile Hungarian refugees, and face the piercing, sometimes brutal, questioning of American newspapermen, presumably in the interest of peace, unquestionably has made an impression on the American public—an impression that Russia wants better relations with the United States.

And what the diplomatic corps is interested in is whether American public opinion has been molded enough to thaw State Department frigidity later.

Significantly, Mikoyan made a better impression on big business than on labor.

It was big businessmen, most of them strong supporters of Eisenhower, who advised their friend in the White House to reverse policy and get together with the deputy premier.

Prior to this, a meeting had been uncertain.

In fact, Sen. Everett Dirksen of Illinois, Republican leader of the Senate, had confided to Republican senators that the State Department advised against attending the Eric Johnston dinner for Mikoyan.

The State Department cautioned that it was sending only its second-string diplomats to the dinner.

After the White House got the word from Ike's business friends, however, this studied coolness was temporarily reversed.

* * *

NOTE—It was partly pressure from American business that brought the recognition of Soviet Russia early in the Roosevelt administration.

A long report urging recognition was signed by James Mooney of General Motors; Thomas Lamont of J. P. Morgan; J. H. Rand Jr. of Remington-Rand; George Houston of Baldwin Locomotive, and Thomas Morgan of Curtis-Wright.

Spokesmen for Standard Oil, duPont, International Harvester, General Electric, RCA, Sperry Gyroscope, Chase National Bank and Equitable Trust also called for recognition.

In those days Henry Ford I aroused the wrath of Father Coughlin by inviting Russian engineers to come to his plant to study mass-production methods.

* * *

AMERICAN LABOR leaders, by and large, gave the Soviet deputy premier a rougher time than did American business.

George Meany, AFL-CIO president, declined a luncheon given by James Carey, head of the International Union of Electrical Workers; Walter Reuther of the Auto Workers; Joseph Bierne head of the Communication Workers; William Doherty, head of the Letter Carriers, and Karl Feller of the Brewery Workers.

The luncheon resulted in a friendly straight-from-the-shoulder debate, during which for the first time in history Americans, representing a large segment of labor, threshed out international problems with a man representing all of Russian labor.

Mikoyan made the following significant statements:

2—RUSSIA would welcome more visits by American labor leaders and would give them permission to travel freely.

3—RUSSIAN leaders couldn't understand why American labor was so much more critical of communism than are American capitalists.

Ike's 'Balanced Budget' Involves Sharp Strategy

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

THE "BALANCED BUDGET" for 1959-'60 which President Eisenhower sent to Congress this week — forecasting spending at 77 billion dollars and a thin-dime surplus of 70 million dollars — reflects political strategy more than it does economic reality.

The realities are these:

DRUMMOND

1—EVEN IF CONGRESS does not up the President's spending programs or add some of their own, the prospect that the federal budget will be balanced at the end of fiscal 1960 is remote bordering on the almost invisible.

2—IT IS A NEAR certainty that Congress will add to the budget and this reduces still further the misty propsect that it will end up in balance.

3—THE ONLY CONCEIVABLE, off-chance outside possibility that the budget will be balanced is that the administration has appreciably under-estimated expected revenue and that as a result the budget could be balanced at a higher figure than Mr. Eisenhower's proposed 77 billion dollars.

(The reason this has to be put down as a most remote prospect is that the Treasury has almost invariably erred on the over-optimistic. This year, for example, the Treasury under-estimated the recession and thus over-estimated its revenue by something near to 5 billion dollars.

(It also under-estimated government spending by about 8 billion dollars, all of which put this year's projected budget about 12 billion dollars off the course of good planning.)

* * *

THERE ARE SEVERAL reasons why it is pretty unrealistic to expect a balanced budget in 1959-'60. The President is trying to cut spending neary 4 billion dollars over this year; that's formidable.

He hopes that revenue will go up 9 billion dollars over this year; that's formidable. Even to achieve the hair-breadth surplus of 70 million dollars, the White House is asking Congress for a 1½ cent per-gallon increase in the federal gasoline tax and a 350 million dollar increase in postal revenues, neither of which is very likely.

And in a number of areas — defense, housing, aid to education, health, aid for airports—it is almost certain that this Congress will want to appropriate more than the President has provided for.

And there is another massive imponderable in the President's budget message. He says: "On the assumption that the Soviet Union will agree to the United States proposal to suspend nuclear weapons tests, no funds are provided for weapons testing in 1960; and weapons testing sites will be maintained on a standby basis."

* * *

JUST BY ITSELF this shows how much the "balanced budget" thesis rests on collapsible legs. The projected surplus of 70 million dollars is so thin that one digit in the Treasury's calculations could throw it out, and even this elusive surplus rests "on the assumption that the Soviet Union will agree" to our proposal to suspend nuclear testing.

I don't know how much nuclear testing costs for a year. The Atomic Energy Commission says it's "classified." But I'll wager it is at least 70 million dollars.

That would mean that the claim that the 1960 budget is balanced rests on correctly reading the Soviet mind on nuclear testing. Quite a claim.

* * *

THE PRESIDENT KNOWS all these facts as well as anybody and better than most.

Mr. Eisenhower's strategy is this:

He is asking for the nearly impossible in the belief that this is the best way to get the attainable.

He is offering a budget which he says is "in balance" — though it rests on multiple imponderables — in order to focus whatever public indignation there is over an unbalanced budget upon Congress.

The President believes that a balanced budget is a vital priority but shows that he also believes it is a popular political issue.

Mental Laziness Our Biggest Fault

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK —(AP)— "The biggest enemy of human progress is mental indolence," said Robert Maynard Hutchins, who just turned 60 years.

BOYLE

"As Aristotle said, 'learning is accompanied by pain.' Too many people won't go through that pain.

"The biggest mistake man makes is that he doesn't think through the question of just what is really worthwhile."

The one-time "boy-wonder" of the educational world—he was secretary of Yale at 23, dean of its law school at 28 and president of the University of Chicago at 30—is still a figure of controversy as head of the Fund for the Republic.

At 60 he looks 50. His crew cut hair is graying, but his 6-foot-3 frame shows no sign of a paunch. Nor does his mind.

He is as ready as ever to fight for his ideas, but still professes surprise that his ideas stir up so much controversy.

"It is remarkable to me that people think of a critic in an adverse sense," he observed. "Criticism to me means appraisal. To most people it seems to mean attack. But to lay the basis for improvement in any field you first have to point out that things aren't already perfect."

* * *

HUTCHINS HAS been assailed as an iconoclast, a cynic and a pessimist.

He regards himself as more of an optimist, feels the general level of the world today is better than it has ever been, and is strongly hopeful of human progress.

"Yes, I am hopeful," he said, smiling. "But if pressed for specific grounds for my optimism I might be at a loss to explain why.

"I don't believe, however, that things just get better and better by themselves every day. A tremendous exercise of human will and intelligence is necessary to achieve progress.

"And I think that everything is called progress isn't necessarily real progress.

"I do feel, what many of my contemporaries don't feel, a sense of crisis — and it has very little to do with the Russians. If all the Russians were to disappear tomorrow — or become Republicans — everything wouldn't be fine.

"We must find our own standards and our own purposes, and not measure our own effort by the activities of people we deplore.

"The crisis I feel is a crisis about the whole American tradition. The question is whether our own democratic institutions can stand the strains and pressures of a large, heterogeneous, bureaucratic society — whether the individual can stay free."

* * *

HIS OWN philosophy, he said, is summed up in this quotation attributed both to Charles the Bold and William the Silent:

"It is not necessary to hope in order to undertake, nor to succeed in order to persevere."

Ike Will Meet Elizabeth

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Eisenhower plans to meet Britain's Queen Elizabeth in June, probably on the U.S.-Canadian border when she inspects the St. Lawrence Seaway.

James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, said in reply to questions that details regarding the meeting have not been worked out.

Nazi Faces 175 Charges of Murder

The state prosecutor said Chmielewski actually had tortured and killed thousands of Mauthausen inmates from many nations. He said the charges were limited to 175 counts to shorten the trial.

The trial will center on the notorious "Operation Death Bath" in which hundreds of inmates were stripped nude, then sprinkled with water at subfreezing temperatures until they collapsed with frozen limbs, fell into a pond and drowned.

The prosecution contends that Chmielewski ordered this death for hundreds of inmates who were physically unfit for slave labor.

Herbert Junge, Chmielewski's aide in the camp, also will be a defendant in the trial. He is charged with a single count of murder. He was serving a five-year term for burglary and robbery when he was tracked during investigation of the Chmielewski case.

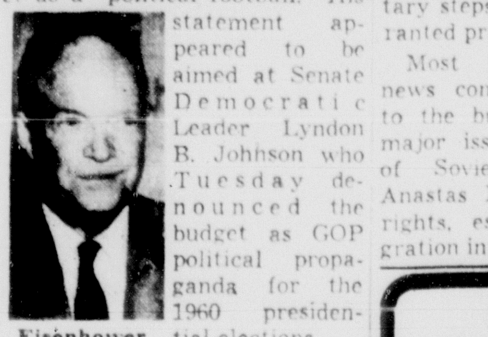
Ike Pins 'Schizoid' Tag on Budget Critics, Raps Politicking

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — President Eisenhower said Wednesday that Democratic critics of his 77-billion-dollar budget are suffering from "budgetary schizophrenia." He said they can't agree what they think is wrong with it.

He told a news conference he will refuse to use the budget as a "political football." His statement appeared to be aimed at Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson who Tuesday denounced the budget as GOP political propaganda for the 1960 presidential elections.



Eisenhower

Eisenhower noted that he was "not running for anything," a remark that could have been a jibe at Johnson's 1960 presidential possibilities.

"If we get into this business of who is using the budget as a political football," the President said, "I assure you it is not I."

The President said some Democrats claim his spending budget is too high, others contend it is too low, while still others argue that his revenue estimates are way out of line. He concluded it was "budgetary schizophrenia that is affecting the critics of the budget."

Eisenhower, in discussing the budget and the national economy, said he was not considering wage-price controls as anti-inflation measures "because I despise them." But he said "something will have to be done" if inflation mounts and the people refuse to discipline themselves.

In his economic message to Congress Tuesday, he warned that controls might be the alternative if business, labor and the public fail to take voluntary steps to hold down unwarranted prices and wages.

Most of the presidential news conference was devoted to the budget and two other major issues—the recent visit of Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan and civil rights, especially school integration in Virginia.

The President said he believed Mikoyan returned to Moscow convinced that the U.S. wants to negotiate cold war problems but "simply won't be pushed around" by Russia. Eisenhower said this country was ready to "match reasonableness with reasonableness."

On the other hand, the President said he found it "a little hard to swallow" Soviet claims that the U.S. is "negative" or "rigid" whenever it does not agree with some Russian position.

On integration, Eisenhower said federal agencies were trying to find ways to educate 5,500 children of military personnel in Norfolk, Va., where public schools have been closed to prevent mixing white and Negro students. He said the government could set up schools for 500 students who live on the base but that the others create a problem.

Little Rock Pleads For Time

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. —(AP)— The Little Rock School Board Wednesday asked U.S. District Court here for permission to reopen the city's closed public high schools on a segregated basis, at least temporarily.

This was the board's answer to a court order to take immediate steps to implement integration in the schools under a court-approved plan.

The board said reopening of the schools would remove an air of tension in the community and would make it possible for the board to complete a study of problems confronting it.

The board said it will attempt to develop an integration plan acceptable to the Federal Court and the people of the district, and report to the court no later than Aug. 15.

U.S. District Judge John E. Miller on Jan. 10 gave the board 30 days to develop an integration plan.

Doctor Breathes Life Into Child Believed Dead

SAN FRANCISCO —(AP)— A doctor whose kidnaped baby drew nationwide attention in 1955 revived a four-year-old girl by breathing into her mouth for three hours. The child's mother had given her up for dead.

DR. MARCUS

The doctor, Sanford Marcus, was exhausted at the end of the long ordeal. The girl, Susan Nezik, stricken by severe sore throat, resumed normal breathing and is now recovering rapidly.

—Associated Press Wirephoto

Susan Nezik
. . . breath of life

Dr. Marcus' newborn son was kidnaped from a San Francisco hospital maternity ward in 1955 and kept for 10 days in Stockton by a woman who finally surrendered the infant to a priest. The woman had tried to make her husband believe it was theirs.

Little Susan, youngest of a policeman's six children, became ill Monday.

"She was burning up," said her mother, Mrs. Edna Nezik.

"Her fever was 104 degrees. I never saw anyone so red. When they put her on the operating table, she was dead."

Creative Writing Class Slated

The Dade County Board of Public Instruction will offer a course in creative writing from 7 to 10 p.m. Friday at the Coral Gables War Memorial Youth Center.

Mrs. Julia Swart, who has been in the publishing field for 25 years, will teach the 16-week course.

Sandburg Tells Off Faubus, TV

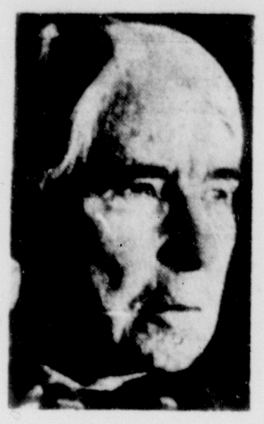
EAST ORANGE, N.J.—(AP)—"The fog," Carl Sandburg once wrote, "comes on little cat feet."

Carl Sandburg doesn't.

The dynamic 80-year-old poet and writer came in out of the fog to receive an honorary doctor of letters degree from Upsala College.

Then he delivered a forceful speech, read from his works and the works of others and capped off the evening with a few songs.

The white-thatched bard spoke of poetry, politics and the people. He threw in a couple of digs at the movies and TV for good measure.



Sandburg

Faubus
. . . 'The United States IS'

Of modern poets, Sandburg said: "They ain't doing so good."

He called modern poetry "a variety of cliques, claques and movements."

To illustrate what he meant, Sandburg read a few selections from his monumental work, "The People, Yes." The audience got the point. They answered with thunderous applause.

Sandburg, who won the Pulitzer Prize in 1940 for his biography of Abraham Lincoln, spoke at length about the Great Emancipator.

He spoke also of the problems raised by the Civil War. Of Arkansas' Gov. Orval Faubus, he said:

"Before the Civil War, official documents used to read 'The U. S. Are.' The war was fought to enable us to say 'The U.S. Is.'

Sandburg said of the movies and TV:

"They are very poor indeed. Lincoln, Jefferson and Washington never saw TV but developed personalities which were sublime. They had books. Books give you a choice: You can mark the pages and skip the parts that are stupid."

As Sandburg was getting ready to leave, a radio announcer asked him to say a few words about Lincoln.

"Didn't you listen out there?" the poet chided him. "Do you think I'm going to regurgitate for you now?"

"Regurgitate," he mused happily. "Look it up."

And away he sauntered, not at all like a cat.

Salvation Army Board Listed

Graham Miller is the new chairman of the citizens' advisory board of the Salvation Army, a United Fund agency. Mrs. John D. Simmons, vice chairman, is the first woman to hold a top office on the Miami board.

Other officers are Donald J. Wellenkamp, secretary, and Henry B. Peacock Jr., treasurer.

Retired Officers Group to Elect

Appointments will be made from among 7,000 retired officers of the armed forces now living in Dade and Broward counties.

Group Elects

The newly formed South West Home Owners' and Civic Association elected Cliff Horne, president; Mrs. Lillian Barnes, vice president; Bill Hudak, treasurer; Mrs. Frances Mowell, recording secretary, and Mrs. Carol Harrison, corresponding secretary.

Warns Congress

Latin Woe Perils Us All--Frondizi

WASHINGTON—(AP)—President Arturo Frondizi of the Argentine republic warned Congress Wednesday that the "misery and backwardness" of millions of Latin Americans is "a source of danger to the security of the hemisphere."

The Argentine president told a joint meeting of the Senate and the House that the U.S. "cannot remain indifferent to the fact that millions of individuals lead a life of hardship in the American continent."

"Peoples that are poor and without hope are not free peoples," he said.

"A stagnant and improverished country cannot uphold democratic institutions. On the contrary, it is fertile soil for anarchy and dictatorship."

Latin-American people, he said, must "change an economic structure that has become a factor of stagnation and poverty." They must make use of all their resources, mobilize all available energy and take advantage of the technical and scientific progress of our time, he continued.

Frondizi added the U.S. "cannot stand aloof" because "to leave an American country in stagnation is as dangerous as an attack coming from an extra-continental power."

President Eisenhower and other officials Tuesday welcomed Frondizi, the first Argentine president to pay a state visit to the U.S.

Meanwhile bomb explosions jarred Buenos Aires as Argentina attempted to recover from a two-day general strike against President Frondizi's belt-tightening program.

The blasts were set off as leaders of the 62 Peronista unions defiantly announced after a secret meeting that they had decided to continue the walkout indefinitely. Unless the government cracks this strike, it will keep such industries as textiles and metals paralyzed.

Car Thief Gets 5-Year Sentence

Henry Cecil Smith, 36, of 707 Hulett Ave., Coconut Grove has been sentenced by Criminal Judge Gene Williams to five years in Florida State prison at Raiford for stealing a 1959 Chevrolet which he later smashed into a railroad boxcar.

He wrecked it within minutes after taking the car out the back way from the Don Allen lot at N. Miami Ave. between 22nd and 23rd Sts., Dec. 30.

Dual System of Schools Gets Backing

By JOHN L. BOYLES
Capitol Bureau Chief

TALLAHASSEE — Presiding officers of the House and Senate Wednesday endorsed a dual system of segregated and mixed schools as the measure most likely to be passed by the Legislature in an effort to preserve segregated schools for those who want them.

House Speaker Thomas D. Beasley said the 1959 Legislature ought to pass a "parent-option" bill to give parents an opportunity to withdraw their children from public schools if they are integrated.

Senate President-Designate Dewey Johnson of Quincy, who appeared on a panel with Beasley and other legislators, endorsed the proposal and said he believes it would pass the Senate.

Beasley said he would favor new legislation to prevent mixing of the races provided it does not destroy the public school system.

But he told the Florida Parent-Teachers Association Legislative Conference that "I don't think parents ought to be forced to send their children to an integrated school." He proceeded to sharply criticize the U.S. Supreme Court.

The delegates applauded vigorously when Beasley said "it would just about destroy my soul to see the public school system done away with."

Beasley, who had indicated strongly that he will be a candidate for governor in 1960, said his position was firm.

Principal feature of the parent-option bill proposed by several legislators is that it would provide funds for tuition assistance to parents who could not otherwise afford to send their children to a private school.

Seminoles Are Whooping Up Land Claims in New York

A delegation of Florida Seminoles was in New York Wednesday accusing Florida of stalling on agreements to return Indian lands.

But Florida Attorney General Richard Ervin said the state can't act on verbal agreements made between Gov. LeRoy Collins and Seminole leaders until the state Legislature meets this spring.

Led by Buffalo Tiger, the Seminoles were trooping from one foreign nation's consular office to the next, trying to enlist backing in a fight in the U.N. to recover land.

Tiger said Gov. Collins agreed verbally in Aug. 1957, to have the state deed 300,000 acres of undeveloped Everglades to the Indians as a protected preserve.

But the agreement has not been put in writing, Tiger charged.

Ervin said legislative action must be taken on such agreements.

Swindle Suspect Is Back-Broke

Robert Nelson, 40-year-old New Jersey fishing boat captain, won approval from U.S. Commissioner Roger E. Davis to switch a $5,000 cash bond posted earlier to a surety bond.

Nelson put up his bond in cash when arrested in New Jersey last Nov. 8, but apparently needs the money now. Bondsman Murray Goldberg put up the surety bond in place of cash.

Nelson is charged with taking part in the November swindle of the Boulevard National Bank of Miami of some $321,000. He is accused of mailing letters for Joseph Lamonica, of Huntington, N.Y., accused as the brains of the con scheme.

Lamonica hired Nelson to be captain of his $40,000 yacht. Lamonica is also free on bond pending trial. Also picked up following the swindle were Malcolm T. Ryan of Amityville, N.Y., and Glenn C. Hibbs of Miami.

Beach Renews Links Contract

Without calling for bids, the Miami Beach City Council Wednesday renewed a $15,000-a-year contract with operators of the Bayshore Golf Course.

Councilmen A. Lee Powell, Melvin Richard and Harry Shapiro voted against It.

Mayor Ken Oka disagreed.

"It behooves us to keep good management once we find it," he said, "and keep out every Tom, Dick and Harry," Oka said.

Woman Denied Damages in Fall

A circuit Court jury Wednesday decided that Mrs. Hedgwig Ackerman, 72, of Jamaica, L. I., was at fault in falling on a terrazzo floor in her 62-year-old sister's Surfside home.

The jury awarded her no damages.

Mrs. Ackerman's suit for damages against her sister, Mrs. Selma Weisburger, 9308 Bay Dr., alleged that a throw rug slipped out from under her while she was a guest in her sister's home Dec. 20, 1957.

Beach Council Nixes Building

Miami Beach City Council turned down cold Wednesday an application to build a 1½ million dollar 7-story parking and transportation terminal at 39th St. and Collins Ave.

The denial hinged on the definition of a "public building." Such a building, the council said, would conflict with zoning for that part of the Beach.

But the attorney for the proposed terminal, Ben Cohen, said the terminal would be a public building.

Vice Mayor Harold Spaet said, "It would be no more of a public building than a cafeteria."

Cohen said he would fight the council decision in court.

Havana Cruise Sailing Changed

Falloff in the Cuban tourist traffic has caused a switch of the weekend cruises of the Miami-based SS Yarmouth from Havana to Nassau.

Officials of the Eastern Shipping Corp., operators of the service, said Wednesday the Yarmouth would make its first Nassau trip at 6 p.m. Friday, returning at 8 a.m. Monday.

The Yarmouth's other Monday-to-Friday cruise will continue to touch at both Havana and Nassau.

We Congratulate

A MIAMI COUPLE celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary at the home of their son. Mr. and Mrs. William Riske, of 2360 NE 135th Ter., were honored by their son Haroid at 3111 Virginia St., Coconut Grove.

FIFTY YEARS of married life were celebrated by Mr. and Mrs. Morris Katz, of 1730 SW 18th St., with over 100 guests. They were presented their original wedding invitation framed in gold.

2 See Bid to Oust Metro Boss

By LEO ADDE
Herald Staff Writer

Metro Tax Assessor John A. Gautier and two other Metro officials squared off Wednesday in a duel over whether the Metro efficiency system is or isn't good for the tax assessor's office.

Gautier told the Metro Commission Tuesday that the assessor's office, which handles nearly 400,000 property tax accounts, has been thrown into a tailspin since Metro Manager O. W. Campbell's "efficiency crew" moved in.

However, two of Campbell's top aides, who asked not to be named, charged that Gautier is trying to "make Campbell look bad and get him fired so he can become county manager."

The assessor claimed Campbell men had lost records, made a $385,091 error in handling his budget, and sent workmen to tear up and remodel his office space during the busiest weeks of the year for his staff.

Campbell himself was playing it cool.

"I won't be drawn into a political debate," he said.

Campbell's budget director, Harry Toulmin, challenged Gautier's charges, saying Gautiers' records are being handled more efficiently than ever.

Finance Director Melvin Monroe said the bookkeeping system, whereby the county's $385,091 share of the assessor's office expenses were charged against the fees he collected, was agreed upon by Gautier.

The hassle will be aired before the Metro Commission Tuesday.

Coast Guard Survival Kit Turns Up After a Month

A Coast Guard survival kit, dropped in the middle of the Gulf of Mexico a month ago, has turned up on the beach at Key Biscayne.

It was found by Bill Cleveland, 330 Ridgewood Rd., on the southern tip of the key. The waterlogged package contained food and water purifying gear.

The Coast Guard at Miami identified the kit as having been dropped by a St. Petersburg based plane to the fishing boat Little Nip on Dec. 18.

The boat, adrift for a week, was located 99 miles southwest of Tampa after a two-day air search. Coast Guard records here showed it was piloted by A. Tillgren, who was unable to recover the kit because he could not maneuver the stranded vessel.

Tillgren and an unidentified passenger were rescued unharmed by a Coast Guard cutter the same day.

New York Hikes Gas Tax 2 Cents

Rockefeller

The Republican governor signed the bill an hour after it cleared the state legislature. On March 1, the gas tax will be raised from four to six cents and the levy on diesel fuel from six to nine cents a gallon.

The increases will yield close to 60 million dollars in extra revenue a year for the state.

Rockefeller said the additional revenue from the fuel taxes will not be enough to close a 230-million-dollar gap between income and outgo in the two-billion-dollar state budget he is preparing.

School Law Decision Hit

A Miami Negro teenager seeking admission to Dade's segregated school system has appealed a federal court ruling which upheld the Florida Pupil Assignment law.

The appeal, filed in behalf of Theo Gibson Jr., by his father, Rev. Theo Gibson, asks the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals to reverse the ruling of Federal Judge Joseph Lieb on Dec. 22.

Lieb ruled against Gibson, saying the pupil assignment law provides a method of seeking admission to schools on a non-racial basis.

BELL

B'NAI B'RITH is a wonderful Jewish organization. There are quite a few chapters here, which do good work and are highly reputable. And I'm sure the vast majority of members don't know they're mixed up in the old boiler room racket.

It's a part of the Ringling Bros. circus, opening tonight at Beach Exhibition hall perhaps the finest circus in the world today. Ringling's all right. B'nai B'rith is all right. But when you get embroiled in boiler room solicitations you get soiled.

The gimmik is "children's tickets." The professional telephone solicitors tell the president of a firm that: "We have only 50 tickets to give the children at Variety Children's Hospital. We just can't let the other 150 be disappointed." He's supposed to grow compassionate and shell out. The fact that we don't have half that many children, and that they're sick and going nowhere, seems unimportant.

Old Racket

I've used Variety Children's Hospital as a sample, for other agencies too. The telephones are in the Floridian Hotel at Miami Beach. I'm told they got a permit to solicit over there. Request for a Miami permit was turned down, but that doesn't stop them from calling Miami residents.

If they sold only enough tickets to care for the children who can go, it would be nicer. Recently they sent out press releases saying they were going to take "10,000 crippled, indigent and deserving" children to the circus. I merely pointed out that there aren't 10,000 crippled and indigent kids.

The boiler room racket here is old as Miami. Time after time it has been curbed. But the operators always find a new "customer." And the better the reputation (beforehand) of the customer, the more successful the collections. And who knows how much they collect? They do, usually not the customer. I suspect they've done quite all right this time.

* * *

Here's New One

Here's another new organization: Doctors' Nurses. It started a year ago and there are chapters in all states. Mrs. Margaret Gural is counsellor of the local group of 30, and Mrs. Mary Clary is secretary. They'll meet again Feb. 17.

The urge to merge seems unsurmountable.

* * *

Scathing Report

If you're interested in hospitals — who isn't — take a look at the Feb. 3 issue of Look. It's a scathing report of a survey made in California, winding up with the premise that "hospitals are run for the convenience of the doctors, nurses and staff: the patient's needs come last."

It's quite revealing, and you'll keep repeating, "Yes sir; that's exactly what happens."

Safe-Driving

Jim Rathman, Miami's great racing driver, will give a few safe-driving lessons at Dinner Key auditorium Sunday, before the Foreign Sports Car show opens at 2 p.m. He will use little boys driving midget cars around the course outside the auditorium. They'll show patrons the maneuvers that cause trouble.

More Records

I was kiddin' 'bout those old cylinder phonograph records. But durned if I didn't uncover owners. Mrs. Jack Roderick (MO 6-0010) has 40 and wants more. She says her phonograph, probably 50 years old, plays them perfectly. If you've some you don't want, call her.

TV Set Wanted

Last time I heard from Ed Harris he was in Canada chopping down Christmas trees. Now I get a letter from him in Costa Rica. He's with an archeological group, digging into graves 4,000 years old. They have 'em there, too.

Harris tells of the greatest TV need, a hospital with 1,000 patients and employes, and not one set. "I'll pay the freight if you'll get one," he writes. There's a challenge for Joe Clark and the Sunny Isles Lions Club.

Irish Happy

Jerry Twitchell has been named musical director at Shamrock Hotel. That in itself doesn't mean much. But consider this: Jerry's ancestry is true Irish. They're bouncing with glee in their graves because Jerry got with a hotel with an Irish name. Jerry has been around here a long time, having been stationed here during World War I, in 1917-18.

Fatal Shooting Of Truck Thief Held Justifiable

By STEVE TRUMBULL
Herald Staff Writer

The fatal shooting of a fleeing Negro truck thief by a Miami motorcycle policeman was ruled "justifiable homicide" after an inquest Wednesday before Peace Justice Francis Christie.

The dead man in the shooting Wednesday was Herbert Roosevelt Taylor Jr., 24, of 1339 NW Fourth Ave. He had a record of 18 arrests, including a 10-year sentence for armed robbery.

The officer, Neil Garfield, was involved Sept. 7 in a melee in which a crazed Negro was shot to death by a fellow officer.

Irate witnesses at the scene, NW Second Ave. and 14th St., told reporters Garfield fired without warning at the fleeing man, and at a distance so close he could have shot him in the legs instead of the head.

Neil Garfield
. . . he fired once

However, none of these appeared at the inquest. Garfield, his partner at the time, Motorcycle Patrolman Maurice Johnson, and Juanita Scans, a resident of a house nearby, all said the fleeing man was ordered to halt before the shot.

The Negro woman testified she saw Taylor "reach in his back pocket as he ran."

Police radio dispatchers testified that they put out an alarm around 10:30 a.m. for a truck and a load of produce stolen shortly before that time from the Certified Poultry & Egg Co.

Garfield and his partner testified that they had just received this call when they say a truck of that firm, with a non-uniformed driver, make an "illegal" left turn. The driver was Taylor.

"I ordered him out of the truck and Officer Johnson asked to see his driver's license," Garfield testified. "He said he didn't have any identification. I ordered him to get in front of the truck and put his hands on the hood. Officer Johnson went to the radio to call in.

"I was still frisking him when he pushed me aside, stuck his hand in his pocket and said, 'I got a knife. Don't come near me.'

"With that he broke and ran, and I never saw anyone run faster. I fired once, like this (indicating a shot from the hip)."

According to the testimony of Johnson, Taylor made the break just as the police radio verified the license number of the stolen truck and he (Johnson) called out, "We got the right man."

Less than a half hour passed from the time the truck was stolen until Taylor's death. Maurice Roth, owner of the company, testified that some $150 worth of butter and eggs had been disposed of in that period. The dead man had only $19.09 in his pockets.

Fred Ebron, Negro detective assigned to the area, produced a pocket knife at the inquest which he said had been found under the body of the dead man, with the blade opened.

The case of last September in which Officer Garfield participated was a wild shooting affray in the Tropical Pharmacy in Coconut Grove. According to testimony in that affair, a Negro suspect he was holding at gunpoint whipped out a pistol, emptied it without hitting anyone and then grabbed a gun from another policeman.

Officer H. C. Kiel shot the Negro six times before he fell.

School Unit To Accept U.S. Aid

The Dade County School Board overcame its distrust of federal aid Thursday and decided to accept come cash for science, mathematics, and language equipment.

The board agreed to match up to $132,224.54 worth of U.S. grants.

Lone holdout in the 4-1 vote to take money from the federal government was Board Chairman C. Raymond Van Dusen. Members Jess Yarborough and Helene Vosloh were absent.

C. T. McCrimmon cast the deciding vote in Thursday's action, which reversed two earlier refusals to accept federal aid on the grounds that it might involve U.S. control of local schools.

"I've studied it, and I can't find anything wrong with it," McCrimmon said.

The board approved an itemized list of equipment worth $264,449.08 for purchase under the National Defense Education act with Dade County and the U.S. splitting the bill.

However, the exact amount of the sum it will actually spend depends on how much of Florida's $371,302 share of the national grant will be earmarked for Dade by the State Board of Education.

Heading the list is $18,729.02 worth of chemistry, physics, and biology lab equipment most of which will be used to furnish laboratories at the county's two newest high schools, Palmetto and Miami Norland.

Miami OKs Roadblocks

A resolution offered by Commissioner Otis W. Shiver which "condemned and disapproved" the controversial "license check points" was defeated three to two.

Mayor Robert King High cast the other vote to abolish the blocks.

11 Civic Leaders Named Dade Planning Advisers

Will Hold 'Veto' Over Development

By LEO ADDE
Herald Staff Writer

Metro commissioners named 11 civic leaders Wednesday to serve as the county's first "planning advisory board," which will have virtual veto power over Dade development plans.

Each commissioner made one nomination. Their selections become final, Chairman Walter Weiss pointed out, after the nominees accept and the commission formally approves the list Tuesday.

The nominees, their civilian professions, and their terms in office:

Three years: Edward T. Reeder, architect; Abney Cox, farmer; J. Mark Stanley, insurance and investment executive; Anthony Abraham, automobile agency owner.

One year: Jay Morton, Hialeah publisher; Emil Gould, land developer; Bennet Lifter, attorney and land developer.

Names were drawn from a basket to determine who would serve which of the staggered terms.

Metro law charges the non-paid planning advisory board with adoption of a "master plan" for Dade development. It will embrace "a coordinated, uniform plan for land use, traffic circulation and roads, public utilities, transportation, and public facilities such as schools, parks, playgrounds . . ."

The Metro Commission may disapprove parts of the plan and send it back for re-working by the advisory board. But the final language of the plan will be the work of the advisers.

Appointees to the board are not disqualified from doing business with the county through their private businesses, County Attorney Darrey A. Davis advised the commission.

This is a list of each commissioner's nominee:

Alex Gordon (Lifter), Robert Haverfield (McCune), Ben McGahey (Ryder), Arthur Patten (Stanley), Edwin Mason (Reeder), Charles Hall (Wolfson), Walter Weiss (Cox), Ralph Fossey (Gould), Joe Boyd (Morton), John McLeod (Wolfarth), Faris Cowart (Abraham).

Boyd observed that "this advisory board will almost run the county."

"Elected officials are never as respected as appointed ones like these," Boyd added. "We may find it hard to disagree with whatever they advise."

No commissioner offered any objections to another's nominee. Fossey, Haverfield and Boyd said they preferred a different method of nomination — each commissioner submitting a list, and the final 11 selected from the 50 or more nominees.

Skyscraper Apartment Given OK

Paves Way for 'City of Future'

By JOHN MORTON
Herald Staff Writer

The Miami Commission Wednesday approved the city's first skyscraper apartment house in a bayfront residential area opening the way for the downtown city of the future.

After nearly one year of discussion, the panel rezoned a portion of the Point View area in Brickell for construction of the big luxury buildings.

The first project scheduled in the area—bayside property bounded by SE 14th St. and 15th Rd.—is a two million dollar, 13-story co-op apartment house.

Real Estate Agent Russell Eastman, a local spokesman for investors behind the project, said plans and specifications were being completed.

He predicted the building would be finished and ready for occupancy by December this year. The structure is designed for more than 100 apartment units, lavish landscaping, a swimming pool and parking facilities.

The decision also marked the beginning of a new type of zoning especially for the "high-rise" apartments.

It was a step long-predicted by real estate men and research economists.

Harold Toal, an executive with First Research Corp., last summer predicted that a huge portion of the area's future population would live in skyscraper apartments ringing the central business district.

The commission's Wednesday action brought reports that local real estate interests are considering three or four more of the tall apartments in the Point View area.

Three Gables Seniors Make 'Young Scientist' Honor List

By JOY REESE SHAW
Herald Staff Writer

> "The cradle is the starting point of a scientist. The spark begins with heredity. It is nurtured by environment": A. Abbott Messler, chairman, science department., Coral Gables High School.

Seventeen years ago, nature produced a pair of future scientists. A year later, she added another.

Tuesday, the three Coral Gables High School seniors were named to Westinghouse's honor list of the nation's "top young scientists of 1959."

They were the only Miami winners among 127 seniors selected from 4,274 stellar students across the country.

It skims off the top 10 per cent, on the basis of examinations and projects, and supplies their names to universities and colleges.

The Miami winners: Tony Rossman, 17, son of Mrs. Yolanda Rossman, 7790 Miller Dr.; Neil Orin Fiertel, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Fiertel, 537 Marmore Ave., and Peter Fischer Conklin, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Steward Conklin, 410 Marmore Ave.

"Just a coincidence," said Peter, who moved to Miami from Cincinnati in August.

He's a quiet, blond youth whose father is a comptroller at Burdine's and makes a hobby of electronics.

Peter developed a new-fangled number system based on "two times the square root of minus one," in case you readers really want to know.

He figures it could be useful in calculating machines of the future, furnishing more types of numbers. His paper: "The Imaginary Binary System."

Photography is Neil's hobby and his project was termed "Crystal Clumping in an Ionic Reaction Is Related to Temperature." Certainly, this has to do with photography. It affects the developing processes and could lead to sharper definition and stronger contrasts in pictures — should shutterbugs heed it.

Tony is a guy who likes mathmatical logic. He figured it might be useful for educators to know a thing or two about "Secondary School Treatment of Theory of Sets and Theory of Probability."

Probability?

Well, you see . . . if you flip four coins, the probability is that they'll fall two heads and two tails most of the time.

A dark-haired boy in a red pullover, Tony furrowed his brow and scribbled hieroglyphics on the blackboard. According to formula, the coins would fall that way 37 per cent of the time, three tails and one head 25 per cent of the time, and all tails or heads, 6 per cent of the time.

Of course, this has little to do with his paper. It was just an example, he explained.

All three boys hope to go to Harvard. They've been interested in science "forever."

"I gave a lecture in astronomy in the third grade," laughed Tony.

Their interests center about science but expand beyond it. Peter enjoys debating. Tony was a member of last year's track team, is president of his Hi-Y Club.

Neil's a whiz at chess, has a mineral collection — including diamonds and rubies from South America — and speaks German and Spanish.

This'll Floor Ya--

Condensation's to Blame For Your Damp Problem

No, lady, your floor hasn't sprung a leak, your house is not sinking, and you don't need water wings.

All this encouraging news came Wednesday from the Miami Weather Bureau.

It went to scores of puzzled, woebegone homeowners with damp "sweating" floors — terrazzo, concrete and tile.

The explanation: Condensation.

But troubled housewives were hard to convince. The Weather Bureau alone received about 25 calls.

James C. Fox, of 4051 E. 8th Ave., Hialeah, insisted the puddles were a half inch deep in spots. "I was about ready to sue the contractor," he said.

But the Weather Bureau's Martha Spector said: "That cold weather last weekend started the trouble."

"Those stone slabs got cold. They stayed cold, not warming up nearly as fast as the air.

"The humidity the past two days has been unusually high. The lowest Wednesday was only 77 per cent. And then with the abrupt change to warm temperatures (80 Wednesday) a film of moisture forms on some floors."

It happens infrequently, Miss Spector said, and goes away just as soon as the weather gets colder or drier.

Protest Ball Diamond Noise

Residents Complain They're 'Out' at Home

By PHIL MEYER
Herald Staff Writer

Window-shattering foul balls and hordes of unruly children have ruined a previously "quiet and serene neighborhood," two North Miami residents told the Dade School Board Thursday.

Cause of the trouble is small-fry baseball played at at night on the Benjamin Franklin Elementary School grounds, said E. M. McLemore, 1265 NW 134th St., and Mrs. Edith Fetscher, 1285 NW 134th St.

"There are no sanitary facilities at the field, and people keep knocking on our doors and asking to use the bathroom," McLemor complained.

Mrs. Fetscher said she is plagued by pint-sized Little League fans who peek in her windows, tromp on her shrubbery, and swear at her daughter.

"I've submitted bills to the city for three broken windows and got no results," she said.

The trouble began last May when lights were installed on the part of the field near her home, she told the board. Since then the area has been used by teams in the Little League, Pony League, the Babe Ruth League, and the American Legion League.

Joe Ludick, president of the North Miami Amateur Baseball Association, which leases the field from the school board, said steps were being taken to correct the situation.

"We're going to remove one of the bleachers and ban parking in front of Mrs. Fetscher's home," he said. "The Little League season only lasts a month and a half anyway."

Board members said they were powerless to grant the request to ban night games, but promised to reexamine the situation when the baseball association's lease comes up for renewal.

Says Pair Stole Haiti Notes

Deputy's Sister Tells of Murder Try

By BOB HARDIN
Herald Staff Writer

Two men tried to kill her for her dead brother's notes, the sister of a Metro deputy slain in Haiti's ill-fated revolt has told police.

They made her take an overdose of sleeping pills on Jan. 9, The Herald learned Wednesday.

Mrs. Florence Turner, sister of Deputy Dany Jones, thinks one of the men "may be, or may have been, a deputy," it was learned.

But she later told a reporter she could not be sure.

The stolen notes may hold the key to the July 29 revolt attempt, and the death of Jones, which authorities say may have been a murder, after the Miami-based revolution.

Police reports show the men barged into Mrs. Turner's home, at 591 W. 37th Pl., Hialeah, about 7:30 p.m. Jan. 9.

Mrs. Jones said: "What do you want?"

"You know what we want," she said one of them replied.

"They told me finally they wanted Dany's notes," she told The Herald. "I gave them one set, but they wouldn't take them."

Mrs. Turner then gave the two men a set of notes she found recently — that police had not even seen, she said.

"I had not read them," she said. "But apparently they were what the two men wanted."

Shortly after the two men barged in, one of them said, 'Maybe her doctor has them (the notes),'" she said.

"I don't know why they would say that," she said.

Dr. Henry Valentine, Mrs. Turner's doctor, said:

"The whole thing is bizarre. I don't have anything to do with it one way or another, except that I am her doctor."

Mrs. Turner said her appeals to authorities for help have netted one turndown after another.

"I went to Hialeah police, Miami police, the FBI and the sheriff's department," she said.

Only the sheriff's department took any interest in the case — and no one has come out to talk to her about it, she said.

Mrs. Turner, younger sister of Jones, 28, said they were "very close," and Dany had left the notes with her for safekeeping.

Investigation of the death of Jones and Deputy Arthur Payne in the revolution attempt has been a vague, hushed-up affair thus far.

An autopsy showed that Jones was killed at least two days after death of the others involved in the revolt attempt.

Our Girls (It's the Makeup) Score With Mikoyan's Son

By Herald Wire Services

"The girls."

The 29-year-old Sergo gave that prompt answer to a Washington Star society reporter who chatted with him at a reception at the Soviet embassy.

"Ours (girls) are just as pretty as yours," he hastened to explain, "but you have the textiles and cosmetics."

The younger Mikoyan, a writer and editor for the Soviet magazine World Economics and International Relations, said:

But he added that he does not believe some news magazines reflect this—"especially U.S. News and World Report and Newsweek. Those are two I have noticed."

"I must say I like your newspapers," he went on. "They were all most friendly (in reporting on his father's visit) . . . They were fair."

Third Kovacs' Baby Is Due in Summer

Says Kovacs: "Edie and our two girls, Betty, 11, and Kip, 10, spent four hours the other day reviewing girls' names for their expected playmate, so I guess it will be a boy. He's due in June."

Randolph Mixes His Bournemouths

RANDOLPH CHURCHILL, son of Sir Winston Churchill, got a map of England and sallied forth to do battle for the Conservative seat in the House of Commons from Bournemouth East.

Churchill's campaign got off to a false start when he started politicking in the wrong district.

He called a press conference at the Five Star Royal Bath Hotel at Bournemouth to announce his arrival to "test the political temperature." He said he hoped the local voters would call on him to discuss the state of things in Bournemouth East.

"They won't come here," a reporter told him.

"Why not?" asked Churchill.

"Well, this is Bournemouth West."

Stan Freberg Gets Marriage License

Miss Andresen, 28, was Freberg's secretary. The marriage ceremony will be performed Saturday by Freberg's father, the Rev. Victor Freberg. The younger Freberg, whose novelty records have poked fun at everything from Lawrence Welk to Christmas commercialism, turned to advertising last year for the bulk of his income. He is 32.

Ducktail Haircuts Really a Poor Risk

"I HAVE FOUND that defendants with ducktail haircuts make poor risks on probation," said General Sessions Court Judge Bruce Littlejohn in York, S. C., last December.

Nevertheless the judge imposed one-year suspended sentences on Bennie Kimbrell, 19, and Richard Broome, 18, of Rock Hill, who had pleaded guilty to housebreaking and grand larceny. But, as a term of their probation, Judge Littlejohn ordered haircuts for the pair.

Last week, York County police caught Kimbrell and Broome taking auto parts from a spare parts yard in Rock Hill. Wednesday, General Sessions Court Judge George T. Gregory Jr. revoked their probations and sent them to the State Penitentiary. Both were again sporting ducktail haircuts.

Teller Just Pressed Alarm

Leon Harent

. . . 83, still plugging

DETROIT —(AP)— Leon Harent, who says he has spent 69 years of his life in jails across the country, walked into the National Bank of Detroit's main branch.

He handed a teller a note written on a piece of paper bag. The note said: "This is a holdup. I want $1,000 in small bills."

The elderly man's possessions at the time of his arrest included a pair of broken eyeglasses, a pocket knife, a safety razor and three razor blades.

"Is this all you've got to show for 83 years?" police asked.

"I've made progress," Harent replied. "When I was young they didn't have safety razors."

His Gold

It's Mental And Dental

DALLAS, Tex. — (UPI) — D. E. Jones is returning to his $50-a-week job in a Corsicana, Tex., service station, ending a hoax that began when he claimed to have found about two million dollars worth of gold bars in a berry patch.

Jones, 38-year-old father of eight children, told Secret Service men that the story was untrue, as a lie detector test had indicated earlier.

"The only gold I have is what's in my teeth," he said. "That cost $450 when the dentist put it in, but I've been losing teeth lately."

Jones could be fined $10,000 and-or given a five-year prison sentence for making a false statement to the government.

Natural Gas . . . will bring new industrial and domestic economy to Florida

This scene is becoming familiar throughout Florida. Perhaps you have seen it alongside a busy highway, in the outskirts of the city or even in your own backyard.

What you are seeing is part of the Houston Corporation's 1517 mile pipeline which will bring an abundant supply of natural gas to all of Florida.

The next time you see this scene, stop and take a second look, for in a few short weeks the men and equipment will be gone and in their wake will come vast new developments in Florida's industry and economy.

You Can Have an Ulcer, Too

Dig Deep Inside You—for Ulcer Cure

"The turning point for me came when I began to realize that the world could, if need be, get along without me," says the writer of his struggle with an ulcer. With the battle won, he tells about it in this article, last in a series.

By HERBERT KAMM

ALL RIGHT, so you've got an ulcer — or you've had one that persists in kicking up fairly regularly.

You can't smoke, or drink, or eat what you want without paying for it with pain. You stick pretty much to bland foods when everybody else around you is enjoying the delights of a normal diet.

Even when you're away from the job or on vacation, you have to stay close to a supply of milk or make certain that there are some antacid pills in the pockets of every suit.

When you're at a party or out with the boys, you sometimes have to act like a first-class hypochondriac, because you know that if you let yourself go, you're likely to come down with the miseries or win a free ride back to the hospital.

* * *

Tried Everything, And Still It Hurts

YOUR DOCTOR has tried every medication in the book for you, but they're only temporarily effective, at best. Comes the spring, or fall, or a family crisis, or a particularly trying period of work — anything at all that produces aggravation or stress — and you begin to feel stabs and twinges of pain in the abdomen.

But you can lick it. It's not easy, but it can be done.

As an ulcer graduate cum laude — my duodenal ulcer was diagnosed 20 years ago — I qualify as something of a lay authority on the ailment. The testimony which follows may not be the answer to your own case if you've got an ulcer or you're bucking for one. But it ought to help.

The turning point for me came when I began to realize that the world could, if need be, get along without me. It was a terrible blow to my ego, but the bitter pill was considerably more palatable than bland diets and sour medicines. I had developed my ulcer with a distinction so typical of the breed:

Worked long hours, took my work home with me, worried about small things, smoked excessively, ate irregularly and drank gallons of coffee. Started to get "heartburn" and cussed the druggist when bicarb didn't help. When my wife suggested I see a doctor, I gave her the now-isn't-that-just-like-a-woman routine.

* * *

I Bawled Myself Out Occasionally

SO ONE DAY they took me to the hospital.

Well, they cured me. But the real cure didn't set in until I got at the basic cause of my misery: Me.

What makes a person change his outlook, his habits, his thinking? How does the transformation come about?

It's hard to say. I know it didn't happen overnight. But I know it helped to give myself an occasional bawling out — and I did it out loud when no one was around. Instead of imprisoning my emotions—emotions that make the nervous and digestive system go into flips — I blew off steam. No tantrums, mind you. Rather like letting air out of a tire.

A change in perspective came about, too. The things that seemed so important in the past no longer seemed so important. I began to give more concern — but quiet, comforting concern — to the things around me that really mattered most.

It has been quite an experience. From time to time, I'm still reminded that I used to have an ulcer. You can't after all, completely isolate yourself from the abrasions of living. But I have found that self-discipline succeeds where everything else fails.

* * *

The Sufferer Has Too Much Control

IF YOU DON'T want to take my word for it, harken to the advice of Dr. S. H. Kraines of Chicago, writing recently in the Illinois Medical Journal.

"One element is surprisingly common in patients who develop ulcers," says Dr. Kraines. "That is their inability to relieve tension, their over-control of emotions."

Nervous tension, he adds, makes the brain stimulate the adrenal glands above the kidneys; the glands, in turn, pour out hormones that make the stomach produce excess acid, and the acid eats into an ulcer like salt into a wound.

The doctor lists the following as the most common kinds of nervous tension that trigger ulcers:

An excessive sense of responsibility.

Driving ambition.

* * *

And Here's Advice For the Physician

IF THESE SOUND like you, then you've got some work ahead of you — on yourself.

Dr. Kraines also has some advice for physicians which is worth noting as a further aid toward understanding yourself.

Doctors, he says, should lend "a sympathetic and understanding ear" to ulcer victims, because "there is great value to the patient in getting things off his chest." At the same time, the patient may unconsciously spill the beans about what's really eating him. Thus, it may be possible to show him how to reduce emotional tension so the ulcer won't kick up so much.

There are many people with a predisposition to ulcers who never get one because they're lucky enough to lead a smooth, successful life.

For the person who does get one, it's worth the pain if it helps him realize the relationship between his mind and his stomach — not by giving him something new to worry about, but by helping him learn to handle his troubles in a calmer more mature way.

If I can do it, so can you.

Bids 'Too Low' On Metro Cars

The county still owns the five air-conditioned 1957 model cars formerly assigned to Metro commissioners. The 20 sealed bids for them which were opened were too low, Metro commissioners said.

Offers ranged from $800 to $1,311.

The board voted to sell them at public auction "as soon as legally possible."

More School Camps Seen

By ADON TAFT
Herald Religion Editor

Hundreds of public school-operated summer camps for youths were forseen here Wednesday by a representative of the organization which pioneered summer camps in this country.

He is the Rev. Dr. Charles Noble, dean of the chapel at Syracuse University and a director of the New York State YMCA. He will be the speaker for the annual YMCA banquet tonight at the Wesley Foundation of the University of Miami.

"The summer camp is being recognized as America's unique contribution to education," said Dr. Noble. "Thousands of camps will be operated by public schools before long."

In talks at the banquet tonight, it will be reported that during the past year a new building has been purchased for the Carver Branch of the "Y"; that more than 38,000 persons took part in "Y" programs in this area; that more than 600 boys — 200 more were turned away for lack of space—attended "Y" summer camps here, that the "Y" program in the area operated on a budget of $371,235 for the year.

A report on plans for the coming year will disclose that the main emphasis will be on extending services in the area from South Miami to Homestead.

Good for Employes and Bosses Alike

Winter Vacations Catching On Up North

By JAMES RUSSELL
Herald Business Editor

Two young telephone operators from Dayton, Ohio, are soaking up Miami Beach sunshine as part of a planned campaign to prove that winter vacations are fine for workers as well as bosses.

Janet Pack and Joan Monnin work for Ohio Bell Telephone Co., which is plugging winter vacations in its monthly magazine (circulation: 30,000) and in bulletin board posters.

The winter vacation of Janet and Joan will be chronicled in picture and prose in a four-page spread in the February issue of the magazine. A writer accompanied then, on the trip down here.

Aside from entertainment, the article has a practical purpose — to show how the average phone company employe can vacation in the winter time on a worker's salary.

Why should a big business firm push winter vacations?

"Because when all the employes take their vacations in the summer, it creates a terrific scheduling problem for management," said Vera Kinsler of Ohio Bell's public relations department.

"We're trying to make the idea of winter vacations more desirable by playing up the fact that you can come to Miami Beach on a budget and have a good time with your two weeks vacation pay."

Janet and Joan are paying $60 a week for a room they share in the Blue Waters Hotel. The round-trip airline ticket cost each of them $108.

WINTER VACATIONS ARE FUN

Ohio Bell Vacation Suggestion
... here's a real benefit to Florida

Is it worth it?

"Yes, we're having a wonderful time," they said.

They can hardly wait to show off sun tans to the other girls on the switchboard in Dayton.

The winter vacation idea is not sweeping the business world in any sense, but it's spreading—even in Miami.

"As we expand, it's getting to be practically impossible to crowd all the vacations into the summer months," the personnel manager of one big local firm said.

As a consequence, this firm is inviting its employes to take their vacations in the fall or winter.

Many industries, however, have their slack periods in the summer and they either shut down or taper off enough to give hot-month vacations to all workers.

Radio Corporation of America has a firm policy of scheduling vacations between April and November. Union Carbide says some of its employes take winter vacations but there is no set rule on it. General Electric often has two-week shutdowns during the summer in some of its plants and thereby solves the vacation problem with one fell swoop.

One big objection to the winter vacation is that it is inconvenient for workers with school age children.

"The result is," said President S. K. Foster, "that by natural selection the vacations are spaced out pretty well throughout the year and our departments are never shorthanded."

Some other businesses here—like banks—are busy in winter and slack in summer and thus urge summer vacations.

"Besides," said one Miami bank vice president, "who working here would want to go anywhere else in the country in the winter time?"

"Well, no one," answers a Miami Beach booster, "but we certainly want the people working elsewhere in the country to come down here in the winter."

Joblessness Only Sour Note

Business in New And Solid Cycle

By SYLVIA PORTER
Financial Analyst

We have passed out of the phase of recovery from the 1957-58 recession, the sharpest but also shortest of the post-World War II period.

SYLVIA

We are now solidly into a new cycle of growth to all-time records in production, incomes — and eventually to full employment. We will be at the doorway of a half-trillion dollar economy by the end of this year.

We should be crossing this milestone mark of 500 billion dollars a year in production of goods and services at the beginning of next year, which is also the start of the spectacular '60s.

Every yardstick the experts have developed over the years for measuring swings in our economy says this in unmistakable terms. If we can rely on those yardsticks—and we have nothing else on which to rely except hunch and guesswork—there is no doubt about where we are and where we are heading.

This is not a runaway rise. There is no sparkling exuberance to it as there was in the boom of 1955.

In fact, the pace of the upswing is obviously leveling off right now. No longer are we climbing at the fast speed of the fall and pre-Christmas weeks. We couldn't maintain that speed of rise without blowing through the roof.

A jobless total of over four million at this stage of the economic advance and before the season when unemployment always mounts is the weak, the sick part of the situation. But nevertheless, the overall economic picture is one of strong, persistent growth.

From time to time in this space I have reported to you on the key indicators of business upswings and downswings, pinpointed through decades of study by the National Bureau of Economic Research, and now being further refined by Dr. Geoffrey Moore of that bureau. Here's an up-to-date rundown on what those indicators are showing.

THE LEADERS—Indicators which telegraph an economic change long before it becomes obvious and which were flashing the start of recovery during the worst weeks of the slump in early 1958.

New orders for durable goods, up; average workweek in manufacturing, lengthening; new business incorporations, up; industrial stock prices, up; liabilities of business failures, down; contracts for new houses, up; contracts for nonresidential building, sagging a bit; commodity prices, steady to down.

COINCIDING SERIES—Indicators which reflect an economic trend when it is clearly underway.

Corporate profits, powerfully up; turnover of demand deposits outside New York City, up; industrial production, up; gross national product, up; nonfood wholesale prices, fairly steady; employment; down; unemployment, up.

THE LAGGERS—Indicators which start moving favorably or unfavorably well after a trend has been established.

Personal incomes, temporarily off from a new record; retail sales, up; interest rates, up; installment credit, turning up after prolonged sluggishness; manufacturers' inventories, also rising after a period of major liquidation.

Pan Am May Buy British Jet Liners

LONDON —(UPI)— De Havilland Aircraft Co. hopes to sell its Comet jet airliners to Pan American World Airways, a company spokesman said.

"We have been having talks with them for a very long time and quite naturally we are very keen to enter the American market," he said.

It was understood one of De Havilland's top selling points at the moment was the promise of quick delivery. The spokesman said orders for the four-jet Comet IV placed within the next couple of months could be filled by nearly 1960.

He said current orders from B. O. A. C. were running "two months ahead, which means we could increase production considerably."

Pan American now uses the Boeing 707 long-range jet airliner and presumably would use the short to medium range Boeing 720 jets on other routes as they become available. However, it was understood that speedier delivery from De Havilland gave the British firm a sales edge.

The Comet IV carries 60 first class passenger or 76 tourist class passengers. The Boeing 720 will carry between 110 and 149 passengers.

Foster to Speak

Warren Foster of Atlanta, sales executive with the Coca Cola Co., will address the Florida Central Credit Union at its annual meeting tonight at the Miami Womans' Club, 1737 N. Bayshore Dr.

Snuffers Sniff Less, Pay More

NEW YORK —(DJ)— An increase in the dollar sales of snuff helped United States Tobacco Co. earnings climb an estimated 5 to 7 per cent in 1958, the company reported.

Robert J. Kohberger, secretary-treasurer, said snuff is U.S. Tobacco's biggest income producer. Snuff sales increased in dollar volume during 1958, but dropped in unit volume.

The increase in dollar value was the result of a mid-year price boost.

At one time, snuff volume represented two-thirds of all U.S. Tobacco's sales, Kohberger said, but the ratio has declined as other tobacco products rose in popularity.

Travel Tax Ban Urged By Fascell

Herald Bureau

WASHINGTON — Repeal of the 10 per cent tax on domestic travel was called for in a bill introduced by Rep. Dante Fascell of Miami.

A similar bill has already been introduced in the Senate by Sen. George Smathers.

"Only persons who desire or have to travel within their own country have to pay this tax," Fascell told the House.

"It is a discriminatory tax on the lower income groups. Three out of 10 people can't afford automobiles and have to depend on public conveyances for transportation."

Fascell said the tax was enacted as an emergency measure during World War II to discourage non-essential travel.

"Thirteen years after the end of the war," Fascell said, "it is serving the same purpose — discouraging travel."

Fascell said repeal of the tax would be appropriate in view of the proclamation by President Eisenhower of 1959 as "visit the U.S. year."

Industry Show to Feature Missiles

Missiles and space equipment loaned by the Air Force will be on display at Dinner Key Auditorium March 6-15 during the Greater Miami Industrial Exhibition.

The exhibit, which gives Dade manufacturers an opportunity to display their products is being held for the 10th year.

A-Bomb May Blast Oil

Dow Jones, AP, UPI

Richfield Oil Corp. may try this year to blast oil from a two-million-acre Canadian preserve with an underground atomic bomb explosion.

Company officials will meet next week with the Canadian cabinet to discuss the proposal.

Richfield leases approximately two million acres of tar sands in the Athabaska area from the Alberta Provincial government.

Atomic Energy Commission tests have indicated that underground nuclear explosions may be of value in extracting oil from tar sand and oil shale. Tar sands are solidified oil deposits trapped in sand near the earth's surface.

GEORGIA POWER CO. reports it will invest more than 58 million dollars in new facilities this year, including a 14-million-dollar dam on the Chattahoochee River near Columbus, Ga.

* * *

PRIVATE INDUSTRY'S biggest nuclear research reactor is now in operation at Plainsboro, N.J. Built by 10 leading industrial firms at a cost of 4.5 million dollars, it will be used solely in connection with their research.

ELECTRICITY PRODUCTION tapered off slightly last week but still maintained a level 7.5 per cent above the same week last year.

* * *

MANDATORY QUOTAS on companies importing crude oil and petroleum products may be imposed next month, a leading spokesman for the domestic oil industry predicts.

* * *

LIFE INSURANCE companies face increases of 185 million dollars a year or more in federal taxes. The House Ways and Means Committee has started work on a Treasury proposal to boost the payments to the government on 1958 income to about 500 million dollars.

* * *

J. P. MORGAN AND CO. says it sees no violation of anti-trust laws in its proposed merger with Guaranty Trust Co. of New York. The Justice Department has asked for and received details of the plan.

WEST INDIES SUGAR CORP. has a fighting chance to harvest a sugar crop now that the Cuban revolution is over, but the company doesn't expect any "gold mine" this year, the annual meeting was told.

* * *

DOW CHEMICAL CO. announced it has begun marketing small quantities of a new synthetic textile fibre named Rovana. The fibre, made from natural gas and salt, is similar to the company's Saran fibres and is intended for use in household and industrial fabrics.

* * *

SHICK INC. has lowered the suggested retail prices on its electric razors effective March 9. The action could mean a 15 to 29 per cent drop in the price you would pay for an electric razor.

$12.6 Million

Foreign Trade Jumps

Foreign trade rose 12.6 million dollars in Florida during 1958, the Department of Commerce reported.

Only Florida and North Carolina among the six southeastern customs districts showed increases in both imports and exports.

The combined value of exports fell 338.3 million dollars, or 11.9 per cent, in the southeast, against 11.4 per cent for the nation as a whole.

In Florida, the total rose from 577.6 million dollars in 1957 to 590.2 million dollars in 1958.

Exports fell from 371.4 to 366.7 million dollars, but imports rose from 206.2 to 223.5 million dollars, the department said.

U.S. FIRE LOSS RISES

Superior Oil Jumps 85 Points

NEW YORK — (AP) — The stock market gathered renewed strength after an uncertain start Wednesday and carved out another historic peak.

Steels, oils, aircrafts and airlines put on a sturdy performance. Rubbers, tobaccos, chemicals, drugs and assorted issues joined them on the upside. Rails declined and nonferrous metals were mixed.

Trading interest picked up as prices strengthened. Volume was 3,940,000 shares compared with 3,680,000 Tuesday.

Among the better-known stocks, gains ranged from fractions to 2 or 3 points. An ultra-blue chip, Superior Oil of California, made a new high as it soared 105 points, closing with a net gain of 85 points.

Wall Streeters saw no particular news to account for the rise. After about three sessions of consolidation it looked like a renewal of investment and speculative interest.

Of 1,232 issues traded, 613 rose and 380 fell. There were 157 new highs for the year and 70 new lows.

Royal Dutch was the most active stock, up 1½ at 47 on 73,200 shares. Second was American Motors, off 1¼ at 40 on 60,200 shares. Third was Standard Oil (New Jersey), up 1½ at 58 on 52,400 shares.

American Stock Exchange prices rose with volume slackening to 1,970,000 shares from 2,020,000 Tuesday — very good turnover but not as much as some of the recent record-breaking sessions. Prices on the American were mostly higher.

Eddy Harth·BEATS

WILSHIRE TO COLLINS

The best of two sun-blessed states blend as Eddy Harth . . . featuring the newest of California men's wear for Miami's knowing males.

This is the first Eddy Harth venture from Beverly Hills where they are justly famed . . . but already Lincoln Road seems like home . . . so rapid has been Miami Beach's acceptance.

'Twixt Twelve and Twenty

Here's How to Live Better With Mom and Dad

Pat Boone has found four practical and helpful guides for creating better adult-teenager relations. They are discussed in this 12th installment of an exclusive serial of his best-selling book of advice for teenagers, "'Twixt Twelve and Twenty."

BY Pat Boone

Pat Boone Says

Parents often seem to worry too much and to be quite unreasonable. I know mine seemed that way until one night, when returning home late, I found Daddy waiting up for me. My mother was away from home at the time. He said there would always be one of them waiting for me. Then, as he started off to bed, he suddenly threw light on the whole situation. "You see, Pat," he said simply, "we care."

To many a teenager, the trouble with even the most normal parents is that they worry too much. They worry if we do the same things they did at our age, or they worry if we don't do them. They are afraid we won't take advantage of all the opportunities they missed. Most of all they seem constantly worried about our safety. Their worries make them say "no" to a lot of things unreasonably.

BOONE

From our viewpoint as teenagers we figure if we're old enough to be given the responsibility for baby sitting, cleaning house, doing the family shopping, driving cars, solving complicated problems in physics or algebra (and getting an A sometimes), why aren't we old enough to decide for ourselves things like what hour we should come home?

In our home it was Mama Boone who sat up waiting 'til I came in. My mother, as I've already said, has a temper which flares quickly; and if I were a little late, and worried her only a little, it sputtered up like a match and went out. But if I were a lot late, and she worried a lot, her relief at seeing me all in one piece didn't put out the three-alarm fire which flared when she thought of the needless anxiety I'd put her through.

I often resented this concern of hers about me until one Saturday night when Mama was in Jacksonville, Fla., visiting her folks and Daddy was left in charge. I figured Daddy was a sensible man and would go peacefully to bed because he always got up at five-thirty or six every a.m. to spend an hour preparing for his popular Sunday school class. Anyway, it was one-thirty when Don Henley and I drove up to my house and saw a light still burning downstairs. This wasn't in the script so Don parked on down a way, and I sneaked back to look around.

Just as I pushed my face against the window to see what was doing inside, my dad pushed his face against it to look outside for signs of his wandering boy—and there we were, nose to nose. That sudden view of Daddy's worried face startled me so that I yelped and ran halfway back to Don's car. But of course I just had to turn around and go inside and face what was coming.

It wasn't much. Daddy wasn't a great one for fireworks. He explained that with Mama away the responsibility for seeing that I was safely in fell on him. He said that Mama usually did it, not because women worry more, but because she felt it was part of her job and he needed sleep. He then said there would always be one of them waiting up for me.

It was just as he started off to bed that he turned and said the few words which suddenly threw light for me on the whole situation. "You see, Pat," he said simply, "we care."

There was the answer to that question, "Why all the worrying?" It was "We care!"

Our Parents Really Care

MOST OF THE rules parents make, whether we think them right or wrong, don't stem from meanness, or narrow-mindedness, or wanting to spoil our fun. They are made because our parents care what happens to us.

It costs parents something to stick by their guns for your welfare!

A mother I know in California was having a good deal of a hassle with her rugged 13-year-old son about homework. Finally she decreed that he had to come straight home after school and could not go out and play ball until the homework was finished.

One afternoon her son came in and announced with a triumphant grin, "Well, you won't be able to make me do my homework today. We're supposed to write a tribute to Mother for Mother's Day and even you won't force me to pay you one."

"You're only half right," said his mother. "You can write anything about me you like, but you're going to do your homework. I happen to like you well enough to see that you do what's right even if it hurts me."

Well, there was a lot of dark muttering, but "A Tribute to Mother," by George Kennahan, got him an "A" in school and was purchased and published by Guideposts Magazine. This homework essay shows how much we can understand about our parents if we really try, even at 13.

Mother Knows What's Best

There is a time in every boy's life when you think your mother is nothing but a traffic cop because she will not let you have all the freedom you want.

My mother always says, "You are lucky I was a child before I was a mother." By this I think she means she knows what we are going through and wants to set us straight before someone else does, someone who might not be so sympathetic.

Mothers never even get a day off and don't even have a minimum wage. There is no Mother's Union to protect her from long hours, hard work, and order a vacation with pay. Therefore I think we should give our mothers all the respect we can and not only on Mother's Day.

Personally I am very glad I will never be a mother.

Here are a few concrete suggestions I'd offer for getting along with normal parents.

ONE: Try a little empathy: Empathy means putting yourself in the other guy's shoes and trying to see and feel as he does to understand him better.

* * *

Parents Were Young Once

TWO: Give your parents credit for having once been young: If you think they've forgotten their teenage days, try to recall it by asking questions about their youth (not sarcastic questions, but honest, interested ones!) Discuss what they thought, did, what problems they faced, how their parents handled them. It may give you a clue to what they are thinking and feeling regarding your teenage days.

Once you have got your clue, you can then explain that no two people were ever created alike and that these are the things which interest you. If you can touch a memory chord while you are both thinking in these teenage terms there will be a closeness and understanding which cannot happen any other way.

THREE: Dime Insurance; This is a simple, practical step which works wonders with worried parents. In our circle it started with a mother who had once worked on a newspaper. A newspaper "must" is to call the city desk after every assignment. She said one of the most interesting things she learned was that there were telephones all over town — in movie houses, gas stations, drive-ins, private homes, schools — that any child of 10 could learn to use.

When her son went out she handed him a dime to put in his shoe. "Now that is my dime," she'd say. "It is to be used only to call me. If you call me a few minutes before you are due home, tell me where you are, how much longer within reason you expect to be, I'll give you that much grace because I won't worry." It worked so well a lot of guys and gals adopted this method. It's another case of courtesy or consideration for others oiling the machinery of good human relations.

FOUR: Try to imagine life with a different set of parents: I actually knew a pair of girls once who exchanged parents for a brief period. Each had been singing the virtues of the other's parents at home. The mothers met and compared notes at a PTA meeting. These very intelligent women decided to let the girls have a taste of what the other's home life was like. You can imagine what happened.

Eaton to Present School Auto Bill

By JOHN BOYLES
Capitol Bureau Chief

EATON

TALLAHASSEE — State Sen. Joe Eaton of Miami told the legislative conference of the Florida Parent-Teachers Association Wednesday he will introduce a bill to prohibit licensing of drivers under 18-years-old unless the applicant has passed a driver training course in high school.

Eaton said he hoped it will be one of the safety measures adopted by the Legislative Council for the 1959 session, "but if they don't present it, I will introduce it anyway."

The Miami senator asserted "insurance people and the press have campaigned to make citizens more aware of the safety picture, and I think there will be a great deal of support in the Legislature for good traffic laws."

He said 34,000 were hurt, 1,117 killed, and property damage totaled $139,000,000 last year as a result of auto accidents.

Eaton, chairman of the Legislative Council's Traffic Safety Committee, said all schools will be required to offer driver education courses.

"Most of our schools now do, but there is no incentive for students to enroll, because they can get a driver's license at 16. A law requiring training would be a powerful incentive to take the course," Eaton said.

Cost of the education program would be paid by increasing drivers' license fees from $1.25 to $1.75.

Parking Lot Forced Shut

The Miami zoning enforcement division has closed the Garden Restaurant's rear parking lot after a Zoning Board member complained it was in use for a year in violation of zoning regulations.

Ellis Knox, building department director, said his enforcement personnel issued an order for the restaurant, 2235 SW Eighth St., to block up the lot "at once."

Owner Jack Horlick said, "It just means that my employes will have to park on SW Seventh St. I have to save the space in the lots on either side for customers."

Horlick said he would apply again to the zoning board to get the lot.

Carnival Today

The teenage council, sponsored by the Miami Beach Recreation Department, will have its annual carnival today from 1 to 10 p.m. at Ocean Front Auditorium, 10th St. and Ocean Dr., Miami Beach.

Supreme Court Knocks Out Law Curbing Naturopaths

By JOHN L. BOYLES
Capitol Bureau Chief

COLLINS

ERVIN

TALLAHASSEE—The State Supreme Court Wednesday knocked out the 1957 law curbing the practice of naturopaths, but Gov. LeRoy Collins said he will renew his fight against naturopathy in the 1959 legislature session.

"An awful lot of work has gone down the drain," Collins said when he learned of the court's decision.

The law prohibited the licensing of any new naturopaths and denied all but a handful the right to prescribe drugs.

Naturopathy is the treatment of disease by the use of herbs and physical therapy.

The court said in a unanimous opinion that the 1957 law is unconstitutional because it discriminated between classes among naturopaths, giving some the privilege to prescribe drugs but denying the right to others.

The governor said he assumed a petition for rehearing will be filed with the Supreme Court and withheld any definite statement on what action he will take until the final court mandate is handed down.

But he said, "It is a pretty good supposition" that he will ask the Legislature to put the naturopaths out of business completely in the upcoming session.

Collins said meanwhile he will ask Attorney General Richard Ervin for an opinion on the status of the old Board of Naturopathic Examiners which was abolished by the 1957 law. Powers of the board were transferred to the State Board of Health.

State Board of Health Attorney William Walker said the Supreme Court's refusal to uphold a Duval Circuit Court decision "puts us right back where we were two years ago."

Gov. Collins recommended that the 1957 Legislature completely abolish the practice of naturopathy in Florida. He based his recommendation on the results of an extensive probe which charged many naturopaths were graduates of diploma mills and were not properly trained to prescribe drugs.

After a bitter fight, the house passed a bill prohibiting the licensing of any new naturopaths but permitting those who had been practicing for two years to continue.

It also banned the prescribing of drugs by naturopaths which had been allowed under a Supreme Court interpretation of a 1957 law giving legal recognition to naturopathy as a healing art.

The Senate amended the House bill to permit naturopaths who had practiced in Florida for 15 years by Oct. 1, 1957 not only to continue practicing, but also to prescribe drugs.

Naturopaths have been outlawed in all but three states. Florida is the only state which allows them to prescribe drugs, including narcotics.

Although there were only about 350 naturopaths in Florida at their peak, they have long exerted a powerful lobbying influence in the legislative halls. Miami, Tampa, Jacksonville and St. Petersburg have the greatest concentration of naturopaths.

Bands Get OK To Leave U.S.

Two high school bands were given permission to leave the country Thursday by the Dade School Board.

The Miami Edison band will go to Manizales, Colombia, as guest of that city at a festival Jan. 26-30. Twenty-nine pupils, the director and two chaperones will make the trip by air.

The board also authorized the Miami Beach High School band to visit St. Andrews School in Nassau next May. The band will travel by ship and pay its own expenses.

DeMille's Films Drew 5 Billion Fans

By JAMES BACON
Associated Press Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. —(AP)— Cecil B. DeMille, who died Wednesday at 77, made more than 70 films, both directing and producing many.

He spent money like water, in amounts that awed even Hollywood's free-spending studio heads.

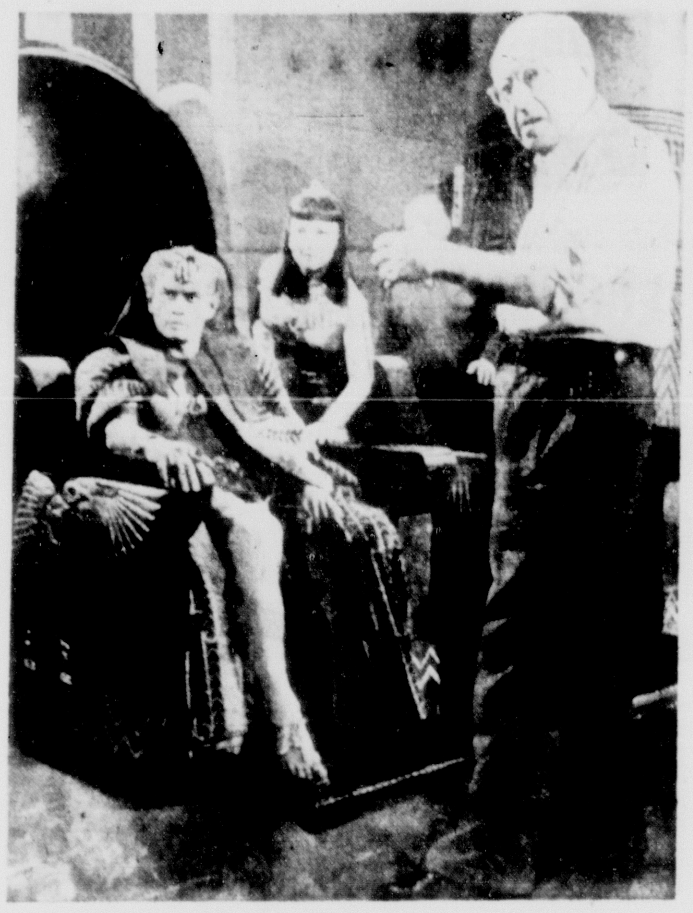
But it paid off. Picture after picture set boxoffice records. Several of his films became screen classics.

He was amazingly active right up until he was taken ill. The last film he actively produced was "The Ten Commandments." But he supervised production of "The Buccaneer" and was making plans for a new film about Lord Robert Baden-Powell, who founded the Boy Scouts.

DeMille entered show business as an actor. In 1912, at a luncheon with a glove salesman named Samuel Goldwyn and a vaudeville cornet player named Jesse Lasky, the three decided to take a fling at the new medium of motion pictures.

They formed a company, acquired rights to "The Squaw Man," and sent DeMille West to make it into a movie.

He rented half a barn in a pastoral suburb known as Hollywood—and the rest is history.



DeMille Making His Biggest Film
. . . with Yul Brynner and Anne Baxter on set of 'Ten Commandments'

DeMille, the late Lasky and Goldwyn became the moguls of Hollywood.

DeMille has estimated that his films have been seen by five billion people — or roughly twice the earth's population. Box office returns are nearing a billion dollars.

He was reared in a religious atmospere, and many of his films had religious themes. But they were judiciously larded with sex and excitement.

Among his best known productions:

"King of Kings," a silent movie about the life of Christ that still is being shown; "The Ten Commandments," in both silent and wide screen versions; "Male and Female;" "The Sign of the Cross;" "The Crusades;" "The Plainsman;" "Union Pacific;" "The Story of Dr. Wassell;" "Samson and Delilah," "The Greatest Show on Earth."

He developed more stars than any man in the business—and made himself as well known as any of them.

Among those whose careers he shaped in the early days: Gloria Swanson, Wallace Reid, Thomas Meighan, Agnes Ayres, House Peters, Jack Holt, Phillis Haver, Rod La Rocque, Richard Dix, H. B. Warner, Leatrice Joy.

Most of the top names in movies today have worked for him.

DeMille's stock in trade in the 1920's was domestic extravaganzas, featuring sex, sensation and finery and reflecting the post World War I loosening of moral standards. Some accused him of cheap sensationalism.

Next, keeping up with changing times, he turned to moralizing with "Commandments" his first in that field. Critics called him obvious, superficial, mechanical. But he remained a public favorite.

The best-known DeMille anecdote: In a crowd scene, with hundreds of extras, DeMille spotted a girl talking to a friend instead of listening to his instructions.

"Young lady," he boomed over the loudspeaker, "repeat for the benefit of all of us the supremely important message that caused you to ignore my directions."

The girl finally stammered: "I was just saying, 'I wish that baldheaded ——— would shut up and break for lunch.' "

Bergman and Rossellini Open Custody Fight

PARIS—(AP)—Ingrid Bergman and Roberto Rossellini laid their arguments before a French judge Wednesday in a suit to decide custody of their three children. Miss Bergman filed the action to keep the children in France.

The Swedish actress and her ex-husband, an Italian film director, faced one another solemnly at the Palace of Justice.

They were taken to the private chambers where the president of the court heard their pleas in private.

It was the first meeting for Rossellini and Miss Bergman since they met in Paris and Rome last year before her marriage in London to Swedish Theatrical Impresario Lars Schmidt.

The hearing was not public and the testimony is not a public record.

Two Crime Films Pack Excitement

IN BRIEF — Criminal action erupts in double feature as a small boy suffers through loyalty and a hardened prisoner seeks release through force.

By MARION AITCHISON
Herald Staff Writer

There's crime all over the screens in the two new pictures at the Paramount, Coral and Colony, the action of one taking place outside and of the other, inside of prison. They are "Johnny Rocco" and "Revolt in the Big House."

Movie Review

It starts off with a bang as two men and the son of one, heading North from Mexico in a hot car with illicit cargo, try to outrun a motorcycle policeman.

Seeing it's hopeless, one of the men — not the father of the boy — reaches from the passenger's seat, clams on the brakes and brings about the death of the policeman, who rams into the car.

Young Richard Eyer does a bang-up job in the title role of the boy whose terror brings on a speech impediment, even when he learns it wasn't his father who caused the accident.

Efforts of his teacher (Coleen Gray) to straighten him out with assistance of a priest and police officer bring tenderness to the story while the father (Stephen McNally) finds the boy means more to him than his criminal associates who fear the boy will "sing."

Gene Evans and Robert Blake take the starring roles in "Revolt in the Big House."

The title pretty well sketches the story of what happens when a criminal, lucky in acquittals up to then, is sentenced to 20 years and sets out to shorten his stay through aid from pals at liberty and behind the walls.

New Faces In Show Places

Additions to the Greater Miami entertainment scene slated for today will include the following:

I WANT TO LIVE—Award-winning film based on the real life tragedy of Barbara Graham, B-girl executed for murder, with Susan Hayward starred. At Loew's 170th and Riviera Theaters.

* * *

THE LAST BLITZKRIEG—Novel war story about German effort to infiltrate American lines in France, with Van Johnson as son of Nazi general selected to head the detail. At the Lincoln Theater.

* * *

MY WORLD LIES SCREAMING — Thriller, using what its producers call "4th dimensional" subliminal communication, coupled with LOST, LONELY AND VICIOUS, at the Florida.

* * *

CARILLON HOTEL — "French Dressing," Lou Walters' second revue of the season at Club Siam, featuring Singer Irene Hilda, the Richiardi in feats of levitation; Singer Don Garrard, Comedian Tun Tun, Piroski and others . . . LATIN QUARTER—Screen star Betty Grable and Comedian Jay Lawrence join Donn Arden's revue, "Sky High."

* * *

Liz Taylor to Talk with Tennessee Williams Here About Role

MORRIS LANSBURGH plans to let his Deauville Hotel Cavalcade Theater of the Stars (top acts in one-night stands free to guests of five hotels) gallop on for a month after its announced closing. New finale will be in mid-April and will be followed with a summer version called The Merry-Go-Round. Accent will be on outdoor activities — free to guests of the Lansburgh hotels. Incidentally, Jerry Lewis, who is scheduled to do a Cavalcade performance on March 12 will do two weeks of regular performances in the Deauville's open-to-the-public Casanova Room.

Elizabeth Taylor is here — or will be any day — for conferences with Tennessee Williams on her portrayal in the movie version of "Suddenly Last Summer" . . . Nelson Eddy and party ordered the mixed barbecue plate at Sam Sterling's Embers and Nelson, who is on the fair side, showed a preference for the dark meat . . . Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences has certified 396 pictures for Oscar award competition. And 124 of them were made abroad with 36 French and 54 English productions eligible for the prizes which will be awarded April 6.

DeMille Leaves Vacant Throne

Cecil B. DeMille is dead and this is one time it can not be said: "The King is Dead, Long Live the King!" For there will be no successor to the throne he has held in the cinema arts for a few years short of a half-century.

The press still remembers his charm and cordiality during a visit to Miami in 1951. This unit of the press received a "thank you" note from him after his return to Hollywood for what he termed our "courtesy" to him!

Full stories about Mr. DeMille will be found on Pages 1-A and 2-C.

Skelton Sends Jack Paar a Note

INCIDENTALLY, there are actually several forms of gambling going on openly in Havana: horse racing at Oriental Park, though the pay-offs are no better under the new regime; on the cock-fights, three days a week at each of the two big pits, and on the lottery. The last is due for some stern shaking-up!

Wrote Red Skelton, Fontainebleau show star, on a menu which he sent over to the Jack Paar-Tom Ferris table at Joe's Stone Crabs: "To Jack Paar the only man I allow in my bedroom after 11 o'clock." . . . Mrs. Marie "First Night Lady" Gross has moved into the Monte Carlo Hotel for the winter. Roulette Room (in name only) set to reopen with shows by end of the month.

KEY SCENE in "I Want to Live," the real-life story of Barbara Graham, the B-girl convicted of murder, frames Susan Hayward in the doorway of the death chamber. The film, which was awarded a "best" by the New York Film Critics, opens today at Loew's Riviera and 170th St. Theaters.

Meaning Sinatra's Home Town Afte r War

'Some Came Running' Sweeps Town

By GEORGE BOURKE
Herald Amusement Editor

Movie Review

"Some Came Running," at the Olympia, Beach and Gables Theaters, is a slick production of love and life among the people of a Midwest small town, with the accent on the former as Frank Sinatra has to decide between the vacillating ardor of a reserved schoolteacher and the pushover affection of a lass best described as a good-natured slob.

It is based, loosely we imagine from the viewpoint of one who has seen the bulky volume but has not read it, on James Jones's best-seller of a few seasons ago. It introduces Sinatra as a soldier returning from the wars to the home town which holds not too many pleasant memories.

The return is involuntary, stemming from the prank of his buddies who put him on a bus headed for what they knew to be his home town.

Once there he decides to stay a while, much to the dismay of a brother who has married well and to the satisfaction of a schoolteacher, who is interested in him as a novelist who had suddenly quit his craft.

Complications develop in both areas as Frank pursues romantic activities by habit, to the embarrassment of his brother's family, and later by the refusal of the school teacher to accept his sincere love.

The happenings are nicely handled by Director Vincent Minnelli until a final melodramatic smash-up which doesn't match the earlier tempo.

Every performance is a fine one. Sinatra plays the moody writer with more restraint than usual which gives Dean Martin, as his boozing, card-playing buddy, a chance at some polished scene-stealing.

Shirley MacLaine, as the trollop, turns in a performance that will be considered come Oscar nomination time and Arthur Kennedy is excellent as a typical small-town worshiper at the shrine of social opinion.

Martha Hyer has a tough characterization — because of its constant changes — as the frustrated teacher but does it well if not convincingly, and Betty Lou Keim, as a teenage niece; Nancy Gates, as a secretary, and Leora Dana, as the nagging wife, do nicely.

Actor Silva To Wed Writer

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — (AP) — Actor Henry Silva and writer Cynthia Conroy have announced their engagement.

He gave her the engagement ring. It will be her first marriage, and the second for Silva, who portrayed the dope pusher, "Mother," in the movie, "A Hatful of Rain."

"Most Exciting in 10 Years"

During the past few weeks since I have been back at the Monte Carlo I have had so many happy visits from fine folks staying in Miami Beach who have just learned where I am that I couldn't resist the urge to write an open letter hoping it will reach everyone I know.

To all my friends who are now in Miami Beach, I would like to say: "if you are in the neighborhood or have an opportunity to drop in for old-times sake, I would like the pleasure of showing you the Monte Carlo and the many wonderful things about it that brought me back as its Managing Director.

This is truly a great hotel. Over the years I have made literally thousands of friends here because of the fact that folks who looked for the best, received the finest . . . in food, entertainment, accommodations, daytime activities, and what's more important . . . warm hospitality. Every meal is a banquet . . . every hour joyously recreational. Every inch of decor, is spanking new . . . every service is most graciously rendered by the same dependable staff and personnel. It's a matchless combination!

Being back and renewing so many, many old friendships is the most exciting and, at the same time, the most gratifying event of my hotel career!

Looking forward to greeting you in person, I am cordially,

Harvey Weinberg

His Habit of Being Right Helped Change the World

By MIKE MORGAN
Herald Staff Writer

It is said of scholarly Dr. Franco Rasetti that the only time he was caught in an error was when he got into an argument with Enrico Fermi about the naming of the Mason-Dixon line.

Of this more later.

But in other areas of knowledge this thin, balding, wiry 58-year-old Italian scientist has been precisely right so often his achievements helped change the world.

—Herald Staff Photo

For Dr. Rasetti is one of that original team of five nuclear physicists, including Fermi, who made the basic discovery of "slow neutrons" which eventually led to successful building of atomic piles.

A vast percentage of all present-day nuclear technology stems from that immense discovery one October day in 1934 in Rome.

Though the most important, it is only one of several major contributions he made to nuclear science.

Dr. Rasetti is now winding up a short stint of teaching and research at the University of Miami. He will journey to Rome for more research—and then return to Johns Hopkins University where he holds a regular teaching post.

Dressed in a faded army shirt, a pair of wash-and-wear trousers, and looking more like the janitor of the place, he sat in an instrument cluttered room at the University's Physics building and reluctantly told about his work, about the day of the "slow neutron" discovery.

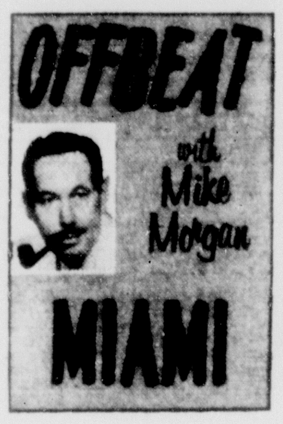
"We were tremendously excited and knew it was a milestone in scientific history.

"We didn't realize the practical significance — rather we didn't think it would lead to any practical significance for many years; maybe not in our lifetime."

A mild smile warmed his face. "But in any event there was such a possibility—and we took out a patent."

It was a canny precaution since the team was eventually awarded $300,000 by the U.S.

Although preeminent in the field of nuclear physics, Dr. Rasetti qualifies as an expert in such a diversification of subjects one wonders where he found time to do so much in so few years.



Honors enough for several distinguished careers have accrued to him.

For instance, he has a passion for geology which currently exceeds that of exploring mysteries of atomic particles.

Oddly enough, in physics he reaches into the future of science; but his explorations in geology deal with the Cambrian period — something less than half a billion years past in time.

He is one of the world's experts in the field of Cambrian period geology and has won significant awards for his work in it.

He took up, as a hobby, mind you, some work in paleontology. With only two years of fossil work behind him, he won an outstanding award which is given only once every three years.

Nor can one forget he is an entomologist of note. In Europe he has the finest collection of European beetles extant.

Also he is readying a book on Alpine flowers which will be illustrated with his own photos — he's a whiz with a camera.

Somewhat gentle in speech and action, physically the multi-faceted scholar is tough as a mountain goat—and climbs like one. Mountain climbing is his form of relaxation.

As a matter of fact, you name it and he probably is an authority on it—anything, that is. Including bridge.

He tactfully pointed out that a couple of the indigenous Florida orchids had been incorrectly identified. And he was right. What's more — he told the ranger where a rare orchid which was not in the collection could be found deep in the glades. And was right again.

Now about that Mason-Dixon error.

Some years before the world-famous Fermi died, Rasetti and Fermi were nearing the Mason-Dixon line on a trip.

Argument arose over the derivation of its name; a bet was made.

Rasetti contended it was named after a couple of rivers, the Mason and the Dixon.

"After all," he pointed out with academic logic, "A couple of lawyers COULD have become senators—but never a couple of rivers."

Skid Kills Miami Man

A Miami salesman was killed in Indiana Wednesday when his car skidded out of control on an icy highway and slammed into a parked truck.

Police at Delphi, Ind., identified the victim as Lionel D. Dobrin, 50, of 900 SW Third St. He is survived by his wife and child.

Police said Dobrin, a salesman for the New York firm of Harry Irwin, Inc., swerved on a hill near Delphi and apparently lost control of the car on the slick highway.

The car slid some 150 feet, police said, went off the road and collided broadside with a truck. The truck driver, Coy Abbott of Delphi, was not injured.

For Mentally Retarded

Children's Hospital Sought in Broward

Herald Service

TALLAHASSEE — Construction, in Broward County, of a million-dollar facility for treatment of psychotic and emotionally disturbed children, will be recommended to the legislature, Sen. J. Emory Cross of Alachua said Wednesday.

News About Florida

The senator said the interim committee on mental health, of which he is a member, will submit the request. The facility should have at least 48 beds, he said. He said the state now has no facilities for treating such children who are under 12 years old.

He told the annual state PTA Meeting a program for identifying mentally retarded children also was needed since "they number in the thousands."

The Sunland Training Center at Gainesville is caring for 1,000 retarded children and a new institution at Fort Myers for another 700. "But there are more than 1,000 on the waiting list," Cross said.

Choice of Bishop Due in July, 1960

JACKSONVILLE — A successor to Bishop John Branscomb, Methodist bishop of Florida and Cuba who died last week of a heart attack, will not be elected until next year.

C. M. Cotton, superintendent of the Jacksonville district of the Florida conference of the Methodist Church, said Wednesday bishops of the southeastern jurisdiction would meet in July, 1960, at Lake Junaluska, N.C., to name the new bishop.

Meanwhile, he said the College of Bishops of the southeastern jurisdiction will assign a member to fill the vacancy until the election.

Ex-Senator's Trial Begins

BARTOW — A jury was selected and testimony started Wednesday in the second trial of former State Sen. Harry King of Winter Haven on charges of perjury. He is accused of procuring false testimony before a Polk County Grand Jury probe of an alleged payoff to induce an opponent to withdraw from a Senate race.

A co-defendant, Pat Gordon, former Polk County sheriff, will be tried separately. Both were convicted in 1956, but the State Supreme Court reversed the verdict on appeal.

Collins Opposes Ike on 'Gas' Tax

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. LeRoy Collins expressed strong opposition Wednesday to President Eisenhower's call for a 1½-cent per gallon increase in the federal gasoline tax.

The President suggested an increase from 3 to 4½ cents a gallon to keep the interstate highway program, on which the federal government pays 90 per cent of the costs, on a pay-as-you-go basis.

Judge Accused As Drunk Driver

STUART — A Martin County judge, suspended by Gov. LeRoy Collins on charges of drunkenness and incompetence, was arrested last Wednesday on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

The case came to light yesterday when County Prosecutor T. T. Oughterson filed an information outlining the formal charges against Harris R. Lowery Jr., 42.

Lowery faces trial during the February term before County Judge Evans Crary Jr., named to the bench by Collins after the governor suspended Lowery Nov. 19.

19 New Principals Appointed

Nineteen new principals were appointed Thursday by the Dade County School Board to fill expected vacancies caused by retirements, deaths and resignations.

All will get specific assignments as vacancies occur. For most, this will be next September.

The list includes 14 elementary principals. They are:

Mrs. Sarah Edwards, curriculum assistant at Kensington Park; Leroy Fienberg, curriculum assistant at North Beach; Ruth Harless, librarian at Leisure City and West Laboratory; William Lang, physical education teacher at Morningside; Alan Lyon, teacher at South Miami, and Erwin B. Marshall, teacher at West Laboratory.

Robert Moloney, teacher at Twin Lakes; Irving Nissman, curriculum assistant at Biscayne; Ruth Overstreet, curriculum assistant at Redland; Fred Sewall, North Hialeah teacher; Alfred Solomon, South Miami Heights teacher.

William Tango, teacher at Biscayne Gardens; Katherine Walden, Cutler Ridge teacher; Sylvia Lambert, curriculum assistant at Holmes, and Walton Robinson, special education teacher at Booker T. Washington High.

Named to high school principalships were:

Thomas J. Smith Jr., dean of boys at Filer Junior High; Francis Haas, teacher at Miami Beach High; Steve Moore, dean of boys at Tech High, and E. K. Lockhart, teacher at Dorsey Junior High.

Teachers Ask Private Hearings

By PHIL MEYER
Herald Staff Writer

The Dade County School Board was asked Thursday to bar the public from hearings for suspended teachers.

No action was taken on the request made by the Classroom Teachers' Association.

"Unfavorable publicity" was given by CTA President Arvel Morgan as the reason for the request.

Morgan said publicity about suspended teachers creates "the impression with the general public that the teaching profession lacks something that is desired."

He said the initial hearing for any teacher should "be a private one regardless of whether the person involved requests a private hearing."

In recent months, only one formal hearing has been held for a suspended teacher. It was two weeks ago for Evelyn Gray, suspended for incompetence after Filer Junior High officials complained she couldn't keep order in class.

A decision on whether to fire her was delayed Wednesday at the request of the CTA which asked time to conduct its own investigation.

'Jubilee Of Dance' Is a Romp

By DORIS RENO
Herald Music Editor

Community Concert Association of Miami Beach opened its second season in Miami Beach auditorium Wednesday night with the Bambi Linn-Rod Alexander razzle-dazzle and romp which has been circulating throughout the country this winter under the label of "Dance Jubilee."

A Music Review

It is a light, zippy, very gay entertainment, unique as to content, and done awfully well.

Community Concert's audience of more than 3,000 members hadn't known quite what to expect, since the Dance Jubilee doesn't fit into any category — but the corridor-comment during intermission seemed to indicate that everybody was happy.

The production, which danced the history of the dance in this country from minstrel days on down to now, was well-planned, well-costumed, and timed to click off with Rockette precision.

The two principals, husband-and-wife, are excellent dancers who appear to shine brightest when dancing together.

Besides Bambi and Rod, the dancing cast included only eight members, but they all danced so much and so hard, and kept circulating so cleverly, that they seemed to add up to many more than they were.

They were nearly all on the stage all the time for two-and-a-half hours, and their exuberance never flagged for a moment all that time.

And they not only danced, they all sang, as well. Of course they were picked for their ability to kick and cavort, and not to warble, but it didn't seem to matter that nobody — except maybe for one of the male dancers — had even a reasonably good voice.

Bambi Linn sang, too, and put it over. And the dancers could all strum on guitars, and croon, and blackbottom, and waltz, and perform a thousand other chores of their profession with good cheer and aplomb.

The music was very well played by a handful of versatile musicians.

It was light but charming entertainment, a little unusual for a "serious music" organization like Community Concerts, but apparently greatly enjoyed by the membership.

Noetzel Sees An Upswing But No Boom

An upswing "but not a wild and woolly boom" is the business outlook for '59, a top economic forecaster said Wednesday night.

"And business in South Florida will be even above that nationally," Dr. Grover A. J. Noetzel predicted.

Dr. Noetzel, dean of the University of Miami's school of business administration, presented his annual national forecast to the Economic Society of South Florida.

He also predicted that stock prices would go down, and said the number of new and untrained investors buying stocks is one of the market's glaring weaknesses.

The decline or "shakeout" in stock prices could last four to five months, but would not have to affect the business upswing, he said.

He also said that "inflation can be controlled by an enlightened and intelligent electorate, acting in their own self-interest," but warned:

"If inflation is not controlled it can lead to a breakdown in our free society and conceivably lead to socialism as a way of life."

These forms, together with Bid Bond, Performance Bond, and Contract forms, will be furnished to prospective bidders on request. Bids may not be withdrawn for forty-five (45) days next after said date of February 4, 1959.

The Board reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

THE BOARD OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION OF DADE COUNTY, FLORIDA
By Joe Hall
Secretary and Superintendent
January 22nd 1959

"NOTICE TO BIDDERS"

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the City Commission of the City of Hollywood, Florida is advertising for sealed bids which will be received by the Board of County Commissioners of Broward County on behalf of the Purchasing Committee representing certain governmental units in Broward County, for the purpose of establishing contracts for petroleum products needed for the period beginning February 14, 1959 and ending February 13, 1960. Bids will be received by the Board of County Commissioners, Room 274, Court House, Fort Lauderdale, Florida until 11 A.M. Tuesday, February 3, 1959 and then publicly opened and read in the Commissioners' Meeting Room of the Broward County Court House, Fort Lauderdale, Florida.

It will be the sole responsibility of the bidder to deliver personally or mail his proposal to Room 274, Court House, Fort Lauderdale, Florida on or before the closing hour and date as shown above for receipt of bids.

The City Commission of the City of Hollywood reserves the right to reject any or all bids, to waive informalities and to accept or reject all or any part of any bid as they may deem to be to the best interest of the City of Hollywood.

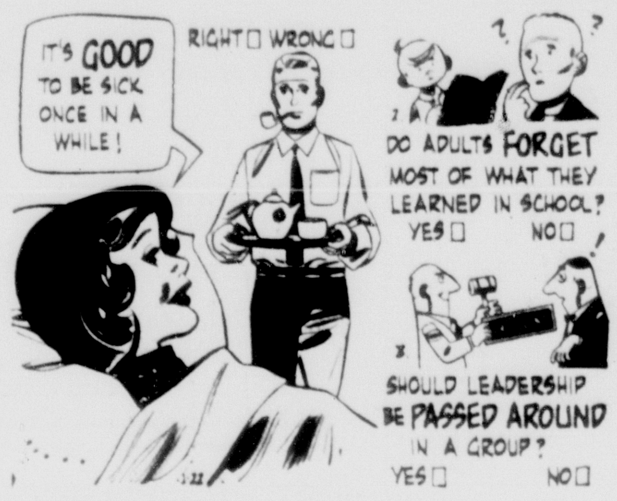
Sickness Is OK



IT'S GOOD TO BE SICK ONCE IN A WHILE!
RIGHT☐ WRONG☐
1
DO ADULTS FORGET MOST OF WHAT THEY LEARNED IN SCHOOL?
YES☐ NO☐
2
SHOULD LEADERSHIP BE PASSED AROUND IN A GROUP?

By S. M. DUVALL and EVELAN M. DUVALL, Ph.Ds

RIGHT, IT PROBABLY IS. Most of us want to feel cared for and loved for what we are rather than just for what we do. When you're sick you have a reason for relaxing and letting others take care of you for a while. The pypochondriac indulges himself in his ailments at the expense of others all the time. But being sick once in a while gives even the strong independent person a sense of being taken care of that can be deeply satisfying even when he protests that he's all right.

2. Yes, but apparently only some things. Tests of students in California, for instance, showed that their mathematics and English grammar did not stay with them. On the other hand, they retained their reading skills very well. If you continue to use what you have learned, it stays with you. Otherwise, it may quickly disappear. But not entirely. Forgetting is rarely if ever, complete. As proof, you can relearn what you have "forgotten" far more quickly than you can learn completely new material.

3. Yes. Let's see how it can work in a family. A nice day comes along, and the oldest daughter in a family exercises leadership by persuading the family to go on a picnic. The oldest son suggests the place — more leadership. Mother decides about the food. Even the five-year-old decides some of the games they shall play. Dad? He exercises leadership by driving the car and choosing the route. Thus, every member of the family is, at some point, a leader.

ATTENTION Packard Owners

HERE in all its' Majestic Glory is a beautiful triple tone Dover white and Metalic Forest Green 1955 PACKARD PATRICIAN 4-DOOR SEDAN for you, and of course it has all the equipment in the books. There's POWER STEERING and BRAKES, the big SELEC-T-RONIC radio with dual front and rear seat speakers that finds its own stations — automatically — TWIN ULTRAMATIC automatic transmission, POWER WINDOWS and 4 WAY POWER SEAT, dual thermostat controlled heaters, A-1 white wall tires, safety padded dash board and EZ eye Solex tinted glass.

THE interior is beautiful and of course, factory original including the doorpannels, headliner and thick pile floor carpeting. You'll find a very expensive set of custom tailor made to order seat covers that are color blended to match the gorgeous interior.

NOW — here's the best part. We're putting this beauty on

FINICKY?

TO SOME people — price is a minor factor in what they are purchasing. They are interested in only buying as in this case, an automobile that is clearly "head and shoulders" apart from the crowd. If you're such a person and you've been looking for an inexpensive automobile that is a standout — then — this is for you. It's our 1950 CHEVROLET DeLuxe 2-door hardtop. There's a brand new outstanding two tone Frost White over Lipstick Red paint finish. The entire interor has been beautifully customized with white Naugahyde and Lipstick Red Loempuff. That includes the seats doorpannels and headliner.

AND — here's a surprise for you — POWERGLIDE automatic transmission is one of the features besides the best "8" tube push button radio, directional signals, clock and excellent white wall tires. We're putting this smooth performer on sale for you today for only

Dare To Compare

THE British Morris under comparison on every approach to sound "Economy car ownership," for "Morris" offers more on the qualities that count most for enjoyable motoring at lowest cost. "You" can get 42 miles per gallon on every tank of gas — experts have attained over 70 M.P.G. here in Florida an official (A.A.A. Motors Club rallys. Did you know that every Morris is bonderized against rust, and in this salty tropic climate most cars rust badly but not your "Morris," and for longevity nothing beats a Morris. In fact a 10 year old Morris will still bring $400.00 (a third of its original cost). Unchanging desirable styling and sturdy engineering makes a new Morris at $1,495 the lowest priced "VALUE" we can recommend.

LIFE WITH LARRY THOMPSON

Sleeping Arms Misfit

I AM INDEBTED to a reader in Boynton Beach for bringing up a subject I have been afraid to mention. She says she has trouble with her arms when trying to sleep.

This has been a problem with me for as long as I can remember, but I have hesitated to say something about it, because I figured something was wrong with me.

Until this lady wrote in, I thought I was the only person in the world who had arms that won't fit a bed. Now that I know at least one other person has the same trouble, I'm glad to bring the subject out in the open.

When I go to bed, my arms simply get in the way. I don't know what to do with them. If I lie on my back, I can keep my arms straight at my sides and that solves the problem.

The trouble is, I can't sleep that way. It's too much like standing at attention lying down.

If I turn on a side, I can put one arm across my face or let it dangle loosely above the sheet, but there's no place for the other arm.

If I put that under my head or under my body, it is uncomfortable.

If I keep wiggling around and adjusting the arm, I finally get it into a comfortable position, but it goes to sleep before I do.

It is very disturbing to spend half the night rubbing an arm and waving it around so you can wake it up.

Besides, the tingling, tickling sensation, while not painful, is certainly not conducive to sleep. By the time I have my arm awake, I'm more awake than it is.

I have tried stretching both arms out, holding them over the side of the bed, but this not only looks ridiculous but it is impossible. You can hold such a position for only a short time.

If there is any way to handle arms while in bed, short of cutting them off, the lady in Boynton Beach and I would both like to hear about it.

* * *

THE LADY WHOSE ARM troubles are so similar to mine is Mrs. Ernest Marsh, whose main purpose in writing was an entirely different subject. She wanted to report that in Kewanee, Ill., there is a community called Goose Island.

As for names of people, she mentions Dr. Akes in Boynton, and Dr. Hurt, in Delray. She quickly adds: "Incidentally, they are both fine physicians."

* * *

THAT COMMENT AWHILE back concerning the small dioramas which used to come in Herbert Tareyton cigarets brought this response from Mrs. Kreig Hines, Dania:

"Does anyone remember doll furniture drawn on the inside of Clover Bloom butter cartons? As a kid I'd always beg my mother to buy that brand of butter so I could cut out the drawing, fold it into a chair, table, etc."

In this same general category, I asked if they still had prizes in Cracker Jacks.

Mrs. W. E. Brookhart, 6181 SW 19th St., was one of several readers who sent me a clipping from the Jan. 19 issue of Newsweek, telling all about the Cracker Jack company and their prizes—which definitely still are in the boxes.

Since the Newsweek editors were nice enough to answer my query so promptly, I will pass on their information that Cracker Jacks have been on the market since 1896 and the formula has never been changed. They've been giving prizes since 1908, but these are constantly changing.

* * *

AND NOW IT TURNS OUT that there were two songs about the Lackawanna railroad. Mrs. Catherine M. Dease, Kendall, remembers hearing this one in her home town of Paterson, N.J., around 1908:

Lackawanna, on my honor,
I will ride on you.
Behind your big choo-choo
We will ride and glide and slide
On a road that's nice and wide . . .

It probably was a very good song, but I don't think much of a railroad that causes you to glide and slide. Sounds more like a ski ride.

* * *

IT WOULD BE a great relief to Grace M. Reed, 151 NE 21st St., if radio announcers wouldn't start nearly every paragraph with: "As a matter of fact."

Miss Reed calls this "superfluous and silly." And as a matter of fact, it is.

Jack Kofoed Says

Nature Plays Oddly With Human Figures

NATURE PLAYS strange tricks on us humans, and probably never so much as in a physical way. In a recent wrestling show Chris Dundee presented "Haystack" Calhoun, a grappler who weighs 601 pounds. And, when the Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey circus has a side show attraction a midget named Margarito, who scales in at 25.

It isn't bad to be just average . . . average in size and looks and talents. Haystack is too big to fit into the processes of normal living, Margarito too little.

It's pretty sorry, when you fail in your work, and hit the skids economically and in pride. But, many on top suffer from a sense of insecurity, often with accompanying ulcers.

One movie star said, "When you're making 10 thousand dollars a week, and have a mansion, swimming pool and your name in the papers every day, you can't help worrying when somebody, or something, will pull the floor out from under you. You keep thinking every day may be the last, and you don't have much fun any more."

I don't mean everyone should shelve ambitions because it's less difficult to get to the top than to stay there, but being in the middle of the class, instead of at its head, isn't the worst thing that can happen to a person.

No one stays on top forever, and the strain of holding onto the upper rung of the ladder sometimes isn't worth the acclaim that goes with it. If you're happy in your work, have a family you love, and find each day a new challenge, you may have more than a chairman of the board, a movie star, or boss of a country.

If this isn't enough to ward off pangs of frustrated ambition, think about Fulgencio Batista for a minute. He went from buck sergeant to dictator and look at him now.

COLUMNIST Sydney Harris is not a lover of sports . . . and gets particularly flaky about the professional kind. Syd says professional sport is a contradiction in terms, because the moment a sport becomes professional it ceases to be a sport.

This is not true. I know pros who love their game as much, and play as hard at it as any amateur. Did you ever see any all-for-glory guy who'd bloody battle an opponent like a hockey professional . . . any amateur who'd play out the last string with desperate effort like jai alai stars Arritibel and Laca . . . or a Golden Glove boxer, who takes soul destroying punishment, and keeps trying like Carmen Basilio?

"The whole purpose of play," says Mr. Harris, "is to escape to a realm beyond necessity, to a glorious never-never-land, where the skillful, fleet and courageous can find a happy ending too often denied them in the cold market place."

This erudite columnist has missed a point. One reason why professional sport has been successful is that it transports spectators to that never-never-land. People share vicariously the triumphs and disappointments of the athletes. For a little while they become champions themselves. Their muscles may not harden, but their spirits soar, and that can be important, too.

An author, who writes a novel only for money, and not because of a driving urge, seldom pens anything worth while.

Had Mr. Harris known such dedicated old pros as Walter Hagen, Ty Cobb, Enos Slaughter and others of their breed, he would know what I am talking about. A sport doesn't cease to be a sport because its practitioners are paid.

IN THIS CONNECTION, I think of Guillermo, who was the greatest jai alai player I've ever seen, with Piston I as a close runner-up. Guillermo played as a professional at the old Hialeah fronton in 1925, and quit only a few seasons ago. He had the look of a Roman senator, the grace of a ballet dancer, and the power of Babe Ruth. He was also a playboy, who loved wine, women and song, and because he was the highest paid of pelotaris, was able to get what he wanted.

No man, amateur or professional, loved the game he played more than he.

I have talked with Pedro Mir at Miami, and Jose Cruz Salsamendi at Dania, and they agree Guillermo was not only one of the Basque immortals, but a man who would have played if his pay had been infinitesimal.

I am sure Ernest Hemingway, who is an aficionado of purest rays serene, will understand that. I wish Sydney Harris did.

Professional sport may not be essential to the world's existence, but it adds excitement and derring-do to stir sluggish blood. That is more worth while than a good many things I can think of . . . like starting wars, making atom bombs, censoring books in Boston.

HAVE SEEN something of the Roller Derby on television, have caught a couple of Chris Dundee's wrestling shows. In each feminine performers are starred.

For years and years I nursed the delusion that women are gentle and sweet. After watching the skaters and grapplers, my viewpoint has changed.

These young women don't go in for hair pulling and scratching when tempers get the better of them. They belt each other like a battalion of Carmen Basilios.

The Roller Derby, at the Beach Exhibition Hall, isn't merely a race, it's a fistic battle royal. The girls are a whole lot tougher than the boys. Take my word for it.

Work Like Beaver

By CARROLL RIGHTER
Thursday, January 22, 1959

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Working like a beaver is on the agenda for you this vital day. Commence early in true Aquarian style and run the gamut of activity from politics to putting house in order. Use trusted fellow worker as right-hand man.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) A day for real happiness now. But first find a more modern and efficient way to perform your regular job, or whatever you have planned for the future.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Take heed of advice proffered by stranger or good advisor, plus one of family members, and you find it is very much along the lines of your wishes and ambitions.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) It is wise to consider the wants and needs of associates and help them to achieve them. Besides studying to bring this about, follow your good hunches, too.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) If you perform your tasks efficiently today, the troubles that have been threatening to come to the surface will vanish. Work relaxed but with perseverance. Attend to property matters, too.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Spend some time getting your appearance at its best, then put through those good plans you have formulated. See the right people. P.M. fine for amusements.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) It is better not to try to handle any difficult tasks in the business world today, but to sit back and listen to the voice of your intuition so you may know if you are headed in right direction.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A perfect day for real cooperation with all others with whom you want to be associated in any way, or are already working with. Discuss salient points and cement better relations.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You can go after large enterprises in the business world now provided you first plan your campaign minutely. Be sure you do not waste time seeing the wrong people.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If you use your friendliest manner and tone of voice when seeing those Bigwigs in different strata of life than your own for the purpose of furthering your career, you will get wonderful results.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Since your sign is one of the most intuitive, heed the small voice within in all that you do. But be sure to remain silent as much as possible for best results. Jones Deserves Top Credit For Success of Doherty Golf

FORT LAUDERDALE — For the next few days your reporter hopes to make like a tourist in between reporting the Doherty golf tournament . . . South Florida should be grateful to Robert Trent Jones, not only for saving this fine tournament, but also for making it into a class event . . . When the Doherty was staged in Miami it was open to all women golfers who plunked down the entry fee.

JONES

Jones, who brought the tourney to his fine Coral Ridge course, limited entrance to players with a handicap of 12 or better and only the low 64 qualifiers go into the match play section . . . Pro Lew Worsham and Club Manager Bob Hines do a good job of handling the event, with veteran Harry Elmore working the scoreboard.

TOM DAY

One hears little moaning in Broward county, where they have a good crop of tourists . . . Evidence of this came Monday night when more than 5,000 wagered $210,000 at the Hollywood Kennel club to the delight of Billy Syms Jr. and Tommy Lynch, able operators . . . Roy McAndrews is doing good business at his Dania Jai Alia Fronton and Jimmy Donn and Jimmy Donn Jr., anticipate a gain in Gulfstream's horse race meeting starting March 4.

Billy Syms Jr

The golf courses are crowded too, but there are more links here than in Dade county, so the golfers do not have too long a wait at the first tee . . . Sam Frost, genial Orange Brook manager, says play is ahead of last year at Orange Brook, which has 27 holes . . . Tom Day, executive vice-president of the popular Plantation course, is pleased over being ahead . . . Under his administration the course seems to gain each year . . . It might be worth City Commissioner Otis Shiver's time to tour this county and note the sports facilities.

Miami Should Have QB Club

RECENTLY LOUIE GERRARD, one of Miami's more avid fans, suggested the city should have a Quarterback Club. He suggested that a man like Stacey Rowell would be a good one to get organizational plans under way.

Miami once had a Quarterback Club, which helped the Hurricanes in many if minor, ways. The organization disbanded when the Eaton Foundation was formed.

Today this is one of the few cities of any size, which does not have a livewire organization of men interested in football.

They even have one at Daytona Beach, where there is no college. Clubs like that one and others at Gainesville, Jacksonville, Ocala and Tallahassee import prominent speakers for weekly dinners.

This costs money, but with a group having 200 to 300 members it would not be too expensive for any one. It would be interesting to see if enough Miamians are interested enough to form such an organization.

Off-Track Betting Dangerous

BACK FROM New York, The Herald's Travel Editor Ned Aitchison brings clippings on the off-track betting dispute in that city. Seems New York needs more tax money—that seems to be a common need—and proposes to get it by providing off-track wagering booths.

This system once was proposed for Florida, but was defeated. Strangely enough the horse track operators were the chief opponents, although each track would get a certain percentage of the money.

Rockefeller

Donovan

I have heard others express similar opinions. Their theory is that in the long run, it would arouse people who currently have no objection to horse racing at the tracks.

Gov. Nelson Rockefeller was quoted as denying he was opposed to off-track betting, but the New York Herald Tribune reprinted a quote attributed to him during his campaign, when he said, "I frankly don't think we want to induce people to gamble."

Things Booming in Puerto Rico

Inside Dope

"Plenty of scouts working the area. Birdie Tebbetts (he's executive vice president of Milwaukee, not a scout) just left. San Francisco has a full-time man here, Pete Zorilla. He is the guy who signed Cepeda and Ruben Gomez."

Tress, who is called major because he was a private so long couldn't resist getting in a commercial for El Comandante horse race track, where he is the publicist.

"In its first two years, El Comandante has paid over $4,500,000 in taxes to the government of Puerto Rico," Tress added. "It is now the sixth largest source of revenue for the government."

UM Athletes Are Busy

OUT AT the University of Miami, they are pleased with Larry Shook, football-basketball prospect who has joined the Hurricane freshman quintet and moved up to first string . . . He received more basketball than football scholarship offers from other colleges . . . Jack Nelson is the leading star of UM's swimming team . . . If Army Doesn't Want Hall, Miami Does—As Grid Aide

By LUTHER EVANS
Herald Sports Writer

If Dale Hall isn't promoted to head football coach at Army — as recommended by retiring Earl Blaik — he may become an assistant at the University of Miami.

At least, UM Coach Andy Gustafson is "seriously interested" in hiring Blaik's No. 1 aide.

Hall must be interested in the job.

He came to Miami Wednesday from West Point along with another Army assistant coach, Frank Lauterbur, "to talk football" with Gustafson.

"That's all I have to say," said the 35-year-old Hall, who has figured heavily in speculation as to who'll succeed Army's most famous coach.

Said Gustafson:

"I am seriously interested in both Hall and Lauterbur.

"But neither is looking for a job . . . nor applying at Miami.

"They came here at my invitation."

An Associated Press story out of West Point Wednesday said Hall, a former Army halfback, and John Green, ex-Academy guard, and Tulane assistant now, were considered the 1-2 candidates.

The story said, in part:

"The Army Athletic Board met yesterday but refused to disclose what was discussed. It is believed, however, that the Board strongly favors Hall . . .

"But the Board's recommendations are not binding. It is Academy Superintendent Lt. Gen. Gar Davidson, a one-time Army football coach, who will make the final decision.

"Reports were strong that he favors Green, but Davidson would say only "as of today, the field is still wide open."

Hall's visiting the UM while his name still is in the forefront of candidates could mean he does not feel Davidson will appoint him.

Meet Jack Green
. . . Army job hopeful

"I do not care to comment on the situation," said Hall.

When Blaik resigned after a successful 7-2 season, he recommended Hall, head scout and defensive backfield coach, as his successor.

Other Army assistant coaches reportedly wrote a letter to Gen. Davidson saying all would remain at the Point if Hall was made head coach.

Hall was graduated from the Point in 1954 after lettering in football, basketball and tennis, and one year being honored as the cadet "who did the most for West Point athletics."

Hall, who coached under Bob Woodruff for four seasons at Florida in addition to stints at Purdue and New Hampshire, returned to West Point in 1956.

Lauterbur joined Army in 1957 and served as defensive line coach. After graduation from Kent State, Ohio, he played offensive tackle for the Baltimore Colts. Later he became the Colts' defensive line coach.

Hall's reputation as a defensive backfield coach fits into Gustafson's plans. He hired offensive backfield specialist Henry (Hank) Stram from Notre Dame Saturday.

And he also has a vacancy in his line coaching staff; hence the interest in Lauterbur.

Levelix Whips Home in Hialeah's Jasmine
. . . another stakes win for Bill Hartack

Hartack Guides 3-5 Choice

Favored Levelix Captures Jasmine

By JOE McLAUGHLIN
Herald Turf Editor

Levelix, a darling with the betting gentry at 3-5, carried Wednesday in Hialeah's $26,425 Jasmine before a throng of 17,458.

Owned by Michael G. Phipps, Levelix, a three-year-old daughter of Ambiorix-Top Level, was notching her fourth triumph in six starts and picked up a purse of $16,751.

She beat Audley Farms' Miss Cloudy under Ken Church by a length and three-quarters. Mrs. L. P. Tate's Fiji, closing fast on the outside, was another length away for third.

Levelix raced the six furlongs in 1:11 1-5 and paid $3.30, $2.70 and $2.50. Miss Cloudy returned $7 and $4.50, and Fiji was $3.80 to show.

After Fiji it was Cobul, Toluene, Lady Be Good, Hidden Talent, Marcy Belle, the Florida-bred Indian Maid, Pinecrest Miss, Stunning Upset, Brair Close, Jet High and Marisa.

Book of Verse was a late scratch. Brian Close, Stunning Upset, and Jet High were coupled as a mutuel field.

Phipps was presented the silverware by Mrs. Fred W. Hooper.

Hartack, who was all smiles, said of Levelix: "She just ran good enough to win."

Ken Church said Miss Cloudy had no excuse. "We just couldn't catch her (Levelix). Just the same as at Tropical Park."

Boulmetis said, "Fiji is a real good filly and she will do all right when the distances are stretched out."

Indian Maid got away first, but soon was displaced by Lady Be Good with Levelix third and the speedy Marisa fourth.

Midway down the backstretch, Levelix began arguing for the lead and then maintained a lead to the wire.

* * *

ELKCAM STABLE'S War Eagle, under a real stout ride by Sammy Boulmetis, again proved his mastery over Fabulous Fox when he beat the R. Lankenau star by a head for the second straight time in the six-furlong fifth event.

Both War Eagle and Fabulous Fox are sons of Fighting Fox. War Eagle is a five-year-old and Fabulous Fox a seven-year-old.

Boulmetis, rushing up from fifth position at the head of the stretch, mowed down his opposition to win by a head. Only a head behind Fabulous Fox came Westward Ho for third.

Trainer F. A. Bonsal put Joe Culmone on a sharp horse in Harleigh and he won the fourth at $21.20.

A FOUL CLAIM in Tuesday's "baby" race by Jockey Johnny Raia was deemed "frivolous" by the stewards and Raia was fined $50. He was astride the third finisher San-Jo-Mar. Royal Waltz won the race.

Frank J. McManus, a former jockey who was named top trainer of the Greentree Stable to succeed Georgie Poole, saddled his first winner, Spit Ball, in the juvenile three-furlong third. The gelded son of One Hitter-Shine 2nd, was timed in 34 4-5 seconds and beat Itching Palm by three parts of a length.

Auburn Streak Hits 23

AUBURN, Ala., — (AP) — Auburn's Tigers made it 23 straight Wednesday night, maintaining the longest major college basketball victory in the nation, with a 66-55 victory over Georgia Tech.

Auburn's Tigers were handling their shots at a 49.6 per cent clip, getting 26 of 53 from the field, while Tech's percentage was only 38.2, with 21 of 55 attempts scoring.

Auburn had three players scoring double figures—Henry Hart with 16, Jimmy Lee with 14 and Porter Gilbert with 10.

But Tech's Terry Randle played an outstanding game, sinking 10 of 12 field goal attempts and making five free throws good for 25 points.

After the Tigers had pulled into their biggest lead in the first half, at 26-19, they suddenly found themselves running into their coldest streak of the season. Auburn didn't score for five minutes, during which Tech hit for 11 points, taking the lead at 30-26.

Auburn tied it up with a minute to go but Tech carried a 32-20 halftime lead.

Red Devils Win, 32-28

With Terri Lynch and Chick Chakota each scoring eight points, the Florida Red Devils defeated the California Bombers, 32-28, Wednesday night as the Roller Derby shifted from Beach Exhibition Hall to Miami Stadium.

A turnout of 1,956 saw Fred Noa skate to six points for the losers and Lee Frodelli score three to pace the men and women's divisions.

It will be Ladies Night when skating resumes at 8:30 tonight at the Stadium.

Knicks Win, 130-109

CINCINNATI — (AP) — The New York Knickerbockers, paced by Richie Guerin and Frank Selvy, hit 48 per cent of their field goal attempts Wednesday night for a 130-109 National Basketball Association victory over the Cincinnati Royals.

Sun-Treated Bathgate Hot After Hockey Title

By STEVE McNAMARA
Herald Sports Writer

Andy Bathgate leaves a few of his aches and pains in Miami Beach today and heads back north to the hockey wars.

The New York Rangers' scoring ace is bound for a game in Montreal Saturday, where hockey fever burns with a passion to shame Milwaukee's baseball fanatics.

But since the advent of TV, Bathgate sees no reason why hockey interest should melt in warmer climes.

"You don't have to be raised on hockey to enjoy it," he said, explaining why the sport is so popular in spots like Charlotte, N.C., where there's more ice in highball glasses than under foot.

"First of all, it's an action game. In football or baseball or basketball, there are a lot of time outs. There's no such thing as a time out in hockey. There's action all the time. You never know what to expect.

"Take baseball. In addition to all those delays, there's no drama until the eighth or ninth inning — unless some poor pitcher gets butchered and they have to take him out.

"Even if you don't understand hockey right away, there's a lot of body contact and the puck is moving all the time. And once you get interested it seems to get you."

Body contact and moving the puck are very much on Bathgate's mind these days.

The Rangers had an open week while the Ice Follies filled up Madison Square Garden, so Bathgate, star defenseman Bill Gadsby and their wives headed for Florida.

The local sun treatment was touted last year by several Rangers who attended a National Hockey League players' meeting at Miami Beach. They found it worked wonders with their bruised frames.

Canadian Bathgate (there are no Americans in the NHL this season) tried the horses and jai alai and allowed as how he'd played a little golf.

Starting Saturday Bathgate must put aside all thoughts of such pastimes. He must move the puck early and often to beat Montreal's Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion for the league scoring title.

At the end of last week, Bathgate led Boom Boom in goals (25-19), but was behind in assists (35-28) and total points (54-53).

Can Bathgate win? "It will be pretty tough. The Canadiens are like the Yankees of hockey. They average about a goal more per game than the other teams. That's a big help for Bernie."

Besides beating Geoffrion, Bathgate also must short-circuit his personal "numbers" that seem to have assigned him second place this season.

During the last four years, Bathgate's positions at the conclusion of scoring races have been six-five-four-three. A "two" this season and a "one" the next would seem a nice progression.

But that's not what Bathgate has in mind.

Hail The Co-Medalists: Marge Burns (L), Barbara McIntire
...Coral Ridge pro Lew Worsham salutes their 76s in Doherty

Par-Matching 76's

Burns, McIntire Split Doherty Medal Honors

By JIMMY BURNS
Herald Sports Editor

FORT LAUDERDALE — Making few mistakes over the windswept Coral Ridge course, Marge Burns, Greensboro, N.C., and Barbara McIntire, Lake Park, Wednesday matched women's par of 76 to share medalist honors in the 27th Doherty Gold Championship qualifying.

It was the first time in the four years that the Doherty has been played here that qualifying produced co-medalists. Marge scored 37-39-76 and Miss McIntire posted 39-37-76 in matching the score by which Barbara Romack, now a professional, led the field last year.

Seven other girls, including Defending Champion Mary Ann Downey, Baltimore, broke 80 in the medal test. It required a score of 85 to earn a place in the championship division.

Mrs. Harold Stone, Ware Shoals, S.C., scored a birdie-four on the first hole to win the 32nd spot over three others who had posted 86s. Golfers scoring 93 or better qualified in the second division.

Miss Burns, five times North Carolina Amateur champion, started with a birdie four on the 400-year first hole. She reached the green with a drive and four-iron. She dropped a 12-footer for a birdie two on the eighth and hit the 10th with her approach to get a birdie-four. Miss Burns three-putted the second and 18th holes.

Three-putting the second hole from 25 feet and the 12th from 20 feet, cost Miss McIntire her chance to take medalist honors. Barbara's two birdies were scored on the back nine, when she cropped a 16-foot putt for a four on the 11th and sank an 18-footer on the 15th for a three.

Marlene Stewart Streit, Toronto, Canada, 1958 runnerup, and Joanne Goodwin, Haverhill, Mass., matched 77s. Mrs. Streit thrilled the gallery by chipping in from six feet off the ninth hole with an eight-iron for an eagle-three.

One of the qualifying surprises was provided by Nancy Roth, 19-year-old Hollywood girl, who plays to a nine handicap. She scored 40-38-78, a reverse of her 87 score of last year.

Nancy attributed the improvement in her golfing to Pro Bobby Goodman of the Sunset course. Miss Roth attended the University of Miami a year and is now working to continue her studies there.

Met Golf Appoints Rules Group

A special rules committee was named Wednesday for the Metropolitan Amateur Golf Association's all-star exhibition match at Bayshore next Thursday.

The match is a benefit for Variety Children's Hospital and a highlight of the MAGA mixed pro-am championships starting Wednesday.

John Serbin of Westview was named committee chairman with Harry Daumit of LaGorce and Henry H. Russell of Riviera as members.

The all-star match has one team of Sam Snead, Jack Penrose and Mickey Wright and the other of Cary Middlecoff, Frank Strafaci and Marlene Bauer Hagge.

Mantle Talks Big, Pay Too Small

Pros Snag 5 Gators, 2 Rattlers, Halas Springs a New 'Phenom'

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Five University of Florida players and two Florida A&M stars were chosen Wednesday in the National Football League's player draft.

Green Bay picked End Dan Edgington (ex-Miami Edison High star and a junior at Florida) and Center Joe Hergert from Florida.

Other Gators picked were End Don Fleming (by the Chicago Cardinals, 28th round) and End Perry McGriff (by Baltimore, 29th round).

George Halas of the Chicago Bears, who in past years has earned an enviable reputation for picking sleepers — comparative unknowns from small colleges — did it again Wednesday as the draft began. Halas popped up with a lad named John Adams from Los Angeles State College.

Adams, it turned out, is a 6-3, 235-pound behemoth who runs the 100-yard dash in 10 seconds flat. Halas, without a trace of a smile, insisted Adams can pass 60 yards with his left hand and 50 with his right. In his spare time, Adams also punts.

Pro fans will have to wait to see Adams since he is junior with another year of eligibility. Halas can hardly wait.

Mantle Balks

MICKEY MANTLE said Wednesday he will return his Yankee contract unsigned because "I feel like I'm headed for as good a year as I've ever had," and "I want a substantial pay increase." Reportedly, Mantle got $75,000 for his not so sensational work last season — and wants $85,000 this year . . . Birdie Tebbetts of the Braves advised Hank Aaron, Wes Covington, Bill Bruton and Don McMahon to stop the public discussion of their salary gripes . . . The Yanks purchased the stock of the Richmond Virginians and said they have taken over operation of the club "in its entirety" . . . Ted Williams and Boston General Manager Joe Cronin had a long chat Wednesday, presumably about money matters.

BASEBALL

Author Panned

BASKETBALL — Cincinnati's Oscar Robertson and his coach took strong exception to an article in Sports Illustrated inferring Oscar will quit college before too long and turn pro. Robertson said the article's author talked with him when he was down in the dumps after a poor night and got the wrong impression from Robertson's comments . . . It seemed farily certain Wednesday that Russia and Bulgaria will refuse to play Nationalist China in the world tournament at Chile, and in turn will be bounced out of the World Basketball Federation.

Bowl Priority

GATOR BOWL General Manager George Olsen said Wednesday Atlantic Coast Conference teams should get priority over Southeastern Conference teams in Gator Bowl selection. It was the upshot of a recent SEC decision increasing the gap between money a conference team can take home from the Gator Bowl and other bowls. The SEC apparently is trying to dissuade its teams from playing in the Gator Bowl because they play there so often . . . The University of Southern California has put its football recruiters on probation until further notice following a two-year suspension slapped on the school by the NCAA for over-zealous recruiting . . . Maryland Coach Tom Nugent formally announced Wednesday Lee Corso and Frank Toomey are following him there from FSU . . . Ed Doherty, under fire after two losing seasons, resigned as head football coach at the University of Arizona Wednesday.

FOOTBALL

Ring Problem

WELTERWEIGHT Champion Don Jordan's manager got caught with his contract down and as a result tonight's 10-rounder in Los Angeles between Jordan and Alvaro Gutierrez may be a title fight. The California Boxing Code rules that if a contender scales within the maximum weight limit of the class the title will be at stake. Jordan's manager said Gutierrez agreed to come in at 149, two pounds overweight, but the boxing commission said such agreements are illegal . . . A Chicago boxer, claiming he was permanently injured in a training bout in Chicago's Midwest Hotel Gym, sued James D. Norris and six others for $1,000,000 as owners of the gym. Meanwhile, Norris and Arthur M. Wirtz have begun negotiating for the court-ordered sale of their 41.2 per cent ownership of Madison Square Garden. Top bidder is M. Lowell Harman, for the past year a heavy buyer of Garden stock on the N. Y. Stock Exchange . . . Sweden's Ingemar Johansson will arrive in New York Friday where he is expected to sign for a title fight with World Heavyweight Champion Floyd Patterson in the U.S. this June.

BOXING

Beattie Boxes Sultzmann on Bayfront Card

'Hole-in-Heart' Fighter in Main Event

A page in boxing history will be written tonight when Ed Beattie fights Ken Sultzmann in a six-rounder on the Bayfront Park Auditorium boxing show.

For Beattie, undefeated lightweight, will be making his first start since he underwent surgery to have a hole in his heart closed a year and a half ago.

Their match highlights a card of four and six-rounders promoted by Major W. H. Peeples.

After fighting in the Olympics, Beattie came to Miami for his pro debut and won all five of his bouts before the defect in his heart was discovered.

"They told me if I wanted to continue boxing I should have the operation, and that's the only reason I had it. I love to box and I'm not the least bit worried," Beattie said.

In other six-rounders, Hymie Budow meets Dwaine Simpson, lightweight, and welterweight Willie Finney opposes Willie Giles.

A quartet of four-rounders is scheduled. Featherweight Perfecto Garcia fights Roosevelt Stringer, Hector Rodriquez takes on Featherweight Bruce Gilbert, and Welters Eddie Foobs and Walter Bailey trade leather. The fourth bout will be announced from ringside at 8:45.

Hialeah Stocks Roar Saturday

Weather having forced cancellation of the last two programs, stock car drivers at Hialeah Speedway are hopeful of getting back into action in the open competition scheduled for Saturday night.

Most of South Forida's top pilots are due for action in the sportsman-modified division. There also will be competition for Class B drivers.

7 Maturity Hopefuls Go

ARCADIA, Calif. — (AP) — Seven 4-year-olds with Santa Anita Maturity hopes were entered Wednesday in a tuneup race for the $100,000-added affair.

Missing in the lineup for today's $15,000 San Marino Handicap is Hillsdale, winner of an unprecedented three straight stakes at the track. His trainer figured Hillsdale doesn't need the race.

Topping the entries in the mile and one eighth race is Jewel's Reward, carrying 125 pounds. Next at 123 is Warhead. Others are Martins Rullah, Gleeman, Swaps Kin, Sir Ruler and King's Salute.

UM Faces Tallest Cage Foe

Tallest team the University of Miami Hurricanes have had to face this season comes to town Monday night when the Kentucky Wesleyan Panthers oppose Coach Bruce Hale's cagers at Miami Beach Auditorium.

Average height of the entire Kentucky Wesleyan squad is 6 feet, 4 inches. The starting quintet is even taller, standing a shade above 6-5.

Biggest of the Kentuckians, is Center Norbert Purol, 6 feet, 10 inches tall. The towering senior, a regular for two seasons, is the team's most accurate marksman, hitting just about 50 per cent of his field goal tries. His replacement, a transfer from Vanderbilt, is Martin Holland, also 6 feet, 10 inches tall.

At forwards, the Panthers have Gene Minton, 6-6, along with the fabulous Kelly Coleman, 6-3. As a freshman, Coleman averaged 26 points last year and scored 35 in his appearance against Miami.

At guards, the Panthers have veterans Winfred Thompson, 6-2, and Lyle Dunbar, 6-5.

The Hurricanes' practice schedule has been working around the mid-year examination period, but Hale has managed to get in considerable work. The Hurricanes have a 6-1 mark on their home court, losing only to Miami U. of Ohio in overtime in Hurricane Classic finals. Last season, Miami was 9-1 at home.

Bowdry, Hinnant Top Beach Card

Two good light-heavyweight punchers — Jesse Bowdry and Clarence Hinnant—have been paired in the 10-round main event at Miami Beach Auditorium Tuesday night.

Bowdry is the world's eighth-ranked contender in the division and has won 23 of 26 while levelling 19 opponents. He scored a 10-round decision over Hinnant in Chicago April 30 of last year.

Hinnant, himself ranked until just recently, has been inactive since that fight.

Bowdry has actually lost to only one man. Sonny Ray has decisioned him once, stopped him twice. But Bowdry also has a decision over Ray. Otherwise in 1958 he starched Miami's Bobby Lane twice, stopped Jerry Leudee and whipped Hinnant.

New Campy Honor

NEW YORK — (AP) — Roy Campanella, paralyzed catching great of the Dodgers, Wednesday was named "Citizen of the Year" by Sports Lodge of B'nai B'rith. Campanella will be honored at the lodge's eighth annual awards dinner this Sunday.

Has 'Everything'

For All-Around Appeal, Trout Easy Winner

If there is a more cooperative fish anywhere than the spotted sea trout it has not yet been discovered by fishermen. Clearly, trout stand head and shoulders above any other Florida saltwater species in popularity.

DUNAWAY

As a gamefish, the trout strikes a happy medium: puts on a good, strong fight and shows plenty of surface action, yet at the same time he is not rugged enough to bust up any tackle. Therefore, when you find trout action hot, you're assured of fish as well as fun.

From every standpoint, trout claim great appeal. They are among the most beautiful of fish, tasty table fare and, most of all, are easily captured.

The least finicky of all game fish, trout will hit dead shrimp or cut bait fished on bottom, as well as live bait and lures.

Tackle choice for trout is of no consideration. Use whatever you like or whatever you have, from a cane pole to a fly rod. Naturally, extremely light gear will bring out the better fighting qualities of the fish.

* * *

More Numerous Along Western Shore

TROUT LIKE shallow inshore areas that are thick with grass. Since grass flats are more abundant on the Gulf Coast than on the Atlantic beaches, trout are far more numerous on the western side of the state, ranging all the way from Pensacola through the Keys.

Strangely, however, the trout which inhabit the Atlantic bays and coves average considerably larger than those of the Gulf. This characteristic holds true all along the Eastern shoreline, but reaches its greatest heights around Cocoa. In that sector, 10-lb. trout are caught by the hundreds each year. Anywhere else in Florida, a 10-lb. trout is a rarity indeed.

FISHING
with Vic Dunaway

Top trout areas in the southern reaches of the state include Fort Pierce, the Palm Beaches (in Lake Worth) and sometimes Miami's Biscayne Bay, where particular hot spots are Norris Cut and the flats neighboring Dinner Key.

To the west, you'll find great trout fishing at such spots as Naples, Everglades City, Flamingo and Marco Island.

The Keys boast outstanding trout territories at Card Sound, Barnes Sound, Jewfish Creek and for miles and miles of flats in sprawling Florida Bay.

Even w-a-y down in the Keys, almost as far as Key West, productive trout flats can be found on the Gulf side.

Popping Cork a Sure Attraction

FOR PURE poundage nothing has ever been able to beat the combination of popping cork and natural bait. Commercial fishermen use this technique regularly. You simply attach a special concave cork in the same way you would an ordinary float. Below it, hang your hook and bait — mullet strip or shrimp.

By working your rodtip, pop the cork loudly and frequently. Trout are attracted to the noise and proceed to gulp the bait.

Because of their interest in surface noise, topwater plugs and flyrod poppers are fine trout lures. For underwater work, choose small jigs, Mirrolure plugs or Cisco Kid lures.

Always remember that trout are one of the few saltwater fish which have a strictly-enforced size limit. Unless a trout measures 12 inches, you'd better toss him back.

In Straight Sets

Frost, Brown Tennis Victors

Jack Frost, of Monterey, Calif., seeded No. 1, and Bert Brown of Los Angeles, seeded No. 2, Wednesday stroked into men's singles quarter-finals of the Coral Gables-University of Miami tennis championships at Salvadore Park.

Both won in straight sets. Frost turned back Jerry Moore, Miami, 6-2, 6-4, while Brown had even less trouble defeating Jim Stovall of the Air Force, 6-2, 6-2.

Only one other seeded male player saw action Wednesday. He was John Skogstad of the University of Miami who defeated Richard Highly of Montclair, N.J., 6-1, 6-1.

Others advancing to quarterfinals were Frank Froehling, Jr. of Coral Gables; Bill Parks of Los Angeles; Bob Greene of New York City, and Birger Folke of Sweden.

Complete quarter round matches are scheduled today in both the men's and women's singles.

Yacht Race Slated

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — (AP) — Yachting officials Wednesday announced plans to start the Annapolis to Newport, R. I., ocean race on Saturday, June 20.

Tomy Lee Runs 2nd At Anita

ARCADIA, Calif. — (AP) — Tomy Lee, the West's leading Kentucky Derby hope of 1959, launched his three-year-old career on a disappointing note Wednesday as he ran second to another English-bred colt, Ole Fols, in the $22,800 San Vicente Handicap.

Racing before 21,792 fans at Santa Anita Park in his first race since last October, the Texas-owned, California-raced Tomy Lee finished two and a quarter lengths behind Neil S. McCarthy's Ole Fols, with McCarthy's Finnegan third.

Ole Fols, named after a friend of McCarthy, Frank Folsom, was ridden ably by Manuel Ycaza, and handed Fred Turner Jr.'s pride his third defeat in nine starts.

Only First Landing, named the top two-year-old in the nation last year, just ahead of Tomy Lee, had been able to whip the stylishly bred son of Englands' Tudor Minstrel.

EDWIN POPE

'If Only They Had Taught Me How . . .'

TOM HEENEY is shoving 61 hard but he still balls the biggest fist on South Beach. Trouble is, or was, sighs the Hard Rock from Down Under, nobody ever taught him what to do with it after he squinched it up.

"See this left hook," Heeney said, swinging a soft punch with thumb first. "All the time I fought, 12 years, I never ever knew how to throw a hook. I was hitting people with thumbs instead of knuckles."

HEENEY

Then how in the name of the Marquis of Queensberry did he manage to hang in there with Gene Tunney and other prime heavyweights of the Golden Twenties?

Heeney thought that one over. He is a giant of a man at 250, and, though 25 years his senior, bears a strong resemblance to Tom Kearns, who used to play tackle for the University of Miami. Heeney laid his great ham of a forearm across the mahogany counter of his little lounge and said gently, "Just tough, I guess. They raised us tough in New Zealand. But I often wonder . . . I really do wonder . . . what I could have done if I'd been shown the right way to fight."

* * *

Tunney Was Regular

SOMEBODY ASKED HEENEY which of Tunney's punches hurt him the most the night of the 11th-round knockout in 1928. Heeney looked solemn; when you walk into a buzzsaw, you seldom have time to figure out which tooth cuts the deepest.

"Really couldn't say," Heeney said finally. "But I'll tell you one thing. Tunney was a good deal better fighter than anyone ever gave him credit for. And a splendid fellow to boot.

"I didn't see Gene for years after our fight. Then he came through New Caledonia during the war. I wasn't an officer, but Gene was a commander. When he saw I was putting on fight shows for the boys, he jumped my rating.

"Then, a few years ago, he came by the place here just to say hello. How many multi-millionaires would do that?"

* * *

He Never Went Back

HEENEY is one of the rare oldtimers who spurned countless opportunities to re-enter boxing in some capacity. "Never cared much for fighting and fighters," he said. "I just drifted into the game because my two brothers had been amateur champions in New Zealand. And I never particularly wanted to stay around boxing after I hung 'em up in 1933."

A listener suggested that perhaps Heeney was too honest for boxing.

"Ha!" piped up Mrs. Heeney, a chipper little lady, laughing. "He crooked me out of a game of gin rummy the other night."

Heeney laughed, too. "No, no, not a matter of honesty. I never cared to imply dishonesty to anyone. The only reason I'd have gotten back into boxing would have been to handle a good young prospect. I never ran into one.

"But if I had," Tom Heeney said, and he wasn't laughing now, "I'd surely have taught him how to box." He balled up the great rock of a fist. "At least how to throw a punch. They never even taught me that."

Bill Offers Pro Sports Exemption

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Sen. Thomas C. Hennings Jr. (D., Mo.) introduced a bill Wednesday to give organized professional sports a variety of exemptions from antitrust laws.

Hennings told the Senate the bill would exempt professional baseball's reserve clause, football's player selection system, league territorial agreements, and powers vested in league commissioners to enforce practices he described as designed to preserve the honesty and integrity of sporting contests.

He said the bill also would grant professional sports a limited right to control television broadcasting.

"The television clause is designed to protect minor league clubs," Hennings added. He said it would enable major league baseball teams to control telecasting of their games into a minor league team's territory so as not to conflict with minor league games.

Coffin Wins At Indian Creek

Bruce A. Coffin fired a 72 Wednesday for low gross in the James F. Breuil Seniors golf tournament at Indian Creek Country Club.

In low net play for shotmakers 50 to 59 years of age, George B. Storer was best with 85-10—75. Harold C. Armstrong's 79-10—69 was best in the 60-69 age group.

Nine-hole award for golfers over 70 went to Albert Penn with 40-6—34.

24 Yachts Enter Race

Twenty-four speedy yachts, including defending Southern Ocean Racing Conference champion Ca Va, have been entered in Friday's 71-mile Miami to Gun Cay Light race.

Godih 'Splits' Perkins in TV 10-Rounder

Perkins fought fitfully and on a couple of occasions jarred his taller rival with single shots to the head, but Godih weighed 139½ and Perkins 138 for the nationally televised fight.

Judge Harry Volkman gave Godih a 99-96 edge while Judge Bunsa rated the Algerian by way of Paris 97-95 winner. Referee Charley Reynolds had Perkins ahead, 95-93. The Associated Press also scored it for the 21-year-old Chicago entry, 95-92.

The defeat snapped a five-fight winning streak for Perkins and set back his bid for national ranking. Godih, who claims the lightweight championship of France, kept alive his U.S. career after losing three straight.

A lackluster seventh round in which Godih piled up points with his lefts ultimately provided the margin. All three officials gave him that one, but differed on the last two rounds.

Menodog $12.00, 4.40, 3.50; Super Lady 2.90, 2.70; Well Seasoned 5.10.

OWNERS: 1. R. Gian; 2. Jewel W. Schwarz; 3. Martha Pellicane; 4. E. B. Stewart; 5. Vera Cotton; 6. H. E. Lewis; 7. J. R. Pierce; 8. C. Cardilla; 9. J. M. Anrego; 10. T. D. Buhl; 11. G. J. Ferris.

MENODOG, unhurried for six furlongs, responded well from midway of the final turn and wore down SUPER LADY. The latter, had held while lacking room along the inside early, moved outside to attain command and open a long advantage, then lacked the needed response when roused in midstretch. WELL SEASONED wore down the others from far back. LLOYD'S ANGEL raced for command and faltered. ASTHORE failed to enter contention. JEAN'S PRIDE was through early.

425—SECOND—Purse $4,000, 4-year-olds and up,

Golden Wedding $7.30, 4.10, 3.50; Sob Singer 6.70, 4.60; Lovely Hildy 9.50.

WINNER SELECTED BY: Harris, Ortell, Feldman.

OWNERS: 1. F. Perry; 2. R.B.M. Stable; 3. L. Lazare; 4. S. Rotenberg; 5. T. Boudrie; 6. April Fool Farm; 7. J. Davidson; 8. R. Rakow; 9. J. R. Devereaux; 10. Stonegrad Stable; 11. C. H. Hanford; 12. J. J. Gregory.

GOLDEN WEDDING rapidly established a commanding advantage, set the pace under steadying restraint and was mildly roused while holding sway. SOB SINGER rallied to outfinish LOVELY HILDY. The latter was closest to the final strides. UNTAMED was the chief sufferer in crowding which occurred on the first turn, improved her position to the stretch and weakened. CUDDLING was through early. MERRIE VEE turned in a dull effort.

SCRATCHES: Rich And Rare, Trianon, Short Pause.

426—THIRD—Purse $3,500, 2-year-old maidens,

SPIT BALL kept a ture course along the inside and outfinished his rivals. ITCHING PALM held on well after having been in contention throughout. JEFFS' FUTURE held a slight lead after a quarter and weakened. FAST FIGURE failed to make up ground during the final furlong. TASMA raced evenly while a factor from the start. HYDE PARK weakened in the late stages. SLEEPY MAN broke tardily and failed to reach contention.

SCRATCHES: Theonlyone, Harry W., Prince Quill, Deman Debbie, Kick Off, Ernie Paul.

WAR EAGLE held a menacing position through the opening half and responded well for a narrow victory. FABULOUS FOX, after having been forced to steady briefly in early stretch, rallied to fight it out gamely. WESTWARD HO entered contention from the outside and hung. COUNTER SPY set the pace to the furlong pole and weakened. GREEK KING was caught in a precarious position along the inside when unable to stay with the early leaders, joined the leaders in early stretch and faltered.

SCRATCHES: Noorsaga, Revara, General Rocket, Morrie A.

MEADOWS MISS wrested command entering the stretch and withstood the strong challenge of JIMSON WEED. The latter joined the leaders from the outside and was not good enough while bearing in slightly late in the drive. Blum's claim of foul against the winner for alleged interference entering the stretch was disallowed.

Five Kennels In Hot Race At Flagler

Through 69 racing programs of the track's 82-night meet, Joan Hunt's Gold Coast organization and the Ray Randle outfit continue their supremacy, tied with 41 victories apiece. Right behind are the greyhounds of Ewalt, Jordan and Rushaway, tied for third with 37 each.

During the same period, Randle continues to command the largest share of purse money with 111 money finishes, compared to Ewalt's 104 and Gold Coast's 100.

All five will be seeking additional wins during tonight's 10-race card, highlighted by three distance runs over the Flagler Course and a pair of outings for Grade-A stars at 5-16ths.

Italian Duo After Third Cesta Win

The potent Italian combine of Echeverria and Churruca seeks its third triumph in world series play in tonight's 10th game at Miami Jai Alai Fronton.

The leading duo holds a four-point bulge over the Mexican entry of Solozabal and Larranaga. All four of the top performers have been slightly torrid in individual play this week.

Cubans Orbea and Arakistain, defending series champions, are currently in a third-place tie with the U.S. entry of Guara and Guarita, four points back of Solozabal and Larranaga. Last two teams in the standings are Piston I-Azpiri and Urcola-Muguerza I.

Gayarre In Top Form

Gayarre, the Miami Edison High School graduate who has made good in professional jai alai, boasts one of the finest in-the-money records of any player at Dania Palace.

Riding along with a .600-plus percentage, he has been in the money better than once out of every two games played.

After a year's seasoning in the Havana fronton, Gayarre has blossomed into an able early game player. Much of his success has come from his defensive ability.

Meets Mar Rusty

Keep Hunting Tops Hollywood Ninth

Keep Hunting, a litter mate of the great Bud Jack, tonight steps again with the Grade A greyhounds at Hollywood Kennel club.

The speedy miss treks postward in the ninth race and meets among her rivals, Mar Rusty, an entry in the coming $10,000 Hollywood Silver Anniversary Stake.

The pair will race the Hollywood course with a tough early speed greyhound, Glide Home, which won from box to wire last time out in a 3-8th mile event.

Also in the field are two tough stretch runners, Gondolier and the oldtimer Persian Slave.

Keep Hunting runs pretty much in the same manner as her famous brother, Bud Jack. She's among the last to break the box, but possesses late speed.

Wlodyka Aces Springs 4th

Walter Wlodyka, a 10-year golfing veteran, scored his first hole-in-one Wednesday. He stroked a perfect tee shot on the 180-yard fourth hole at Miami Springs Country Club.

Wlodyka used a three wood for his feat. He was in a foursome with Joe and Bill Rossie and Jack Brehm.

Two Beach Dogs Seek 5th Victory

Essential has whipped Grade A rivals four times, while Bettie Bess, never out of the money in her current campaign, holds a Grade C victory, a Grade B triumph and a pair of wins in "A".

Fay's Fayzie and Lincoln Road are the only two in the race which failed to score an "A" victory in their last start.

Jockey Hospitalized

Jockey Larry Adams was in Doctors Hospital Wednesday for a minor operation on his knee and will be discharged today.

393	15	Judy Darling	No Boy	116	20-1
381	16	Nirgal Lad	W. Zakoor	118	20-1

INFORMANT gets the top figure; OMER is the contention; VULCHER can be dangerous on some of his races; NATIVE SON will no doubt show improvement over last.

437—FIFTH—Purse $4,500, 4-year-olds and up, allowances, 6 furlongs. Post—3:30.

393	15	Nance's Rule	D. Nobrega	115	20-1

LAMENT gets a slight edge in open race; AMANULLAH has been good in morning trials; TEMPLE HILL graduated recently at Tropical; KING'S NAVY has been working well.

438—SIXTH—Purse $5,000, 4-year-olds and up, allowances, 5½ furlongs, (turf). Post—4:00.

Ind	PP	Horse,	Jockey	Wt.	Odds

160	7	One Stroke	W. Lester	112	20-1

ALHAMBRA is the best bet of the day; MARE'S BEAU is likely to offer the only contention; TEYNHAM has shown speed in workouts; VICTORY MORN is heavily weighted but likes the turf.

439—SEVENTH—Purse $5,000, 3-year-olds allowances, 7 furlongs. Post—4:30.

Ind	PP	Horse,	Jockey	Wt.	Odds
403	16	Open View	S. Boulmetis	110	5-2

403	5	Steverino	H. Grant	116	20-1
338	9	Atomic Jet	W. Zakoor	110	20-1

OPEN VIEW appears the one if he gets off "also" list; WHAT'S REQUIRED will be the contender; JOE'S MASTER has a chance off last real good effort; BLUE WIND BOY is a very promising fellow with fair New York form.

440—EIGHTH—Purse $5,000, 4-year-olds and up, allowances, 5½ furlongs (turf). Post—5:00.

Ind	PP	Horse,	Jockey	Wt.	Odds

Underrated White Marlin Grabs Met Tourney Lead

A leading white marlin and a sure citation winner in the Herald sponsored Metropolitan Miami Fishing Tournament almost missed registry this week because the angler underrated his catch.

James J. Grouse of Swampscott, Mass., was the lucky fisherman and his 73½-lb. white is now the leading contender for the White Marlin Trophy sponsored by the First Federal Savings & Loan Association of Miami.

Swampscott boated the big marlin on a private fishing cruiser with Barry L. West as skipper, and brought his catch in at the new Gulf Docks on Miami Beach. He was persuaded to enter it in the Met by weighmaster Don Melloy of the Gulf Docks Tackle Store.

It beat the former leader on the scoreboard by 19½-pounds, and is the second white marlin to be taken in the current tourney off Miami Beach. The former leader was a 54-pounder brought in at Haulover Beach Docks by James Houlahan of Greenwich, Conn.

Attention Women:

That Old Strike Form Gets You Spares, Too

BY BILLY SIXTY

Not many women bowlers can boast a 190 average — most will settle for a 190 game. Few of them stop to realize that this can be accomplished without a single strike.

Spares, as this fact emphasizes, are of utmost importance. And the fewer strikes you get, the more necessary it becomes to pick up spares in order to score consistently.

Form is the same for spare shooting as for the first ball. Footwork remains co-ordinated with the swing. Body balance and relaxation are important, since there is a tendency toward tension. The body shifts so that the eyes are directly on the target pins, with the shoulders squared at right angles with the target.

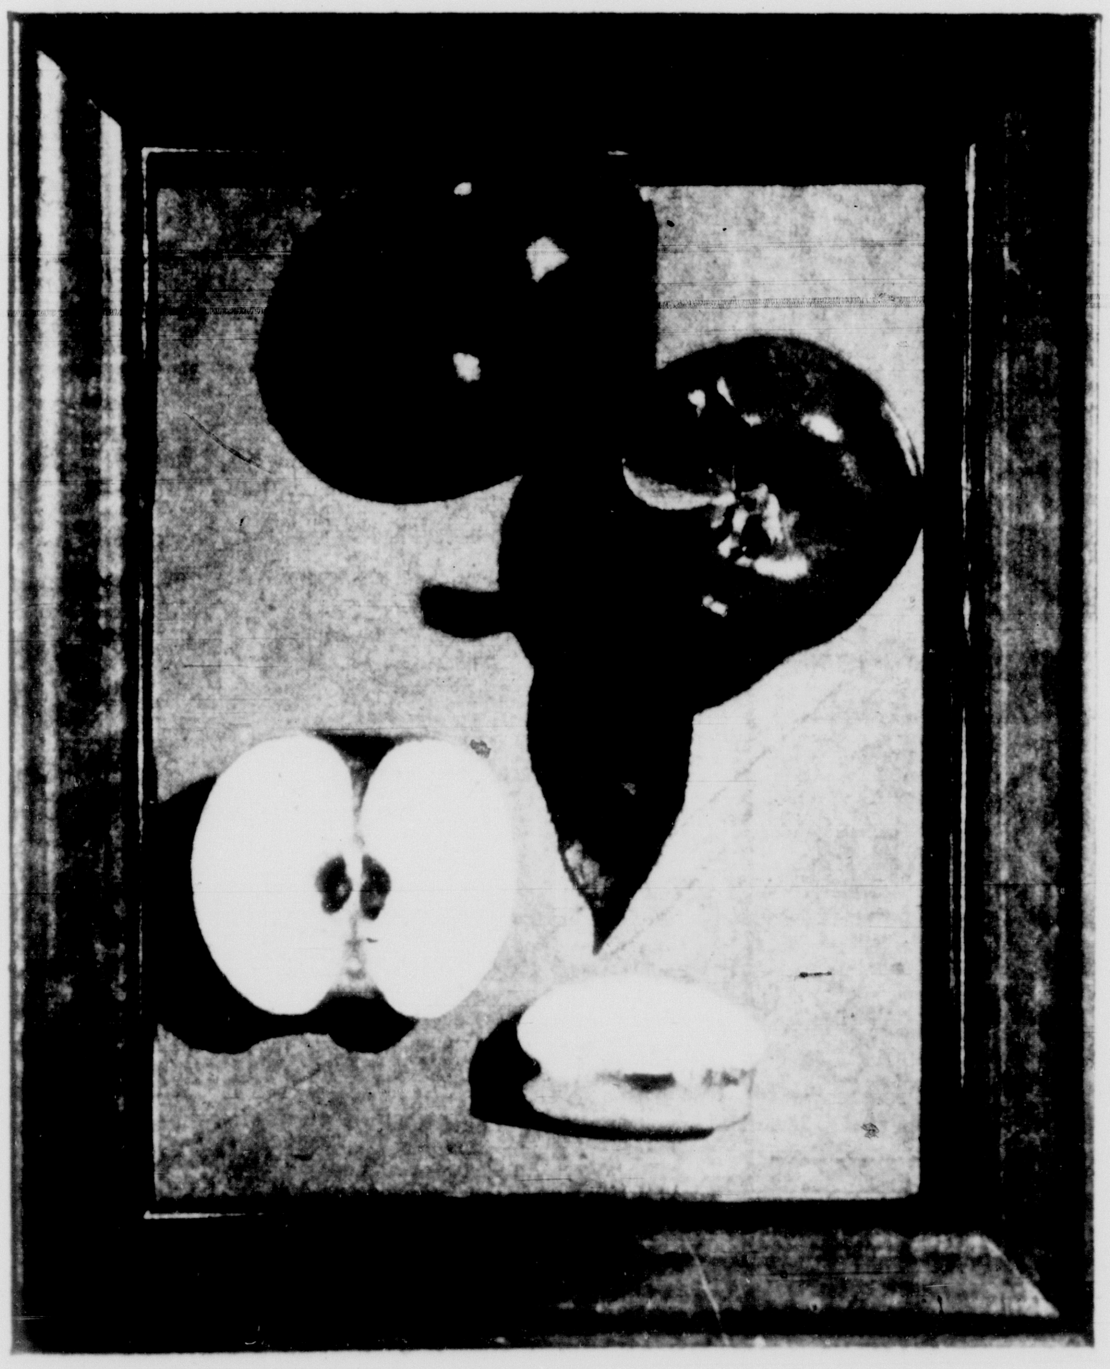
Red Delicious—A Big Apple For Eating Fresh

WINESAPS are true all-purpose apples — for munching raw or cooking any way you like. This crisp, juicy apple has firm flesh which makes it keep longer than most other apples. But keep all apples chilled to keep them firm and sweet.

Golden Delicious—Golden Twin of the Red



Jonathan—An Early Season All Purpose Apple

Know Your Apples

By Jeanne Voltz
Herald Homemaking Editor

My mother used to order "eating apples" or "cooking apples," depending on how she planned to use them.

Our small town grocer invariably sent Red Delicious for fresh eating. Little did he know that the Winesaps, Jonathans and even the hard Rome Beauties he called cooking apples were snitched by us children for eating.

But even children could tell if the apple wasn't right in the pie. It has to be tangy and not cook to mush.

Five apple varieties are pictured on this page. Know a few identifying marks on each apple, and you can fit the apple to how it is served.

Know a Winesap by its deep red color and smooth, glossy skin. Winesaps are small to medium sized and are in markets anytime from November through June.

A Red Delicious has a rich, red skin, and frost white tender meat. Its tall, broad shouldered shape tapers to five knobs on the blossom end. Its season is from October through April.

They are perfect salad apples, holding their whiteness when sliced better than other apples. They are best known for eating raw but can be cooked, too.

A Golden Delicious is shaped similar to Red Delicious, but is less broad shouldered and not quite so tall. It may be available anytime from November through March, but it is best in midwinter.

JONATHANS lower left, are the apples which bob merrily in tubs of water at Halloween. They begin coming to market in September. And their season is almost over now.

The Jonathan is excellent for eating raw. It also can be use for pies, sauces and general cooking.

You can tell a Jonathan by its brilliant scarlet skin, usually a little lighter red than Red Delicious. It is striped with deeper red and speckled with gold.

ROME BEAUTIES at lower right are tops for cooking. Because their heavier skin won't shrivel in cooking they are considered the best apples for baking. They are good for pies, sauces and other cooking.

Rome Beauties are almost perfectly round and usually large. They are light red, tinged with pink or yellow. Rome Beauties may be in markets from November through March.

McINTOSHES, in many markets now, are for eating raw or cooking. This variety is a medium-sized apple, bright deep red with paler stripes. It is juicy, fairly tart and crisp.

YORK IMPERIAL is a good pie apple, can be eaten fresh and cooked in other ways. Its skin is light or purplish red over yellow. It usually has a lopsided shape. Its season is October to April.

STAYMANS, dull striped red apples, are in markets now and then. They are good raw, for general cooking and baking whole.

* * *

The recipes above right suggest the apple to use in them. But follow the guides and you can substitute with varities available.

Stuffed Apples

4 large Rome Beauty apples
1 cup diced baked ham or luncheon meat
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1/4 cup raisins
1/4 cup chopped pecans
6 tablespoons brown sugar
4 tablespoons water
2 tablespoons vinegar
1 tablespoon dry mustard

Scoop out apples as for a cup and chop centers. Mix 1 cup chopped apples with meat, butter, raisins pecans and 2 tablespoons brown sugar. Fill apple cups with stuffing. Meanwhile combine water, remaining brown sugar, vinegar and mustard. Bring to a boil.

Spoon glaze over apples. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) 45 minutes. Baste now and then with glaze. This is an excellent Sunday brunch dish. Makes 4 servings.

Golden Delicious Salad

1 package lemon-flavored gelatin
1/2 cup hot water
1 cup ginger ale or sauterne wine
2 tablespoons lemon or lime juice
1/2 cup pitted ripe olives
1/2 cup chopped walnuts
1 1/2 cups diced Golden Delicious apples
Pinch salt

Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Let cool. Add ginger ale and stir to mix well. Add lemon juice. Pour 1/3 cup gelatin mixture in mold and chill until almost set.

Rotate mold so gelatin adheres to sides. Place a few sliced olives, unpeeled apple slices and, if wished, asparagus or halved artichoke hearts in mold. Chill while combining remaining ingredients.

Fold ripe olives, walnuts and diced apples into remaining gelatin mixture. Turn into mold. Chill until firm. Serve with mayonnaise or other dressing. Garnish with slices of Golden or Red Delicious apples. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Cyprus Underground Uses Israeli Tactics

Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

NICOSIA, Cyprus—The EOKA Greek underground on Cyprus is imitating Israel's experience in fighting the British army.

Their latest device is the "Haganah" bomb, an inexpensive home makeshift of bottled explosives, substitute for a grenade.

Haganah, the Jewish underground organization, invented this bomb in the Palestine war.

How She Got The Black Eye

She stepped out of a car carrying a purse, briefcase and jar of hand cream. She spied a friend and waved. The jar of handcream flew out of her hand and hit her in the right eye.

'We're Kaput, Movie Is Shut'

RIVERTON, Wyo. — (AP) — The marquee sign on a drive-in theater closed for the winter reads:

"Roses are dead, violets are drooped,
"Summer has gone and We are pooped.
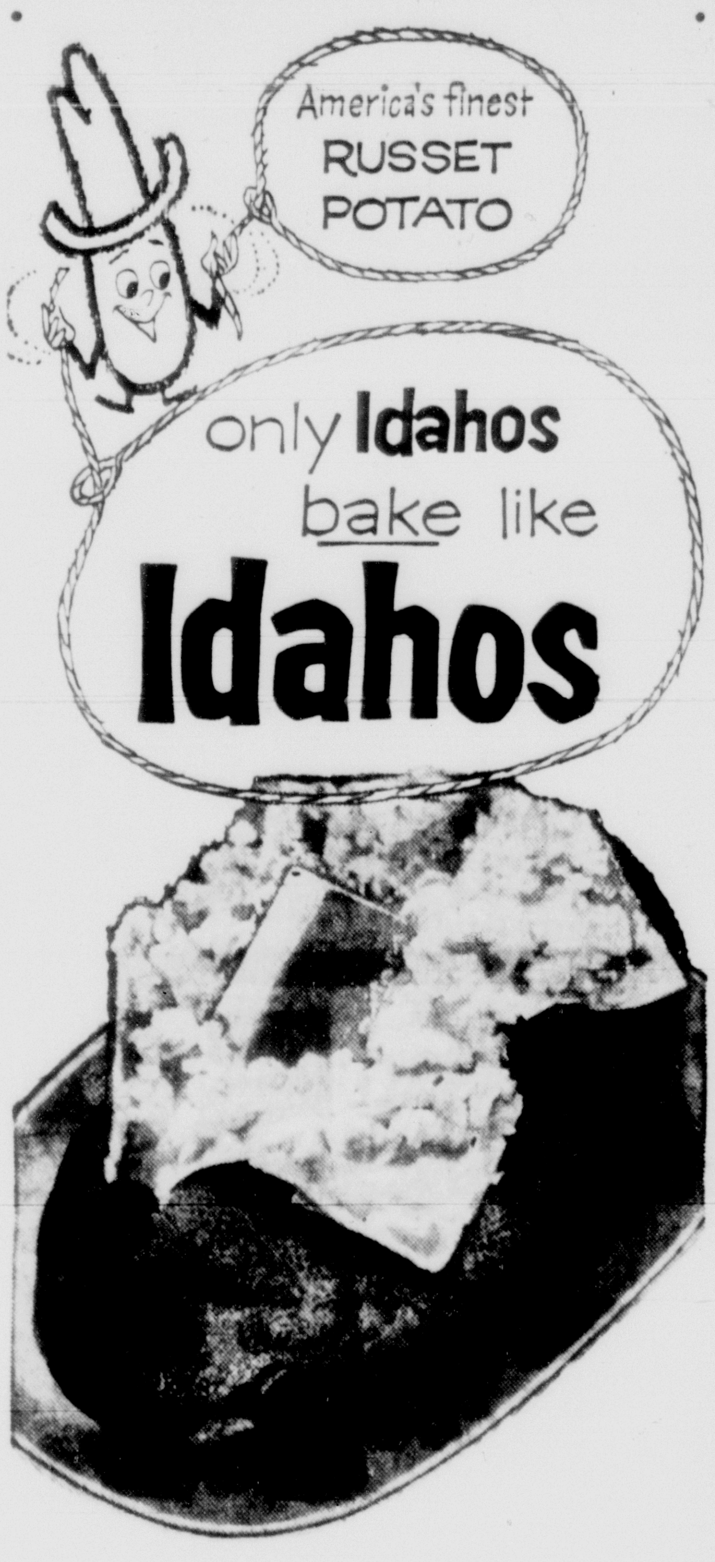
Bill and Zubie."



Wherever you travel you will find Idaho bakers featured on the menus of America's great hotels and restaurants, extra-fare trains and luxury ships. Small, medium or large, they are at once the most famous and the finest of all baked potatoes. Serve baked Idahos often—they are so nutritious, so delicious.

GROWN IN IDAHO

Look for "Grown in Idaho" on the potatoes or containers—it's your assurance of genuine Idahos.

Take Your Time About Marriage, But Don't Get 'Manana' Complex

Della is Hamlet's modern twin. And she has a lot of folks in the same boat with her. Under the age of 21, many girls jump into marriages without enough caution and foresight, but after 25, many of them become slaves of the "manana" complex. Beware of both dangers.

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

DELLA Q., 28, just finished long telephone talk with me.

"Dr. Crane, I am due to be married in three days," she had said, "but I think maybe I ought to postpone the wedding.

"However, the announcements have been made and many of my friends have held showers in my honor, so I hesitate to back out.

"But I feel jittery. Marriage is a serious thing and I wonder if I shouldn't wait a while longer."

Another name for this is stage fright. It is the terror we all tend to feel when we tackle a new and very important task for the first time.

Girls of 17 or 18 rush into weddings with little forethought. They elope with unfit suitors and soon may rue their stupidity.

But when they are in the late 20's, like Della, they often fall victim to the dangerous habit which the Spanish call "manana," or "tomorrow." That's the tendency to procrastinate.

★ ★ ★

THE LONGER a man or woman goes before marrying, the greater is the tendency to debate and analyze and then postpone a decision till later.

And after the age of 30 to 35, it is extremely difficult for an old bachelor to make up his mind.

Della was engaged to a fine fellow, of the same background, religion and social outlook as her own.

Her family and friends knew they would make an ideal marriage. And Della admitted she loved him and would be heartbroken if she should ever lose him, yet she still debated!

You Shakespearean scholars well remember Hamlet's futile debate "to be or not to be."

Well, thousands of bachelors and spinsters of Della's age and upward, also go through a similar debate over the question "to be or not to be — married!"

★ ★ ★

THIS IS typical buck fever, especially when family and friends know the couple are well suited and they both love each other.

"Oh, Dr. Crane," Della had protested on the phone, "I know I love Don with all my heart. But I just feel we ought to wait six months longer."

Did you ever analyze the action of people at a swimming pool? The younger folks, such as the group that rush into marriage via elopement, will run and plunge in, without even checking on the water's temperature.

But the older group, like Della, will diffidently stick their big toe down into the water to test its temperature.

Then they may shiver and delay and procrastinate half the afternoon, trying to work up their courage to take a swim.

Unless somebody gives them a push, they may even fritter away the whole day on the sand.

Yet as soon as they do take the plunge, they are usually delighted and have a jolly time in the water.

So it is with diffident folks past the age of 25 when they contemplate marriage. They either show buck fever or else get so eager to have a wedding ring that they take undue chances.

You'll dance . . .
FOR JOY!

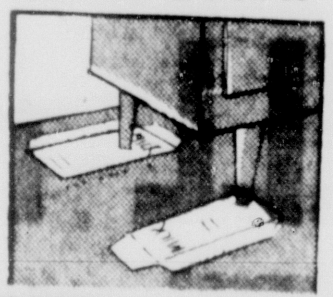
Slick Trick



TO MOVE heavy furniture more easily, and to avoid marks on the floor, slide it onto strips cut from waxed milk cartons.

Thief Unwise

TUCSON, Ariz. — (AP) — Oscar L. Bueno told police someone stole his hat. Police don't think they'll have trouble recognizing the hat. It was part of Bueno's police uniform.

Etiquette

Bad Manners and Ornery Outlook Traced to Lack of Sleep

By AMY VANDERBILT

NOT having enough sleep is perhaps one of the biggest causes of ill temper, bad manners, downright orneriness.

AMY

A well-known morning television star recently said that she gave up her $100,000 a year job because she found that through lack of sleep, lack of rest, she was snapping at her kind husband. And no amount of money could repay her for the loss of her good nature.

In a booklet I have before me, "Sleep, the Restorer," it says:

"For most people, sleep comes sooner if they relax for a pleasant half hour before going to bed. If a tense card game, office homework or a family argument continues right up to bedtime, sleep is likely to be far away. A change from the day's fast pace is called for, and listening to radio music, watching a late television show, or reading a light story tends to relieve the tensions of ordinary living. Women seem to have a 'built-in' way of relaxing — they cream a tired face, brush the hair a hundred times, and 'do' their hands. The important thing is to find what helps you relax the most."

* * *

"DEAR Miss Vanderbilt: My husband leaves for work at 6:30 in the morning. We try not to entertain on Sunday nights because of this, but sometimes it is necessary to do so and we find that an occasional visitor lingers on long after the time should have come for goodnights.

"Do we, 'properly,' have to sit up until the last guest leaves, or may we say something about the next day being a working day? My husband needs his sleep, and so do I because I do all of my own work and have several small children. People are sometimes so thoughtless about this kind of thing. — S. A., Cleveland, Ohio."

Some people never take the hint, but there are many devices a hostess uses in an effort to show the guests that the evening has come to an end.

She can stop serving refreshments. Sometimes she can delicately begin to gather up the ash trays. Or, especially in a case like yours, she can say something such as this: "I do hope that you will excuse John now as he has to get up very early in the morning, but, of course, you and I can chat awhile longer." Usually they do then take the hint and say their goodnights. If they are so insensitive as not to do so, then I am afraid that you as hostess must sit with them until they are ready to leave.

Of course, if some unpleasant situation does develop — such as a guest drinking too much — the hostess may certainly say firmly, "I am terribly sorry, but we have a busy day before us tomorrow, so we shall have to say goodnight." Then the trick is to get him safely on his feet and moving toward home. But it can be done, and politely.

It's Still Wild Way Out West

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — (AP) — The West is still wild.

A 44-year-old Indian was jailed and charged with assault after he shot another Indian who, he claimed "was going to turn himself into a snake and bite me."

Biologist Tackles Science's Mr. Big

By ARTHUR J. SNIDER
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

CHICAGO — A laboratory researcher, mother and housewife has taken on a Mr. Big of science in a dispute over fallout effects.

SNIDER

Mrs. Miriam Finkel, a biologist at the atomic energy installation here, refused to stand in awe when Linus Pauling, a distinguished chemist, scholar and Nobel Prize winner, publicly criticized her study on statistical grounds.

Mrs. Finkel shot back with a statement that said in effect that she is working from scientific data while Pauling has been arguing from assumptions and premises that may or may not be true.

Pauling, professor of chemistry at California Institute of Technology, is an ardent advocate of halting nuclear weapons testing.

He has contended in speeches and articles that tests already carried out will cause about 10,000 persons to die of leukemia and thousands of others from bone cancer due to radioactive strontium in fallout.

Mrs. Finkel asserts her data do not support such dire remarks.

In fact, if animal evidence could be made to apply to humans, she doubts that at present testing levels even one bone tumor or one case of leukemia has been caused by fallout.

"This is not an area in which Dr. Pauling has done research," said Mrs. Finkel.

"If the subject were in his own field (protein chemistry) I would not dare to challenge him. But in this field dealing with the potential consequences of fallout, I feel more competent than he."

Stick to Your Studies, Little Boy

Schoolroom Is No Place to Read This Column

By ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN: I'm in hot water and it's all your fault

I was reading a newspaper in class this morning and in a matter of minutes I sensed a human nearby—just standing there. It wasn't the teacher. Worse yet. It was the principal.

ANN

He said, "What do you think you are doing?" I gulped a few times and said "I am reading Ann Landers." He said, "So I see" and then he hauled me up to the teacher.

Now I have to write your column out in long-hand every day for two weeks unless you will print my letter and advise students that it is not wise to read your column during class. Please get me out of this. Do you know that your average column has 706 words in it? My arm is about to fall off.—DAVE.

Dear Dave: I am flattered by your loyalty but I am distressed that it has caused you trouble. I'll do my best to get you off the hook:

Hear ye! Hear ye! All students who read Ann Landers in class. Desist. Refrain. Let not your eye be beguiled by "unscheduled" reading matter. Ye shall be graded on your knowledge of Homer and Kant. Not Landers. Chance it not or ye may be banished from the classroom forever—and ME with thee.

* * *

DEAR ANN: Your answer to "Marybelle" really hit the spot with me. I, too, had a boy friend without a car and was embarrassed because we had to ask other people for rides, or take a bus, or use good old-fashioned shoe-leather.

I was a girl who had a lot on the ball, and I was pretty, too. I could have gone with any fellow in college but this guy was terrific (though broke). I decided to go along with him, and make whatever sacrifices were necessary.

I'll never forget the time he rode me to the swimming pool on a bicycle. I sat between him and the handle-bars! When some kids we know passed us on the highway in a new Buick, I almost died of shame.

That was in 1950. We married two years later and now we have a lovely home (paid for) and beautiful furniture.

My car is '58 model and he drives a sport car to work. The fellow who passed us in the Buick is still driving the same car (this is nine years later). I am very happy I had the sense to stick with a guy who had potential—G. R. G.

* * *

DEAR ANN: Boy, have I got a problem! The office manager is a gentleman in his middle 50's. He has a habit that drives the rest of us batty. He clicks his false teeth when he reads reports or does figuring. Sometimes, during a conversation on the phone, when he's waiting for a long-distance connection he'll start those teeth going. It's enough to make a person blow his top.

Several of us in the office have discussed this and we are unable to decide what to do. One girl quit a few months ago because she said she was afraid she'd explode and tell him to his face. Please don't think this is a joke. We are in dead earnest and need advice.—RAW NERVES

Dear Raw Nerves: This man has no idea that he is pushing all of you to "the brink." No one would knowingly click his store-choppers and advertise the fact that he has 32 paid assistants in his mouth.

A well worded (but gentle) note should be placed on the gentleman's desk telling him this habit is annoying to his colleagues. It should be signed "All of us." The chances are excellent that if he knew he'd see his dentist about an adjustment which he has probably needed for some time.

* * *

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Miami Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

He Collects Old Revenue

When he took office Schuck found a stack of old bills nobody had bothered to collect. Most of the money was due for paving improvements, some of them made in 1953.

The mayor said that in some cases residents had not paid because they felt the jobs weren't completed. "In such cases we did the work and collected the bills," he said.

Ailing Cecil 'Over the Hump'

Cecil, the father camel at Crandon Park Zoo, has been under a doctor's care for the past week, Robert Mattlin, zoo director, reports.

He said that the veterinarian thought that Cecil was over the hump.

"Apparently he had some sort of digestive upset," Mattlin explained.

Mattlin said Cecil felt so poorly Sunday that he folded his legs up under him and sat down. He seemed completely lacking in hope and without interest in living.

But Monday morning, Cecil was as frisky as ever, which isn't too frisky. But he ate his morning hay, and by noon looked as if he were ready for a beef steak.

Mattlin scoffed at the possibility that Cecil had worried himself into a sick spell because of Cecilia's condition. His wife is in a delicate way expecting a second baby camel.

Maybe Officer Was Laughing

PIKEVILLE, Ky — (AP) — Asked why she hadn't heeded a summons for jury duty served by a deputy sheriff, a woman told Judge F. Pierce Keesee, "I thought he was kiddin'."

The judge believed her and didn't fine her.

Keeping Up to Date

What Ever Became of . . .

NICK ALTROCK—the great Chicago White Sox pitcher who became one of the top clowns in baseball? Nick was at his pitching peak from 1904 through 1906. He turned to clowning on field in 1912 with the Washington Senators when his relief pitching started slipping. Nick eventually dragged down more pay as a chuckle-provoking coach with the Senators than he ever did as a hurler.

Today at 82, Nick Altrock is still carried on the Washington roster as an honorary coach. Nick divides his time between Washington, D.C., and Sarasota, Fla. He heads for Sarasota when it starts getting cold, spends his time lobby-sitting in a Sarasota hotel and watching exhibition games.

Cookbook Pays For Education

The American Daughters of Sweden presented the University of Chicago with $16,000 toward a $30,000 endowment fund for scholarships for coeds of Swedish descent.

Most of the fund was raised from the sale of a 180-page cookbook containing recipes for 22 different ways to prepare herring as well as many other Swedish delicacies.

Time Out

INDIANAPOLIS — (AP) — Mrs. Joan Miles was watching a house fire in her neighborhood when a passerby rushed up and told her that her own home was burning. Hastily recruiting a couple of firemen, Mrs. Miles ran home and supervised while a blazing window curtain was extinguished.

Today's Cele-Birthday

* * *

A church soloist at 12, Rosa was "discovered" by a church organist who passed her home and heard her singing—asked that she sing in the choir. The star was auditioned by Caruso and joined Metropolitan Opera to sing opposite him—with no previous operatic experience. She was a success in her first performance. A throat tumor once threatened her career but she overcame the malady. Rosa sings only at home, now—but friends insist her voice is as good as ever.

My Answer

God Wants Willing Hearts

By BILLY GRAHAM

QUESTION: I am a student at a university and have come to the conclusion that I should spend my life in service to God. How should I prepare?

ANSWER: I am trying to answer your query in a personal letter but there are wide implications which justify an answer in this column to which you have written.

GRAHAM

No man can truly serve God until he has been prepared for service by God Himself. In other words, we must ourselves be Christians before we can lead others to Christ. Peter, one of Christ's disciples, confessed Him as Lord, told Him of his love for Him and his determination to follow Him regardless of the cost.

But, he demurred when Christ started to wash his feet. At this our Lord replied: "If I wash thee not, thou hast no part with me."

Here Christ was making plain to Peter and to all who would serve Him that we must be prepared by something He alone can do for us. Later, after His resurrection, Christ commanded His disciples to remain in Jerusalem until they had received the outpouring of the Holy Spirit.

Today only too often we go out to do the Lord's work before we have received the cleansing and power necessary for the work.

God wants willing hearts and ready feet. He wants eager minds and consecrated hands.

But all of these must be prepared by God Himself and made completely subject to His will and way. When He has prepared you, you are then ready for service and that service will be blessed.

Why the Indians Bring the Kids Along to Hialeah

By REGRET
Herald Columnist

Dots of bright color on Hialeah's mid-track lake and islands are an old story. Those flamingos and their afternoon dips are almost as vital to the park as the horses.

But this year flamingo pink isn't the only color in fashion. All the rainbow has to offer is found in the skirts of the family of Seminole Indins who every afternoon recline on the islands' grassy banks or paddle serenely through the sky-reflecting water

Winners' Circle

The family numbers five, and it might even be considered royalty for William McKinley Osceola Jr. is the 27-year-old son of famous Seminole chief Willie Osceola. Every year on Flamingo Day this patriarch and some of his tribe are part of the big stake day's pageantry, but never have Seminoles been part of the daily Park scene.

William Jr. is accompanied by his wife Frances, 23, and children Vicky Tucker Osceola, 5, William McKinley Osceola III, 3, and James Wood Osceola, 5 months. As a matter of fact few people realize Jimmy is there. He's wrapped in a tiny bundle and sticks pretty close to his mother's lap.

Asked why the little injuns came with them every day Frances Osceola hd a familiar answer — no babysitter!

* * *

There is a story of the Texas oil man who couldn't find a hotel room in Oklahoma City one weekend so he bought a completely furnished house on the town's outskirts. He still uses it when he comes up about five times a year to watch his son, a senior at the University of Oklahoma, play football.

This may not beat that tale, but it comes close. At least three of the well-known horse racing families have bought houses here this year to be within driving distance of the tracks.

Last summer Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Combs bought a place in Bal Harbour. Then they talked Adm. and Mrs. Gene Markey into taking an apartment in the same building.

Most hectic move of all was that of the John Payson Adamses. They moved into their Golden Beach home the day before Hialeah opened. Asked if they planned to entertain opening day Mrs. Adams, the former Muriel Vanderbilt, uttered an emphatic, "Heavens, no!"

* * *

Are the gals' temperaments really that different?

"No," he grinned. "I just make a point of understanding them."

* * *

It wasn't until Tuesday that Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt finally appeared at Hialeah. Everyone had been expecting him, his bride and his battered brown "lucky" hat on opening day. But his private plane hadn't been allowed off the ground at Sarasota because of Friday's sudden rainy blow. But he made it Tuesday.

Due back on Jan. 28 in their oceanfront Miami Beach home are Sadie and "Pat" Cummings . . . since the beginning of the month, also year, they've been in North Carolina on business . . .

Why Can't This Father of 11 Be Free?

Column with a Heart

DEAR ELEANOR HART:

I am a divorcee, raised as a Catholic, age 35. I am in love with a man 43, married for 24 or 25 years, with 11 children.

I went with him three years, saw him every day or evening. We were very much in love.

Two years ago there was a death in his wife's family, and she inherited some money. He took care of the children while she was away. When she came home he had promised to move out, make a complete break with her. Three of their children are on their own.

Two years ago he went to work in another section of the city and I only saw him once in awhile. He made dates, didn't show up. Then I learned he and his wife had gone back together. He had new clothes, etc., and I knew he was out of debt.

Now he's working in a section near me and I see him on weekends, but only to talk to. The other day I asked him what his plans were. He told me he could not leave her for these reasons:

1. He has to put so much in trust so she will not become a public charge (she has not worked under social security).
2. He has to pay her so much a month to live on. She is not in good health — good enough to get around, but not to pass a physical for work.
3. Pay so much a week for each child until the child finishes high school.
4. She gets the house and a good car free and clear.
5. He could visit the children once a week but take them nowhere in my presence.

She has taught the children divorce is something to be ashamed of and anyone who believes in the Lord can never marry again. And she quotes the Bible on that.

My answer is:

1. For her to get out and work.
2. All she needs is to lose about 50 pounds and she'll be in good health. Otherwise, starve.
3. Pay a small amount a week for each child until he is 16, then the child can quit school and go to work.
4. Use the house until the youngest is 16, and walk or ride the bus.
5. Let me be known as the children's mother, too. I cannot have any children.

I think the older son should support his mother, brothers and sisters and let his father free to love one of his choice. Don't you think he should divorce her and make an honest woman of me? I say he owes me that.

Your opinion will be appreciated.

TESS

Thought for the Day

"We are as often duped by diffidence as by confidence."

—CHESTERFIELD

Hm-m-m. I doubt it, 'cause you won't like it. I say it's time you made an honest woman of yourself . . . you are still young enough to do something worthwhile with your life, but taking a father from his family (no matter how willing he is to be taken) is not the ticket.

Put yourself in the wife's shoes for just a few seconds . . . how would you feel about your itemized answer—points one through five?

'I Can't Even Talk to Boys'

DEAR ELEANOR HART:

My parents have a small store and I always help out. I am 14, will be 15 in February, and I think I am old enough to at least talk to boys. Everytime a boy comes in the store and talks to me, mother gets angry.

The other day a boy I have known all my life came in and said, "What's a pretty girl like you doing in the store tonight?"

I told him I had a cold and couldn't go out (but I really knew mother wouldn't let me). We talked awhile, then I went in the house. Mother asked me who he was talking to, and I said me. She got angry.

He came later and mother didn't want us to talk so she called me in. Mother always tells people I am younger than I am because she doesn't want me to go on dates or talk with boys.

It's no use telling me to talk with my parents because my father is the same way, and they wouldn't hear of talking with me about boys or anything else. What should I do?

Daughter of Old-Fashioned Mother

If you can't talk to your parents, you'd best listen to them — for the time being. I am sure they have their reasons for their attitude, as I am equally sure you haven't quite painted a complete picture of the situation.

I believe that an almost 15 year old should be allowed to attend school functions (basketball games, school dances, class parties) with a date, under "approved" traveling conditions. But that's not the question, is it?

Gay Nineties To Come Back At Bath Club

By HELEN WELLS
Herald Society Editor

"You asked for it, so-o here it is" says a Gay Nineties figure holding a bottle of the Elixir of Life on the front of a folder announcing the Bath Club's new Saturday night gala season.

HELEN WELLS

First of these parties is a Gay Nineties Adventure on Saturday, with "fun, frolic, favors and forensics" plus an authentic Gay Nineties Quartet and other surprises. This is not a costume party, though the club will be transformed into a gay nineties setting.

Jan and Mike Cowles are entertaining a group for their houseguests, Mrs. John Wells, and her daughter, Kiki (Christine) of San Fancisco. Lucile Newkirk (Bryan is not coming down from Toronto until Feb. 3) is having a table for 35. Among her guests are her houseguests, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nunnally of Atlanta and Bishop Thomas Wright of North Carolina, who have spent the week with her at Duck Key.

Before party time at the Bath, Pat and Ted Gary are having a "launching party" at their home on Indian Creek Island. They'll smack a bottle of champagne over the nose of their new 40 foot, air conditioned fishing boat, the P.T.I. (Pat and Ted, of course).

Other Gay Nineties hosts include Howard Young, the Oscar Doolys, the Roy Hawkins, the Maurice Fields . . . to name a few.

Geritys To Donate Favors

The Geritys are donating the favors for women guests at Committee of 100's annual dinner dance, Bal Prestige, at Indian Creek Club Jan. 27.

The Geritys arrived on Monday and on Tuesday entertained John Richards, president of the American Institute of Architects, and Mrs. R. at a dinner party at the Surf Club.

* * *

Watch Out for Spooks

A note from Mathilde Collins anent the White Witch of Rosehall, Jamaica, says that when she was traveling there in 1954 and rode past the haunted plantation, furniture was being moved out and sold as antiques.

"But," she adds, "no one—no one—in Jamaica would set foot in the haunted house." It seems that people from the U.S. were hired to go into the house and move the furniture out.

* * *

Cocktails and a Cruise

They wanted to "do something different" and they are. Joining forces down Homestead way, Judge and Mrs. Ralph Jordan, Dr. and Mrs. George Pena, Dr. and Mrs. Dwight Castleberry and Mrs. Fred Warnack are hosts at a cocktail party on Saturday at the Flamingo Lodge, Everglades National Park.

After cocktails from 7:30 'til 9:30 there'll be moonlight cruises plus dancing after 10. Judges and dignitaries from Miami are on the guest list plus "brass" from the Homestead Air Base and other friends.

* * *

Miss Wiles Engaged

Word from Ivan L. Wiles, a retired executive vice president of General Motors, and Mrs. Wiles of Flint, Mich., who are vacationing in Miami Beach at the Sea View Hotel, tells of the engagement of their daughter, Martha Link Wiles and David C. Kremendahl, son of the H. F. Kremendahls of Flint.

Miss Wiles

The bride-to-be graduated from Kingswood School, Cranbrook, in Bloomfield Hills, attended Randolph Macon and graduated from University of Michigan. She is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta and a provisional member of the Flint Junior League.

Her fiance graduated from West Point and after active service with the Air Force in Korea resigned his commission to enter business. He is regional sales manager of Stokley-Van Camp of which his father is president.

Merry Evening Ahead

Another merry evening for members of Beach Colony Club is on the date book for Friday at the Americana Hotel. They'll have cocktails, dinner dancing and the floor show at this informal party.

Chairmen for the dinner dance are Jean and Dick Marshall, Clara Mae and Bill Simmons, Louise and Jerome Schilling. Jeri and Bill Parry are entertaining Ann Van Sciver, John Astor, the Henry F. Hills. New members, the E. W. Chandlers, Dr. and Mrs. James Merritt, the Edward R. Palmers and the William G. Wards will be on hand.

* * *

Some Rare Documents

During a "tedious business trip" to Washington, Buford Lynch, who collects historical documents, says he acquired two manuscripts written and signed by Napoleon's brother, Jerome Bonaparte.

Mr. Lynch
. . . As lieutenant

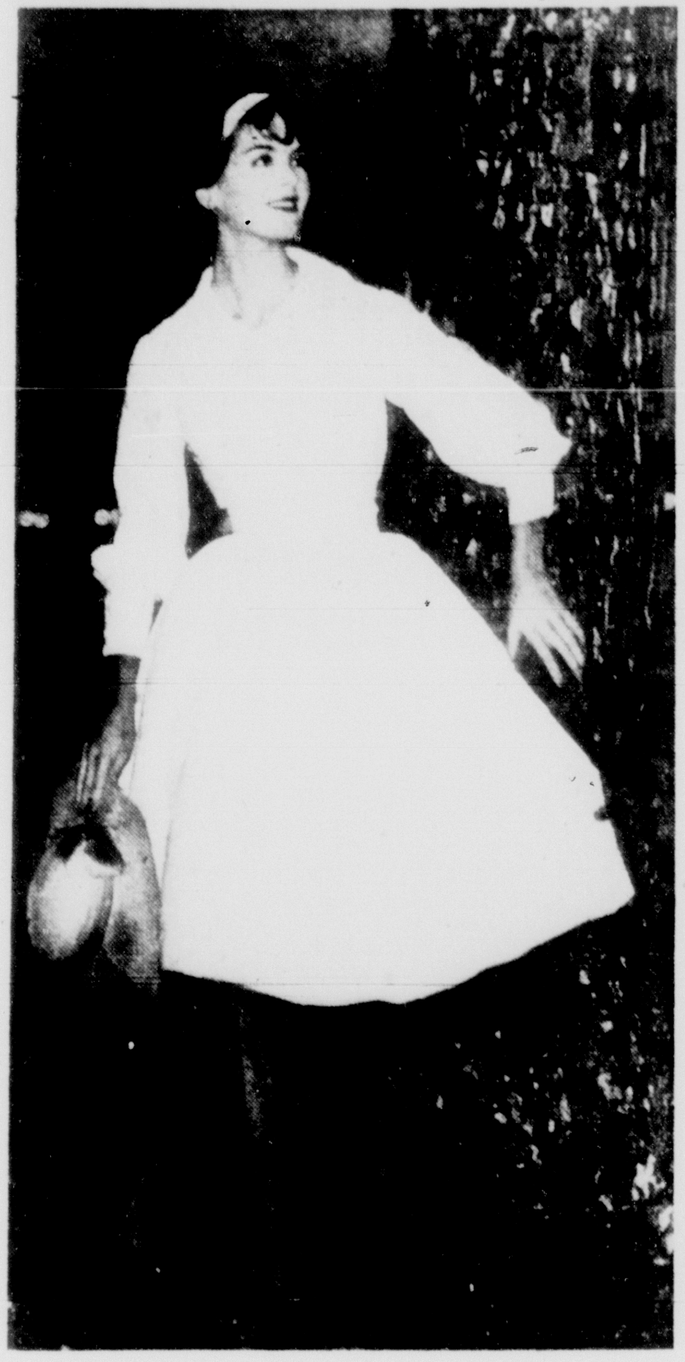
If you remember your history, you know that Jerome Bonaparte married a Baltimore belle, Betsy Patterson, in 1807. Napoleon never recognized the marriage and had it annulled, nor were Betsy and her child ever allowed to set foot on French soil.

Mr. Lynch is a 1924 graduate of West Point and a retired lieutenant. The accompanying picture was taken of him when he was a member of the Army polo team in Hawaii.

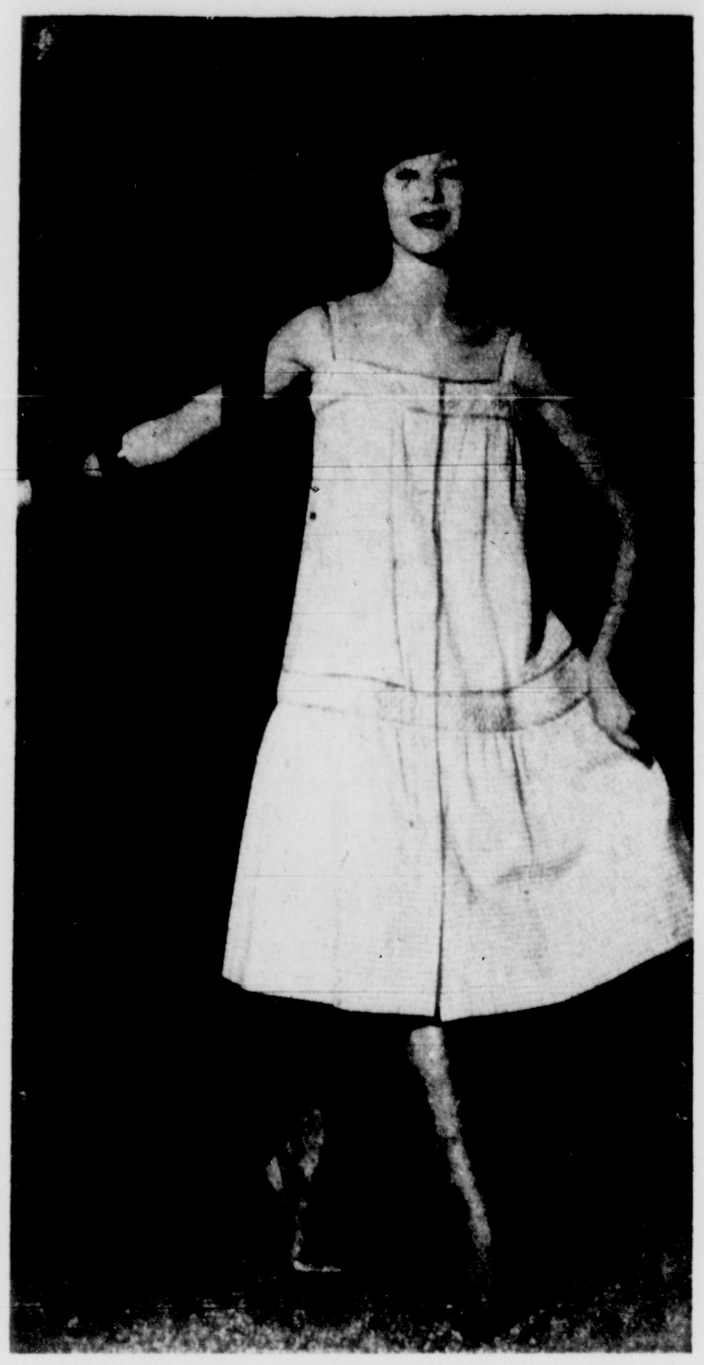
* * *

Change of pace for the Young Patronesses of the Opera Guild was a meeting aboard Dorsey and Tom Raffington's yacht, The Tomcat. While they cruised down the Bay they made plans for the YP's Spring Star luncheon at the Dupont Plaza on Feb. 27.

The French Ready-To-Wear Picture



All-Important Shirtwaist Dress
. . . of white embroidered organdy



Beach Dress With Empire Look
. . . it's gingham, covers a bikini

By ADELINE FITZGERALD
Herald Writer

PARIS — The ready-to-wear houses of Paris have shown their spring and summer things for 1959.

Two silhouettes have emerged from these showings. In one, the normal waistline is back, cinched tight to make some of the tiniest waistlines in years. In the other there is a slightly raised waistline.

But remember, this is the ready-to-wear picture. The high stylists will not make known their thinking until showings which begin Monday.

* * *

THE 1959 SHIRTWAIST dress is sheer delight — of organdy, or voile or broderie anglaise—trim as a school-ma'am's—with full three-quarter sleeves gathered into wide cuffs, neatly buttoned; a snug belt and a billowing short skirt. These lingerie dresses are in all collections.

"The shirtwaist model is the most useful dress in a woman's wardrobe today," says Pierre Billet, one of the largest ready-to-wear designers in France.

The secondary silhouette: with its slightly raised waistline is achieved with a ribbon or a bow, and often with a rose of the dress material posed on the midriff.

This one rose, made by twirling the material rather than by cutting it into petals, is the single most-used trimming for spring and summer.

These are not the roses of yesteryear—the pinks and reds that bloomed in such profusion all during 1958. These roses are gray, on gray, or black on white.

Suit jackets are all short for spring, coming to the waistline or the hip bone, and closing with one, two or at most three large buttons, or with bows. Skirts are straight and narrow, but full enough at the waistline to be gathered into a high waistband.

* * *

THE WINTER fondness for black mink carries over into spring. A black mink choker goes with so many things. Worn with a full-length white wool coat, black cartwheel hat and black accessories, it was wildly applauded in the Mozes collection.

In fact, the Daily Double for Spring is black and white. Or navy and white. Alayne makes an elegant cocktail suit of navy lace over white chiffon.

All of the pernod, pastis, citron and olive shades which might be called the cocktail colors, are still with us. Carrot is very good. And there is a flamboyant yellow red.

British Revolt Against Paris

LONDON — (UPI) — British women and London's dress designers are in revolt.

Without waiting for the traditional lead from the Paris fashion shows which begin next Monday, they already have decided what they are going to wear this coming spring and summer.

It is — the "British Look."

Dress manufacturers said today it would be the dominant look this spring and summer, although some women in the upper income brackets still might follow the lead from the Paris fashion houses.

The revolt, the manufacturers said, was universal. British women responded to it "like the response to some inaudible bird call."

They said the "British Look" would be characterized by gently dropped shoulders, straight but not severe tailoring with many cardigan suits, hats that were large but never overwhelming and skirts that reached at least an inch below the knee when the wearer was seated.

The revolt spread to colors, too. The "fruit look" will be this summer's color scheme with lemon and grapefruit, yellows, orange, tangerine, almond cream, red apple and plum purple.

The dress trade spokesmen said today the Parisian fashion kings had no one to blame but themselves for the revolt.

Italian Romanticism: The New Fashion Look

FLORENCE, Italy —(P)— Emilio Schuberth, the movie stars' friend, has unveiled a spring and summer fashion collection of fairy tale gowns reminiscent of an indefinite prewar epoch.

The man who dresses Gina Lollobrigida, Martine Carol and numerous others came up with a spectacle of accordion pleats, rosebuds, velvet ribbons and berthas.

Whatever else may happen in the uncertain world of rising hems, falling waistlines, and disappearing collars, he adheres to his own strict principles of style and beauty appreciated by noted clients throughout the world.

Spring and summer collections shown earlier by Antonelli and Carosa exhibited a romantic strain. But Schuberth's frocks and finery, entitled "Symphony 1959," had a rustle of spring that sent romanticism back to the garden swing.

Most models have tight waists, full skirts, puffed sleeves and cape collars. They are worn with wide two-layer hats.

MARY ASTOR: My Story

'Now I Know Why I Kept That Diary'

Despite the birth of the child she had always wanted, Mary Astor's marriage to Franklyn Thorpe was going badly. She decided to take a vacation in New York.

One In a Series

My friend Marian Spitzer told me she had written two of her oldest friends, Bennett Cerf and George S. Kaufman, and instructed them to see that I had a good time. She predicted that I would like George and fall for Bennett, but she was wrong. I liked Bennett and fell for George Kaufman.

And these were the pages of my diary that were published — the account of my romance with George.

Late summer in New York was enchanting, when most people had left for the country. We went for drives in the park in hansoms; we heard Eddie Duchin play at the old Park Casino; we went to see George's musical, As Thousands Cheer. George was an extremely attractive man, for all his ungainly frame and saturnine mien. His wit was not confined to the printed page; it touched all he did, no matter how trivial or ordinary.

By this time I was bored with Franklyn. Our life was a series of explosions, usually over minor things.

I began to talk divorce, and the talk was considerable. I knew that it certainly was not going to be what is called "amicable."

Secretly I went to a real estate agent and rented a small house on Tower Road in Beverly Hills; and then I told Franklyn that if he wouldn't leave, the baby and I would move out.

What followed brought my whole life collapsing around me in a pile of dust and rubble.

* * *

'It Threatened To Devour Me'

I HAD KEPT A DIARY for years and I had realized for some time that it might be used in a divorce action. The diary revealed not only all the details of my own life from the period of Russell Bradbury to the present, but it also revealed much that I knew about other people. The lives of many people would be affected.

Mary Astor and Her Daughter Marilyn

... Marilyn was center of 1936 bitter custody fight

I finally decided that the best thing to do was to submit to divorce on Franklyn's terms. Marylyn and I moved to Tower Road — Franklyn wanted only her legal custody —and he got an uncontested divorce in 1935.

When people asked me, "Why on earth did you keep a diary? How could you be so foolish?" it was much too complicated and too simple to explain.

I'm not sure I could have explained it even to myself then. But now I think I can better understand my motives.

I kept a diary because my mother had kept one in identical ledger volumes. I wanted to talk about my own activities and my opinions of other people and the things they did. I wanted the assurance of individuality and reality and substance that the diary gave me. The diary was a consolation and a reassurance.

But when it was no longer in my possession it was suddenly transformed into a monster that threatened to devour me and my friends, and, worst of all, Marylyn.

* * *

'My Lawyer Flinched'

I HAD RENEWED my acquaintance with a well-known actress and I gradually told my friend something of the situation surrounding my divorce and the diary. She had a lawyer whom she praised highly to me, Roland Rich Woolley. She urged me to at least tell Woolley the story and see what he thought of it.

He flinched when I told him the details of the diary, but after he had thought over all that I had said to him he told me there was an excellent chance that he could keep the diary out of the case. He suggested that I sue for custody of Marylyn.

Finally our case was on the calendar. Judge Goodwin Knight was presiding, and from the first I felt at ease with him. The papers handled it very mildly at first, until the reporters smelled out the fact that a diary was involved. Then they began to display more interest.

The papers were clamoring for the diary, and Woolley was keeping it out as irrelevant. Then one day Franklyn's attorney showed me a single page cut from the diary and asked me to identify the handwriting. Woolley stopped that at once.

After the session that day he told me he thought he had the answer to the diary problem, but he wasn't quite ready to tell me what it was. He had to be sure first. He began to intimate in court that he might be willing that the diary should be admitted as evidence.

* * *

The Forgery Was Lurid

WITH THE AVOWED POSSIBILITY that the diary might enter directly into the case, publicity flared. One night I was called to a meeting in Sam Goldwyn's office, where I found an assembly of the producers from all the studios, with their lawyers. Irving Thalberg was the spokesman.

He told me they thought that Woolley and I were making a grave mistake. If the information they had received was true, the trial and the diary would create a vicious scandal. The scandal would give the industry a bad name, and I would probably lose the case and the child too. It would be wiser, they suggested, to drop the case, or at least attempt an out-of-court settlement.

I looked at Woolley. He shook his head, and I said, "I'm sorry, gentlemen, but I shall proceed with the case, as my lawyer has advised me."

The next day Woolley told me what it was all about. A certain person who knew that he figured prominently in the diary was not at all happy at the thought of its being admitted as evidence and had substituted a forged version and his lawyer had shown it to the producers in an effort to pressure us into dropping the case or rejecting the diary as evidence.

The forgery was lurid; it contained a "box score" of practically every male big name in the business, and it was loaded with pornographic details.

Fragments of this forgery were "leaked" to the press. Out-of-context phrases appeared, jumbled and joined with dots, put together to make the omissions sound unprintable. I could not sue the entire fourth estate, because of course, each paper was "simply quoting" material from another paper.

I could only beat my fists on Woolley's desk and cry futilely.

There wasn't any "box score" and I never called the damned thing 'Dear Diary.'

Rumors and quotations from the diary also went around town like wildfire.

* * *

Trial Became A Circus

A FEW PAGES of the authentic diary had come into the possession of the examiner. This was mostly the account, romantic and sentimental, certainly not pornographic, of my friendship with George Kaufman. The entire association as revealed by those papers should have been interperted as nothing more than a close friendship. But when people thought of "the diary" they thought not of these rather mild pages, but of the lurid lines quoted from the forgery.

It was becoming a circus. The courtroom was packed every day, and food vendors sold their wares in the halls. I had a few good moments — and some bad ones — on the stand.

I was always exhausted after the sessions were over. Every afternoon I went home under police escort, and Nellie fixed me something to eat, and I had a good masseuse come in to undo the kinks and stroke my back monotonously until finally I fell asleep. The next morning it would start all over again.

(From the book MARY ASTOR: My Story. Copyright, 1959 by Mary Astor. Distributed by Doubleday Syndicate).

Next: Mary Astor completes the story of the Diary scandal and its aftermath.

BIG-APPLE PORK STEAKS

6 pork steaks, ½ inch thick
2 tablespoons fat
Raisin Stuffing
3 tart red apples, cored and halved

Slowly brown pork steaks on both sides in hot fat; season well with salt and pepper. Place in shallow baking dish; cover each steak with layer of Raisin Stuffing, and top with apple half; sprinkle with sugar. Cover dish tightly with foil. Bake in moderate oven (350°) 1 hour or till pork is well done. Makes 6 servings.

RAISIN STUFFING: Toss together 3 cups toasted bread cubes, 1½ cups chopped unpared apple, ½ cup each seedless raisins, chopped celery, chopped onion, 1 teaspoon each salt, poultry seasoning, ¼ teaspoon pepper. Add ½ cup canned condensed beef broth (or 1 beef boullion cube dissolved in ½ cup hot water); toss.

Place the browned steaks in a shallow baking dish (or roaster). Top with Raisin Stuffing, then with rosy apple halves — use baking apples like Rome Beauties. Sprinkle apples with a little sugar. Cover dish with foil (or put lid on roaster).

This is just one of the 71 taste-tested recipes in February Better Homes & Gardens. You'll also enjoy reading an article on how to save money at the meat counter. It has good ideas for delicious, low cost meals.

Egypt Warmly Inviting Investments by Arabs

By GEORGE WELLER
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

NICOSIA, Cyprus — While private Western investments in Egypt are not encouraged, Arab money is being warmly invited — especially if it is royal.

FEISAL

Prince Feisal of Saudi Arabia, who as prime minister and foreign minister has taken over many of the powers of his elder brother, King Saud, has walked through Gamal Abdel Nasser's open door.

Feisal is increasing his heavy investments in Cairo real estate, including a skyscraper apartment house on the Nile.

United Arab Republic President Nasser believes, it is understood, that large-scale private investments by Western groups, like the Belgian holdings in Heliopolis, a Cairo suburb, tend to give the Western governments a foothold of strength unwelcome to Egypt.

Saudi Arabia, however, despite its oil wealth, is a weak state. Investments by the royal family in Egypt are welcomed, because they form a secondary assurance that Saudi Arabia will not drift into a Western orbit.

The Iceman Won't Cometh

NEW YORK — (UPI) — Sheriff John J. McCloskey has appealed to New York's budget officials for an extra $1,500 to replace the ancient icebox in the City Jail with a modern refrigerator.

He said it's hard getting anyone to deliver ice these days.

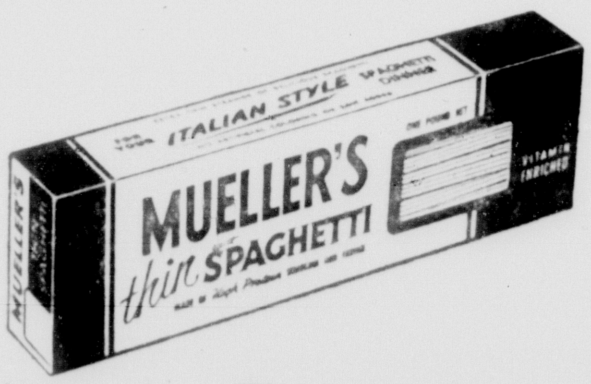
Nobody makes spaghetti like Mueller's
It's more delectable...so digestible

IDEA!
"QUICKIE" SAUCES FROM SOUPS
A real time-saver! And delicious! Heat your favorite condensed soup, season, and serve as spaghetti sauce. Shown is Cream of Mushroom Soup (1 can), to which are added 2 tsps. lemon juice, ½ tsp. Worcestershire Sauce, 1 tbsp. dried parsley flakes. Serve over 1—8 oz. pkg. cooked Mueller's Thin Spaghetti. Sprinkle Parmesan cheese on top, if you like.
Season Cream of Tomato Soup with ¼ tsp. Tabasco Sauce, 1 tbsp. minced onion or chives, ½ tsp. celery seeds.
Season Cream of Chicken Soup with 1 tsp. lemon juice, ½ tsp. grated lemon rind, 2 tbsps. chopped pimiento or sliced stuffed olives. Recipes serve 4.

Nobody makes thin spaghetti like Mueller's. What makes Mueller's so much tastier . . . so light and digestible? It's the blend!

Not just one wheat—but two! Not just Semolina but Semolina plus easy-to-digest Farina. Result—most delectable spaghetti you ever tasted. And so digestible! Vitamin-enriched. High in protein, too!

Tomorrow, serve Mueller's Thin Spaghetti with a "Quickie" Soup Sauce. You'll be a heroine . . . with the family—or with guests! No one will guess it's so quick and easy.



Semolina plus Farina makes

Mme. de Gaulle
. . . almost a queen

Prophecy Came True For Her

By PAUL GHALI
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

PARIS — Around the end of World War I young Yvonne Vendroux visited a seeress in her home town of Calais.

A well-brought-up French girl, it was not her habit to frequent fortune-tellers. But on this day she felt an urge to look into her future.

"You shall be almost a queen," Yvonne was assured. A modest maiden, she blushed.

Her husband may truly be described — no mere rehetoric — as the "most regal president" France has ever had.

Yvonne's case is not the first to be so notable among prophesies in French history.

She later became the wife of Emperor Napoleon. Empress Josephine would often recite this story to regale friends and attendants at Napoleon's court.

Durable Cow Case Probed

MERINO, Colo. —(AP)— Colorado highway patrolmen thought they were seeing double for awhile. They investigated an accident in which a car struck a cow.

Later the same night, they investigated another accident involving a car and a cow . . . same cow. The cow escaped without injury. Damage to the two cars amounted to $475.

Town Firmly In the Middle

PHOENIX, Arix. —(AP)— The Arizona League of Towns and Cities announced this position on new state taxes:

It isn't for or against them. But if the legislature enacts new taxes, it wants a 10 per cent cut.

You Can Make Farmyard Of Cardboard Livestock

By CAPPY DICK

Hobby Club

A farm, complete with a hog, a cow, a sheep, a horse, a barn and anything else is fun to make out of cardboard cartons and pipe cleaners.

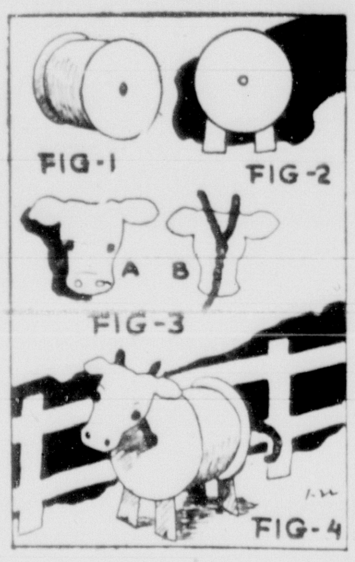
The diagram shows how to construct a cow. When you have learned to do this, the other animals will be easy to build.

The cow's body is a cardboard spool (Figure 1) on which Christmas ribbon was wound. The front and back legs (Figure 2) are cut from stiff cardboard such as the lid of a candy box. Each pair of legs should be made the size of spool ends, with the legs extending downward from the bottom of the circle.

Make a hole in the circle at the top of each leg to correspond with the hole in the spool.

Put a long pipe cleaner through the holes in the legs and the spool, one end of the cleaner sticking out to form the cow's tail. The other end is to be the neck.

The head is cut from heavy paper and, as in "A" of Figure 3, is painted with eyes and nostrils. "B" of Figure 3 shows how to make horns of pipe cleaners glued to the back of the cow's head. Glue the head to the cleaner projecting from the front of the body.



The complete cow is shown in the illustration.

Other animals may be made the same way, although cartons of different sizes should be used. Ice cream cartons, salt cartons, chocolate candy tubes and cereal boxes are examples.

Barns may be built of square or oblong boxes. A silo can be constructed of an oatmeal carton.

Jet Noise Is Muffled

FARMINGDALE, N.Y. — (AP) —The 20,000-pound thrust jet engines of the F105 jet fighter-bomber have been muffled at Republic Aviation's airfield here by a huge silencer.

Snubbed around the tail of the big plane, the two-story high $250,000 silencer soaks up the roar when the J75 engines are being tested. It's so effective, company engineers claim, that you can stand in the shadow of the muffler and carry on a normal conversation while the jet engine is running full blast.

Dog Wiser Than Man

Researchers for a dog food manufacturer, say they have found that just before reaching adulthood puppies suddenly begin eating less.

A cocker spaniel, for example, when almost full grown at 24 weeks, will drop in less than a week's time from 14 ounces of food each day to as little as 8 or 9 ounces. The reason for the adjustment, the specialists say, is that the dog's system simply doesn't require as much nourishment once the growing cycle is completed.

Detroit Delinquency Tale Well Presented by Daly

JACK ANDERSON—About TV

THE ABC NETWORK came up Monday night with an absorbing, well done report of how one American city — Detroit — is combatting juvenile delinquency.

The juvenile crime rate there has declined by six per cent. That's a pitifully small percentage but at least it's a reversal of a crime rate curve which has been traveling steadily upward throughout the rest of the nation.

ANDERSON

Thomas

Daly

The television report centered on the activities of an organization called "Youth Anonymous." It was started and fostered with civic help by an ex-convict named Ernest "Tip" Rumsby.

Youth Anonymous is patterned after the celebrated organization for helping alcoholics. It functions in the same way. The skid row teens gather periodically to talk about their problems and why they do the things they do.

It is Rumsby's contention that the group discussions help the youngsters to understand themselves and to develop the social consciousness they need to curb their more predatory instincts.

* * *

WE WERE TAKEN to several of these group discussions, including one for older youths in a Detroit correctional institution. There were wonderful camera shots of the kids unburdening themselves and earnestly chronicling their own histories of wrong-doing.

There were innocent-appearing, baby-faced types — both boys and girls—and there were types who looked as if they lived in the trees.

Collectively they were the unhappy face of a morally bankrupt segment of young America, solemnly chewing its bubble gum and eyeing its environment with implacable resentment.

Rumsby himself is an interesting character. In an automobile interview, before he took ABC newsman Don Goddard to one of the YA meetings, he gave an account of his own early life. It was a tale of rascality that stopped just short of getting him a life imprisonment.

However, it served him well when he ultimately decided to be a friend to man—or more specifically, youth. The kids accepted him as they probably would not have accepted a counsellor with a clean-as-a-whistle past.

ABC news chief, John Daly, and his staff very sensibly let their film report tell its own story.

* * *

THE SAME CAN'T be said for Lowell Thomas who took us along on a scientific expedition in the South Pacific on CBS the same evening.

Thomas just can't let well enough alone. If he isn't trying to out-Herod Herod about the dangers along the way, he's trying to be funny. And the Thomas humor is about as lighthearted as the kiss of a Great Dane.

All through Monday night's film of the expedition to study the total eclipse of the sun during the International Geophysical Year, he kept up a lumbering raillery.

The scientists and seamen aboard, he haw-hawed, were going to Puka Puka, or Danger, Island to see those Polynesian babes as much as they were for scientific reasons.

Even when one of the scientists responded coldly to this whole idea during a shipboard interview, Thomas never relented. A Jerry Lewis or a Jackie Gleason would have tucked away his microphone and stolen silently to cover after that.

But not Thomas. He didn't brave the Himalayas and other inaccessible eyries of the world to give up that easily. He kept his steamroller right on rolling.

He finally got two of the expedition members to kiss a couple of the Puka Puka belles. They looked as if they had been threatened with a trip home in the brig if they didn't.

The bidding:

3 ♦	Pass	4 ♠	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♣.

It is not to be expected that the layman will carry in his mind an involved table of figures when determining problems concerning percentages. An approximation of the chances is deemed sufficient. As a rule of thumb, that will stand up reasonably well for practical purposes, we offer the following: Any two chances combined are usually better than the best single chance. Let us use today's hand to illustrate the point.

A word or two on the auction. The final contract is reasonable but South's bid of one spade is not the choice of this department. While it is the accepted procedure, with more than one suit, to open with that which ranks next below the singleton, nevertheless this rule contemplates only biddable suits and for purposes of opening the bidding the suit must contain four high card points. The recommended opening is one heart.

The king of clubs was opened against four spades and South ruffed the second round. The jack of spades went to West's ace and the shift was to a heart. The king of spades failed to clear the queen. Declarer's problem naturally narrowed down to the question of avoiding a diamond loser. With six outstanding cards, the play for the finesse is distinctly superior to attempting to drop the queen, but this declarer decided that he could afford himself additional chances by first trying to drop the queen and, if that failed to come off, he had still left the hope that the hearts would break three-three; failing that there was the chance that the player holding the four hearts also had the queen of diamonds in which case he would be unable to hold on to everything as the trumps were run.

When the queen of diamonds fell on the second round the hand was spread. It will be noted that if West had held one more diamond and one less club he would have been squeezed into a fatal discard as the last trump was led.

Last Word

By DR. BERGEN EVANS

QUESTION: Is there a difference between further and farther?

ANSWER: Farther can now be used only of distance. At least, as I hear the speech of educated Americans, it is only so used.

Further is used for all other meaning ("I'll think it over and discuss it further with you.") The dictionaries say that farther can be used in such meanings, but in my experience it isn't. A generation ago it was, but this particular change is taking place very fast.

Grammarians would like to have farther refer solely to distance and further to all figurative senses. But this is a hope, not a description of what is actually being done. In actuality, further seems to be crowding farther out of all use and it may be that fifty years from now farther will no longer be used at all.

Amusingly enough, although further seems to be replacing farther at a great rate, it is still substandard to say fur for far — though, of course, millions do. Over a great area of our land a fur piece means a long distance, not a mink stole.

Details, Previews of Tonight's TV

7 p.m.

7—HUCKLEBERRY HOUND —Two mice decide to duel with a cat.

10—LEAVE IT TO BEAVER—Beaver learns it doesn't pay to cut school to attend live television shows.

8

7—STEVE CANYON — Steve rescues a flyer who has been held captive in Dutch New Guinea by a small Jap detachment which believes the war is still on.

2—BRITISH STORY — Pictorial report on the British way of life.

4—YANCY DERRINGER—Extortionists move in on the produce peddlers in the French Market to demand "protection money."

7—COULD BE YOU—film.

10—REAL McCOYS — Grandpa and Luke sense a financial windfall when they dig up a prehistoric bone on their property.

9

2 — MONTAGE — "Romantic Viewpoint in Art."

4—ZANE GREY—Powell stars in this one, as a marshal in a town that's overwhelmingly with the Confederacy in its sympathies. Powell turns out to be an ex-Union soldier, so you can see the problem. The play, which has no killings, is a good story of highstrung emotions in the post-Civil War period.

7—BEHIND CLOSED DOORS — The international politics angle is played down tonight, making the show just a good melodrama. Actually, the hero is after a gang of smugglers in Lebanon and, except for a few brief allusions to the fact that the Reds would profit from a drug-addled population, it's standard secret service fare.

Art Carney and Kathy Bard
. . . on Playhouse 90 at 9:30 on 4

10—PAT BOONE — Tonight there'll be songs, of course, from Pat and guest Gisele MacKenzie. And piano fireworks from Mexican whiz Juan Esquivel. Talented Miss MacKenzie will also show off her ability at playing the violin and cello.

2—NEW DIMENSIONS—Part I of "Advanced Study in a New Era."

4—PLAYHOUSE 90—Tonight's story is called "The Velvet Alley," and it could be subtitled "Will Success Spoil Ernie Pandish?" Pandish (Art Carney) is a TV writer, happy in his poverty, and then suddenly he writes a script that is a smash, he's off to Hollywood and within a month he's the fastest rat in the race. Although the story covers no new ground, it is written so beautifully, with scene after scene that comes to grips with the problem, you tend to forget it is just an old hat, re-blocked. Jack Klugman, Leslie Neilsen, Katharine Bard, and Alexander Scourby are also involved.

Best Bet

10—ROUGH RIDERS — The riders save a woman from a gang of pursuers only to learn they have aided the notorious Belle Starr and hampered justice.

10

10:30

7—MASQUERADE PARTY — The clue to one of the gaudy guests follows, so you will kindly apply thinking caps—the first name of a president and a well-known raconteur will lead you to one of the masqueraders. Got it? Good for you! So why bother to watch the show? . . . color.

11:10

10—MOVIE — "Angel on the Amazon," (1948), George Brent, Vera Ralston, Brian Aherne. Weird story of an old woman who looks like a young girl because of a strange accident on the Amazon.

11:20

7—JACK PAAR — Dick Van Dyke, running the show this week while the boss relaxes, has the good fortune of being surrounded tonight by three funny people. One is Dob Adams, a comedian with a quiet delivery and a lot of style. The other two are Ted Brown and The Redhead (she's his wife), who are local New York radio personalities with great talent.

11:25

4—MOVIE — "Sleeping Car for Trieste," (1949), Jean Kent, Paul DuPuis. Mysterious doings aboard the Orient Express en route from Paris to Trieste.

Divorced in '40, Court's Unconvinced

By Cholly Knickerbocker

CHOLLY

Barbara Hutton

Serge Obolensky

Lance Reventlow

NEW YORK . . . Cholly's Notebook: Mrs. John (Babs) Rawlings, wife of the ace photographer, got a shocker in the mail from the Tribunale del Vicariato di Roma. It asked her to appear at the Vatican Feb. 25 to show just cause why her previous marriage to Count Jacques Willaumez should not be dissolved.

Since Babs married Willaumez long ago in 1926 and divorced him, at his request, in 1940, she thinks the proceedings just a bit out of touch with reality. Count Willaumez, who wed again after the divorce from Babs, has divorced wife No. 2 (the former "Minnie" Minnigetode) and obviously now wants to take a third bride.

Babs says she doesn't see quite how the church can dismiss the marriage. She wed Willaumez in Rennes Cathedral, France, in a ceremony performed by a Catholic archbishop, and also, she and the count have a son. But the main thing that annoyed her was the request to appear at 1 p.m.

"Ridiculous," she says, "everyone knows you siesta in Rome at that time."

* * *

LLOYD'S of London is offering a big reward for information about the Chicago theft of $1,500,000 worth of jewels owned by Harry Winston. Because the robbery occurred on the day of the terrible Chicago school fire, it got almost no mention in the nation's press. Winston veep Charles Staiger had put the gems in a hotel safe deposit box which required two keys to be opened. Staiger had had one key in his possession for three years. Yet, several days later when they opened the box, the jewels were gone. The FBI has questioned hundreds of people so far without a single clue.

Wealthy widow Ileana Bulova will jet in to settle some financial matters. She is now living permanently in a luxurious apartment in the George V and is very much a part of the Paris scene . . . At the Elephant Blanc in Paris, Duke and Duchess of Windsor made up a foursome with Hugh and Rosie Gaynor Chisholm. The Chisholms will soon takeoff for Jamaica where they'll be entertaining Prince and Princess Alexander Hohenlohe (she's the former "Honeychild" Wilder) . . .

* * *

NOEL and Gloria Guinness, the Earl of Kimberly, and Greek shipping king Stavros Niarchos have just guested at the exclusive Corviglia Ski Club in St. Moritz. The Corviglia (you must put up $560 in order to be considered a prospect and then the 150-odd members must vote you in unanimously; outstripped its chief rival, the Eagle Ski Club in Gstaad by its series of gala holiday parties.

The Bal Blanc for the benefit of the victims of communism was the usual colorful affair and the guests gaily drank a toast to the White Russian New Year. Col. Serge Obolensky did his flaming dagger dance, brother Oleg and yours truly kicked up our heels in a Russian jig, and Sacha Nazarenko sang softly and played guitar. Princess Serge Belosselsky-Belozersky, chairman of the affair, young hostess Peggy Bancroft, Elsa Maxwell, Mrs. Eric de Kolb and Mrs. Giovanni Buitoni (converted into a white-minked Russian for the occasion) were all made to drink a horn full of champagne. Larry Evans recited a poem and everybody danced to the music of Maestro Meyer Davisky.

* * *

WHAT DO rich relatives give each other? Well — Lance Reventlow gifted his mama, Barbara Hutton, with a painting of his new Scarab racing car . . . Babs, incidentally, looks better every time she steps out and is reported in excellent form at dinner parties. As a part of her health regime, she doesn't even touch wine with dinner . . . The hatcheck room in the new Diplomat restaurant will feature a special rack built to accommodate attache cases . . . The Brazillian Cultural Society's Carioca Ball, to be held at the Waldorf, will create a Carmen Miranda Memorial Fund to benefit the New York Heart Association. The UN elite will turn out in costume .

One in Six U.S. Women Would Like to Be Born Anew as a Man

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J. — If you could be born again, would you rather be a man or a woman?

That seemingly frivolous question was recently asked in a public opinion survey in Japan, conducted by the prime minister's office, to determine the status of women in that country.

It suggested an issue to the Gallup Poll. How would American men and women answer the question? How would the views of Japanese and American women compare?

The results provide some new insight into the social structure of the two nations.

In Japan — a land where women have traditionally had lower status than men—three out of five women said they would prefer to be born again as men.

In America, three out of four women said they would be perfectly happy to start life once more as women.

Those women in Japan who preferred to remain women cited as the chief reason that "a woman has no responsibility."

In this country, where many critics claim the American female is too dominant, one of the major reasons given for wanting to remain a woman was that "women now have as many responsibilities as men."

In the U. S., in fact, one man in 25 said that if he could be born again, he would like to be a woman! A typical spokesman for this group was a 39-year-old die-cutter from Brooklyn:

"Then I wouldn't have to break my neck the way I do. A man gets pushed around too much in this country."

The study in this country does find that many women would prefer the masculine life if they were to start over again.

Roughly one woman in six (17 per cent) would like to be born anew as a man — chiefly because they would have more freedom as a man, get out more often, and not have the worries of housework and children.

When asked why she would prefer to be born again as a man, a 42-year-old housewife from Garden Grove, Calif. commented wryly:

"Why? Because, I've been cleaning closets all day — that's why!"

"Because I'm pregnant," was the reasoning of a 25-year-old wife of a Kankakee (Ill.) social security worker.

A 22-year-old grocery clerk from Texas said he would like to stick with the male race because "if I was a woman, I couldn't like girls."

And a 65-year-old wife of a building superintendent in Brooklyn commented:

"I'd love to be a man to join the Navy and see the world. I'm the adventuresome type."

Just what effect his work had on his answer was not ascertained, but a bartender in a Corpus Christi night club commented:

"Especially nowadays — I'd enjoy being a woman."

A pessimistic outlook on the whole subject was held by a 46-year-old ladies' wear cutter from Jamaica, L. I. His comment:

"I just wouldn't want to be born again at all."

Brush Moves-- It's a Possum

CHECOTAH, Okla. — (AP) — Johnnie Marie LeMasters reached into a brush and broom closet for a brush during house cleaning.

One brush moved. It was a possum who somehow had come in from outdoors.

Cecil DeMille, Fabulous Film Producer, Dies

Third Heart Attack Fatal To Hollywood Pioneer at 77

Highlights of His Career, 2C

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. —(AP)— Cecil Blount DeMille, a founder of the Hollywood film industry and the most successful of all movie makers, died of a heart attack Wednesday at 77.

It was the third serious heart attack for the producer-director, whose name became a symbol of flamboyant films. He suffered the first in Egypt in November 1954, during location scenes for his last great Biblical epic, "The Ten Commandments." He refused doctors' advice to stop the film, saying, "I'll continue working until God wants me to quit."

Cecil B. DeMille

. . . he kept going

Last June he suffered another attack. But in December he undertook a strenuous tour to exploit the last film he supervised, "The Buccaneer." The end came at 5:30 a.m. at his Hollywood home with his daughter Cecilia and her husband, Joseph Harper at his bedside.

DeMille's wife for 57 years, also in ill health, was not immediately told of his death. But friends said she had sensed something was wrong.

The filmland titan died at the peak of a 45-year history in films. His second making of "The Ten Commandments" was just overtaking "Gone With the Wind" as the biggest money-maker of all time.

His other movies—"Greatest Show on Earth," "Samson and Delilah," "The Unconquered," etc.—were huge successes.

He was proud that his version of the Christ story, "The King of Kings," has been showing somewhere in the world every day since it was released in 1927.

He never won an Oscar for direction. The academy, perhaps in recognition of his great record, finally named "The Greatest Show on Earth" the best picture of 1952.

DeMille's death leaves Samuel Goldwyn the sole survivor of the famous triumvirate who started Hollywood in the big-time back in 1912. DeMille had written plays with his brother William and with Belasco. A friend brought the young playwright to a lunch with Goldwyn, then a glove salesman, and his brother-in-law, Jesse Lasky, a cornet player in vaudville.

The trio discussed the infant movie industry. The dubious DeMille succumbed to the enthusiasm of Lasky and Goldwyn and together they formed a film company. They acquired the rights to "The Squaw Man" and the services of Actor Dustin Farnum. DeMille was sent west to find a sunny locale to shoot the movie in. He landed near a grapefruit grove at the corner of Hollywood and Vine.

The enterprise grew, making the three partners millionaires. Later, they founded separate film dynasties. Lasky died of a heart attack a year ago.

DeMille was born Aug. 12, 1881, at Ashfield, Mass., of a Dutch family that came to America in 1658. His father was a schoolteacher turned playwright who introduced his sons to the theater world.

Cecil started as an actor and in 1902 married a fellow member of the E. H. Sothern troupe, Constance Adams. They had four children: Mrs. Harper, Mrs. Anthony Quinn, John and Richard DeMille. There are 13 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

The family announced that the funeral will be held Friday at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church in Hollywood. Private interment will follow in a $250,000 mausoleum De Mille built in Hollywood cemetery in 1953.

Mikoyan Gets Back In the Air

Flight plans called for a nonstop trip to Copenhagen where it was understood he would catch a Soviet jetliner for Moscow.

Mikoyan and his party of five, including his son Sergo, spent an unscheduled night at this U. S. Naval Air Base. The SAS pilot was forced to land because of mechanical trouble in one engine and fire in another.

Mikoyan said he was unshaken by the trouble on the four-engine plane — though it caused nervous chills in world capitals. The DC7 was carrying 35 passengers and a crew of 14 when it first encountered trouble high over the Atlantic.

"I've had a full life and would have accepted whatever consequences might have befallen me," the 63-year-old Mikoyan told a reporter.

SAS spokesmen in New York expressed doubt any sabotage was involved.

Ike Gets Housing 'Dare'

Veto Will Fail, Lawmaker Says

By FREDERIC SHERMAN
Herald Real Estate Editor

CHICAGO—President Eisenhower is going to get the chance to veto the biggest housing bill in the history of this country.

That was the challenge thrown at the White House Wednesday by Rep. Albert Rains of Alabama in a fiery speech to the National Association of Home Builders. He predicted Congress will override Ike's expected veto of a bill providing almost two billion dollars in special aid for housing and urban renewal.

Rains had been scheduled to talk about the problems of financing community facilities in mushrooming suburban areas. But he whipped the builders into rounds of applause with an attack on Republican Party leaders who are pushing for Ike's balanced budget.

"I read in the papers that I'm one of the big Democratic spenders in Washington because I want a decent house for every American family under the private enterprise system," Rains said.

Rains accused the White House of trying to balance the budget at the expense of programs that have become a part of the nation's growth.

Mr. Eisenhower wants to hand back to the cities the responsibility for urban renewal, flood control and a dozen other important programs. But you don't hear the White House talking about turning back some of the federal tax sources to the cities," Rains said.

Rains told the builders he doesn't believe in government housing and this was worth loud applause. But the Alabama congressman followed with the gambit of his old log cabin school that didn't have electricity. You guessed it. It had a pine knot fire just like the one Abraham Lincoln studied by.

"It took TVA and REA to bring in electricity under the same kind of government help that I am asking for housing," he said. "The White House keeps saying we can't afford it. But those people in high places don't seem to understand the difference between spending and housing programs that don't cost the government a cent."

A bill Rains introduced last week provides 500 million dollars in special assistance to support mortgage prices. It includes the same amount for college housing loans, 1½ billion over three years for outright grants to the cities for slum clearance and urban renewal and 200 million in direct loans for housing for the elderly.

"I have great personal admiration for the President, but it is obvious he is beginning to believe his campaign speeches. If he stops the housing industry this year he will bring a terrible depression down on this country," Rains concluded in a storm of applause.

Tito Arrives In Ceylon

COLOMBO —(AP)— President Tito of Yugoslavia arrived in Ceylon Wednesday on the last stop of his tour of so-called neutral Asian countries.

Tito was to meet Premier Solomon Bandaranaike later for talks on the international situation. They are expected to reaffirm their abstention from alignment with both the Communist and Western power blocs.

Thousands Flee Floods; Blizzards Hit Mid-U.S.

Twisters Rip Into 4 States

More Snow, Rain Forecast

CHICAGO — (UPI) — Winter's worst storm chased thousands of persons from flood-threatened homes and buried the mid-continent under blizzard snows Wednesday.

The vast storm, ranging from the Rockies to the Applachians, also sent tornadoes racing through the Southland. A sub-zero cold wave moved into the Plains as the snows dwindled.

The U.S. Weather Bureau predicted more severe winter weather from the Great Lakes to the Middle Gulf States. In the North, the forecast was for more snow, sleet and freezing rains.

High waters forced 2,500 of the 16,000 residents of Mount Vernon, Ohio, from their homes, flooded the state Capitol of Columbus, created a state of emergency at Sharon, Pa., and closed highways in southern Indiana. Buffalo, N.Y., motorists abandoned their cars in the flooded streets.

From New Mexico to Indiana, Westerners and Midwesterners struggled to dig out of foot-deep snows. Schools, factories and roads were closed through nine states and traffic in the big cities of Kansas City, St. Louis, Dallas and Chicago became paralyzed.

Ice knocked out the power in scores of Midwest towns. At Decatur, Ill., the Red Cross set up shelter for an expected 2,500 persons driven from their homes because of power and water failures.

The Southland took its storm in the form of tornadoes which powered their way through Kentucky, Mississippi, Alabama and Tennessee.

A fast-moving twister smashed Caneyville, Ky., and Kentucky State Police said they had reports of at least one person killed or seriously injured, plus heavy damage. Two more persons were reported injured by high winds which hit the Fort Knox area. The highway between Elizabethtown, Ky., and Caneyville was blocked.

A church and several barns went down before a twister which hit Yokena, Miss., near Vicksburg. Wind damage was estimated at $100,000 at Adamsville, Tenn.; a twister swept away a 300-foot highway patrol tower at Lawrenceburg, Tenn., and more tornadoes wrecked buildings near Eva and Cullman, Ala.

Shallow, But Too Deep for Them

Gusher Was a Real Gasser!

TULSA, Okla. — (UPI) — The Sooner State Drilling and Producing Co. of Coleman, Tex., recently brought in the world's shallowest oil well, a healthy 4,000-barrel-an-hour gusher in southern Oklahoma—at a depth of 2½ feet.

Unfortunately, the well nine miles east of Bretch, Okla., had to be abandoned soon after it came in.

The well sprayed over the top of the rig and continued to flow at the rate of more than 4,000 barrels an hour, until it was choked off 40 minutes later.

There was no fire, no damage to drilling rig and no crew injuries. About 2,700 barrels of oil were recovered, most of which flowed into an adjacent slush pit.

All was going like clockwork when suddenly the happy smiles on the faces of the drillers turned to frowns, then astonishment, and finally horror.

What caused the consternation was the unhappy discovery that the oil was coming from a 16-inch pipeline, owned by the Service Pipe Line Co., of Tulsa.

The line was repaired and the rig moved for another try.

Havana Throng Cries Approval Of Castro and Cuba Executions

By JAMES BUCHANAN
Herald Staff Writer

HAVANA—One of the largest crowds in Cuba's history massed before the Presidential Palace Wednesday and thundered its endorsement of Fidel Castro and the revolutionary regime's wholesale execution of the Batista dictatorship's "war criminals."

Tens of thousands of shouting Cubans poured through downtown Havana to the "People's Square" facing the palace. The marchers carried banners clamoring for "justice for the assassins," and rejecting criticism from abroad of the summary trials of Fulgencio Batista's men.

Fidel Castro's first appearance on the scene was from a helicopter which flew over the crowd and the palace to land on Zayas Park, on the other side of the palace from the crowd. Those who recognized him from the ground broke into wild cheering.

Provisional President Manuel Urrutia, put in office by Castro, came to the palace balcony after greeting the foreign diplomatic corps and special guests invited from abroad for the demonstration.

"This is an act of great satisfaction," he said, referring to the huge turnout requested by Castro, "particularly since the aim of my government is to exercise power with the aid of the people."

"We are ready to carry out with firmness the wishes of the people," he said.

Addressing American newsmen, Urrutia said he was interested to see that the "American people are not deceived. I expect the American press here to do its duty to tell its people the truth about Cuba."

As early as 9 a.m. the area immediately in front of the speaking platform to be used by Castro began to fill with men, women and children who wanted to show the world they backed the leader of their revolution.

And overhead, almost from dawn, armed soldiers manned the rooftops of buildings looking down on the plaza, taking no chances that a die-hard Batista sniper might try a potshot at the Cuban hero.

The earliest arrivals in the plaza were the hundreds of food and souvenir vendors who set up their carts under every available shade tree.

The red and black colors of the revolution were reflected everywhere — in the flags, the banners, and the skirt and blouse combination of almost every woman present.

Even the parasols carried to shield early comers from the hot sun either were in the two-color scheme or carried streamers proclaiming the loyalty of the bearer.

Banners carried in the throng — some in English and some in Spanish — proclaimed support for Castro's quick justice to Batista's men.

"Long Live Liberty — Punish The Guilty," said one banner. Another said: "We Reject Yankee Intervention."

Trucks, cars and taxis ferried the demonstrators to the plaza, and some participants reportedly walked or hitch-hiked 100 miles or more from outlying provinces.

In Havana as observers were two U.S. congressmen — Rep. Adam Clayton Powell Jr., (D., N.Y.), and Rep. Charles Porter (D., Ore.), as well as a group of Western Hemisphere newsmen and commentators especially invited for the occasion by Castro.

U.S. Denies 'Sneaking' Any Arms to Batista

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The State Department Wednesday emphatically denied allegations that the U.S. sent arms to former President Fulgencio Batista's government after March 1958 when armament shipments to Cuba were suspended.

Department Press Officer Lincoln White made this statement at a news conference. He referred to a press report from Havana which quoted a Cuban naval officer as saying that "American made bombs" reached the Batista forces through Nicaragua.

"The U.S. government at no time made available combat arms of any kind through third countries or in any other way to the Batista government after suspending armament shipments to Cuba in March 1958," White declared.

He said the department has received "categorical assurances" from the Nicaraguan government that no U.S. arms were shipped from Nicaragua to the Batista forces.

Moreover, White said, the the American embassy in Managua, capital of Nicaragua, "had never heard of U.S. arms being sent from Nicaragua to Cuba."

Atlas Plunge Not Sighted

HONOLULU —(AP)— If the American satellite Atlas fell near the Hawaiian Islands early Wednesday it went unobserved.

Scientists at Cambridge, Mass., had predicted Atlas would plunge to a fiery death in the vicinity of the islands.

Scientists at satellite tracking stations on Oahu and Hawaii said they had received no instructions to watch for the satellite's death plunge.

Russia Accuses Western Planes

OSLO, Norway—(AP)—The Soviet government Wednesday charged that U.S. and British warplanes are using Norway's Bodoe Airport as a base for reconnaissance flights to Russia's frontiers. Moscow made the charge to the Norwegian ambassador.

Press Chief John Hedemann said the Norwegian Defense Department has no knowledge of British or American planes using the far-north base for such a purpose.

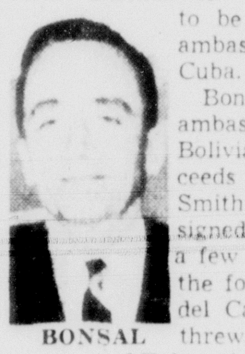
U.S. Envoy Switched to Cuban Post

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Philip W. Bonsal, a career diplomat, was nominated by President Eisenhower Wednesday to be the new ambassador to Cuba.



BONSAL

Bonsal, now ambassador to Bolivia, succeeds Earl E. T. Smith, who resigned Jan. 10—a few days after the forces of Fidel Castro overthrew the government of Fulgencio Batista.

Smith had been criticized by the Castro forces as having been favorable to the Batista government.

Bonsal became ambassador to Bolivia in 1957. He served previously as ambassador to Colombia. Bonsal, 55, has been in the State Department since 1938.

Gov. Egan Still 'Desperately Ill'

SEATTLE, Wash. —(UPI)— Gov. William A. Egan of Alaska remained in critical condition Wednesday in his 50-50 fight for life.

"He is desperately ill," said Dr. Joel W. Baker. "Governor Egan has a 50-50 chance to survive. It will be five days to a week before we know if the crisis is over."

He Helped Change World by Being Right

Dr. Franco Rasetti

By MIKE MORGAN
Herald Staff Writer

It is said of scholarly Dr. Franco Rasetti that the only time he was caught in an error was when he got into an argument with Enrico Fermi about the naming of the Mason-Dixon line.

Of this more later.

But in other areas of knowledge this thin, balding, wiry 58-year-old Italian scientist has been precisely right so often his achievements helped change the world.

For Dr. Rasetti is one of that original team of five nuclear physicists, including Fermi, who made the basic discovery of "slow neutrons" which eventually led to successful building of atomic piles.

A vast percentage of all present day nuclear technology stems from that immense discovery one October day in 1934 in Rome.

Though the most important, it is only one of several major contributions he made to nuclear science.

Dr. Rasetti is now winding up a short stint of teaching and research at the University of Miami. He will journey to Rome for more research—and then return to Johns Hopkins University where he holds a regular teaching post.

Dressed in a faded army shirt, a pair of wash and wear trousers, and looking more like the janitor of the place, he sat in an instrument cluttered room at the University's Physics building and reluctantly told about his work, about the day of the "slow neutron" discovery.

"We were tremendously excited and knew it was a milestone in scientific history.

"We didn't realize the practical significance — rather we didn't think it would lead to any practical significance for many years; maybe not in our lifetime.

A mild smile warmed his face. "But in any event there was such a possibility—and we took out a patent."

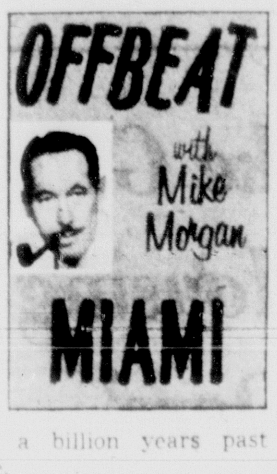
It was a canny precaution since the team was eventually awarded $300,000 by the U.S.

Although preeminent in the field of nuclear physics, Dr. Rasetti qualifies as an expert in such a diversification of subjects one wonders where he found time to do so much in so few years.

Honors enough for several distinguished careers have accrued to him.

For instance he has a passion for geology which currently exceeds that of exploring mysteries of atomic particles.

Oddly enough, In physics he reaches into the future of science; but his explorations in geology deal with the Cambrian period — something less than half a billion years past in time.



He is one of the world's experts in the field of Cambrian period geology and has won significant awards for his work in it.

Related to geology, he took up, and as a hobby, mind you, some work in paleontology. With only two years of fossil work behind him, he won an outstanding award which is given only once every three years.

Nor can one forget he is an entymologist of note. In Europe he has the finest collection of European beetles extant.

Also he is readying a book on Alpine flowers which will be illustrated with his own photos — he's a whiz with a camera.

Somewhat gentle in speech and action, physically the multi-faceted scholar is tough as a mountain goat—and climbs like one. Mountain climbing is his form of relaxation.

As a matter of fact, you name it and he probably is an authority on it—anything, that is. Including bridge.

He tactfully pointed out that a couple of the indigenous Florida orchids had been incorrectly identified. And he was right. What's more — he told the ranger where a rare orchid which was not in the collection could be found deep in the glades. And was right again.

Now about that Mason-Dixon error.

Some years before the world-famous Fermi died, Rasetti and Fermi were nearing the Mason-Dixon line on a trip.

Argument arose over the derivation of its name; a bet was made.

Rasetti contended it was named after a couple of rivers, the Mason and the Dixon.

"After all," he pointed out with acadamic logic, "A couple of lawyers COULD have become senators—but never a couple of rivers."

Fights for Budget

Ike Pins 'Schizoid' Tag on Criticism

WASHINGTON —(UPI)— President Eisenhower said Wednesday that Democratic critics of his 77-billion-dollar budget are suffering from "budgetary schizophrenia." He said they can't agree what they think is wrong with it.

He told a news conference he will refuse to use the budget as a "political football." His statement appeared to be aimed at Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson, who Tuesday denounced the budget as GOP political propaganda for the 1960 presidential elections.

Eisenhower noted that he was "not running for anything," a remark that could have been a jibe at Johnson's 1960 presidential possibilities.

"If we get into this business of who is using the budget as a political football," the President said, "I assure you it is not I."

The President said some Democrats claim his spending budget is too high, others contend it is too low, while still others argue that his revenue estimates are way out of line. He concluded it was "budgetary schizophrenia that is affecting the critics of the budget."

Webster defines schizophrenia as "a type of psychosis characterized by loss of contact with the environment and by disintegration of the personality. It includes dementia praecox and some related forms of insanity."

The President, in discussing the budget and the national economy, said he was not considering wage-price controls as anti-inflation measures "because I despise them." But he said "something will have to be done" if inflation mounts and the people refuse to discipline themselves.

In his economic message to Congress Tuesday, he warned that controls might be the alternative if business, labor and the public fail to take voluntary steps to hold down unwarranted prices and wages.

Most of the presidential news conference was devoted to the budget and two other major issues—the recent visit of Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan and civil rights, especially school integration in Virginia.

The President said he believed Mikoyan returned to Moscow convinced that the U.S. wants to negotiate cold war problems but, "simply won't be pushed around" by Russia. Eisenhower said this country was ready to "match reasonableness with reasonableness."

On the other hand, the President said he found it "a little hard to swallow" Soviet claims that the U.S. is "negative" or "rigid" whenever it does not agree with some Russian position.

On integration, Eisenhower said federal agencies were trying to find ways to educate 5,500 children of military personnel in Norfold, Va., where public schools have been closed to prevent mixing white and Negro students. He said the government could set up schools for 500 students who live on the base but that the others created a problem.

The President also gave a cool reception to Sen. Johnson's proposal for establishment of a federal conciliation service on civil rights to mediate racial disputes. He said he did not think it would be "fruitful" but could be convinced otherwise.

Britain Seeks U.A.R. Tieup

CAIRO—(AP)—Britain has asked for renewal of diplomatic relations with the United Arab Republic, broken because of the 1956 Suez war, the newspaper Al Ahram said.

The paper said British Foreign Office Official Colin Crowe made the request to U.A.R. Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi Monday. Al Ahram said the U.A.R. can not act on it without coordinating with Saudi Arabia, which also broke relations with Britain over the brief Suez invasion.

into Mount Vernon to aid in this mass evacuation caused by a 3.69-inch downpour. The flood's first victim was a 17-year old boy who drowned trying to leap from the front porch of his flooded home to a truck pulling away.

Boats and ambulances were used to remove the sick from a 10-block area at Lima, Ohio, which was under water.

The Coast Guard, meanwhile, evacuated 25 persons stranded on the west channel of Rocky River near Cleveland, and authorities sent a distress call to a National Guard armory for amphibious tanks to rescue families in the Cleveland suburb of Eastlake. Ice chunks on the flooding Rocky River were two feet thick and as big as a room.

At Columbus, the worst flood in 23 years on the Scioto and Olentangy Rivers drove hundreds from their homes. Gov. Michael V. DiSalle alerted the National Guard and Highway Department to be ready for new emergencies.

In northwest Pennsylvania, Sharon Mayor Michael J. Dunn declared a state of emergency after the Shenango River poured into downtown stores. The Civil Defense and extra police were called out.

In southern Indiana, rains measuring up to 5.13 inches deep sent flood waters swirling over highways. School buses couldn't get through the floods in Jackson, Washington, Scott and Wayne counties, and a Decatur county teacher, Mrs. Anna Walke, 43, was rescued by boat after spending more than two hours in a car which had been swept into Salt Creek flood waters.

Chicago endured freezing rain and more snow in the wake of an overnight storm which dumped almost a foot of snow. More than 200 schools closed down in the Chicago area.

In Missouri, drifts were seven feet deep at Chillicothe, all public and parochial schools closed in storm-swept Kansas City along with some factories, and power went out for 40,000 persons in a St. Louis suburb.

Hundreds of snowbound schools were closed across Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Iowa, Michigan, Kansas, Colorado and Oklahoma.

PAA Talks Recess: No Strike Set

Contract negotiations between Pan American World Airways and the Transport Workers Union were recessed in New York Wednesday, but a union official said no date has been set for a strike of some 8,000 PAA employes.

"We will resume the negotiations on Friday," William Grogan, international vice president of the TWU, told The Herald by telephone.

He said the contract talks have not been terminated and that "there is no real significance" to postponement of negotiations over a new contract.

"We're just coasting for a day or so," Grogan said. "There are a number of issues on which we have not reached agreement."

Biggest issue in the talks between Pan American, the union and a federal negotiator is the union demand for a cut in weekly working hours from 40 to 37½.

"Strike standby" telegrams already have been sent to union members at all PAA installations, but Grogan refused to speculate on whether or when a strike will be called.

He said that if the present talks break off altogether, the government will offer arbitration to each side before a strike is called.

Wife of Herald Executive

Mrs A. J. Gucker, Civic Worker, Dies

Mrs. Virginia Gucker, 47, wife of Arthur J. Gucker, business manager of The Miami Herald, died Tuesday. She had been in ill health for about two years.

Mrs. Virginia Gucker
. . . dies at 47

A resident of Miami 17 years, she had been active in social and civic affairs. She was a member of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, Miami Woman's Club, the Bath Club and the Miami Shores Country Club.

She was a leader in the annual Easter Lily Balls, sponsored to aid the Crippled Children's Society.

Graduated from Southern Junior College, Chattanooga, Tenn., she was the widow of Kingsley A. Shaw when she moved to Miami from Gainesville.

She and Mr. Gucker were married in February, 1947.

Mrs. Gucker continued to be as active as possible until her death.

On Dec. 20, she insisted that the annual Christmas party for her young daughter, Mary Anne must be held as usual. Friends did much of the work in arranging it, but she watched the festivities from a chair as Mary Anne and 20 friends made the house bright with holiday gaiety.

And then, which was important to her, she was able to observe Christmas at home with her family.

Survivors include two daughters, Mary Anne, at home, and Mrs. E. Bruce Capper, III, Dallas; one brother, Jesse Burts, Jr., Miami; her mother, Mrs. T. Finley Cato, Miami, and one grandson.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Friday in Van Orsdel Northside Mortuary, 3333 NE Second Ave., with private interment in Southern Memorial Park.

Killing Held Justified

A coroner's inquest late Wednesday ruled justifiable homicide in the fatal shooting earlier in the day Herbert Taylor Jr., 24, of 1339 NW Fourth Ave., a Negro theft suspect.

Taylor was shot at 10:30 a.m. at NW 14th Ter. and Second Ave. by Miami Policeman N. M. Garfield as he leaped from a truck, allegedly stolen from the Certified Poultry & Egg Co., 41 NW 10th St. There was a $1,500 load of chickens, butter and eggs on the stolen truck, police said.

National Summary

The vicious winter storm in the midwest spread its effects throughout the eastern half of the country.

The low center moving slowly northward through eastern Indiana was gaining force as warm moist air from the Gulf continued to stream into the pattern.

Heavy rains ahead of the system broke records with a band of thunderstorms from the southern Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico.

Tornadoes were reported in the northern half of Mississippi and Alabama and into central Kentucky.

One band of most violent weather was moving across Ohio, Tennessee and into eastern Alabama while the storms associated with the sharpest drop in temperatures were along the front that stretched from the low center to Cincinnati, Nashville, Florence, Ala., Mississippi and New Orleans.

In the northeast moderate to heavy rains on top of snows of nearly a foot have created the danger of flash floods in western New York and Pennsylvania during the period of the sharp warming ahead of the storm.

King Retrial Jurors Seated

BARTOW —(UPI)— Attorneys agreed Wednesday on a six-man jury which will decide for the second time if former Sate Sen. Harry King is guilty of perjury in a political pay-off scandal.

As the trial got under way, Judge Roy H. Amidon had under consideration a demand by the defense to examine secret statements by the state's two star witnesses.

King is charged with conspiring with two former Polk County deputy sheriffs to lie before a grand jury. The jury was investigating a charge that King paid former State Rep. Boone Tillett $10,000 to drop plans to oppose King for the State Senate.

The deputies — James Busbee and Rollie Arnold — have been summoned as star witnesses for the state. The two pleaded guilty in their second trial for perjury recently.

Both the deputies and King were convicted at their first trials but the State Supreme Court ordered new trials.

The defense motion asked Amidon to hand over statements made to former State Attorney R. B. Huffaker by Busbee and Arnold last fall. That was prior to the time the deputies pleaded guilty.

The prosecution promised to call Busbee and Arnold to the witness stand, as well as Tillett. Tillett has testified he received the $10,000 as a bribe.

But King, who later was defeated for re-election, said he gave the money to Tillett in an attempt to catch him at extortion.

Busbee and Arnold pleaded guilty to lying about seeing King and Tillett burn some papers near Babson Park Feb. 4, 1956. It was also their second trial. They pleaded innocent during the first but their convictions were also thrown out on technical grounds.

$1 Million Institution Is Urged

By JOHN L. BOYLES
Capitol Bureau Chief

TALLAHASSEE — Construction of a million dollar institution in Broward County for treatment of psychotic and emotionally disturbed children will be recommended to the 1959 Legislature by an Interim Committee on Mental Health.

Sen. J. Emory Cross of Alachua, a member of the committee, said the facility would have at least 48 beds.

Cross told the Parent-Teachers Association legislative conference the state now has no facilities for treating such cases under 12 years of age "but there are many children who could be helped by treatment.

The senator said one of Florida's big drawbacks in the treatment of children is the lack of any program for identifying retarded children "although they number in the thousands. There is an urgent need for an identification program, for many of our retarded children can be trained and educated."

The Sunland Training Center at Gainesville is caring for 1,700 retarded children and a new institution at Fort Myers will accommodate another 700, but "at least 1,000 retarded children already are on the waiting list," Cross said.

2nd Charge Filed for Shooting

PENSACOLA —(UPI)— Ed M. Golden, 23-year-old Milton car salesman who will be tried for assault with intent to kill faced a new charge Wednesday.

Golden's father, meantime, has been hailed into court on a contempt charge for allegedly asking a business associate to contact a prospective juror on the son's behalf.

Young Golden has been convicted of assault and battery for wounding his girl friend's mother, but acquitted of killing a deputy sheriff and wounding another. He will be tried next month for assault with intent to kill in the wounding of the girl's father.

Escambia County Solicitor Henry R. Barksdale filed an amended complaint against Golden, charging him with shooting into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Pearce Jernigan, the wounded parents.

Golden's father, Ed, was released on $500 bond from Escambia county jail after Record Court Judge Ernest E. Mason issued the order for Golden's arrest.

The elder Golden allegedly contacted F. M. Billings, 56, and asked him to discuss young Golden's case with a prospective juror, H. L. Coburger.

Billings, who was sentenced to 30 days in jail, told the court he selected Coburger's name from a jury list shown him by Golden's father.

'Optional' Integration Endorsed

By JOHN L. BOYLES
Capitol Bureau Chief

TALLAHASSEE — Presiding officers of the House and Senate Wednesday endorsed a dual system of segregated and mixed schools as the measure most likely to be passed by the Legislature in an effort to preserve segregated schools for those who want them.

House Speaker Thomas D. Beasley said the 1959 Legislature ought to pass a "parent-option" bill to give parents an opportunity to withdraw their children from public schools if they are integrated.

Senate President-Designate Dewey Johnson of Quincy, who appeared on a panel with Beasley and other legislators, endorsed the proposal and said he believes it would pass the Senate.

Beasley said he would favor new legislation to prevent mixing of the races provided it does not destroy the public school system.

But he told the Florida Parent-Teachers Association Legislative Conference that "I don't think parents ought to be forced to send their children to an integrated school." He proceeded to sharply criticize the U.S. Supreme Court.

The delegates applauded vigorously when Beasley said "it would just about destroy my soul to see the public school system done away with."

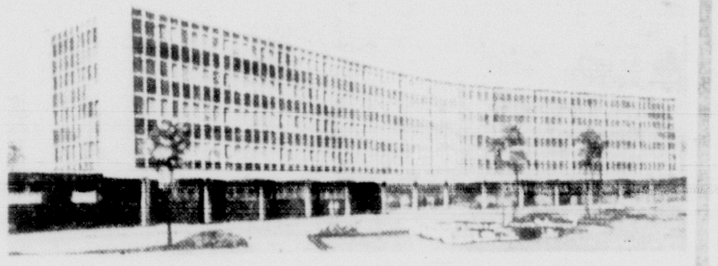
Beasley, who had indicated strongly that he will be a candidate for governor in 1960, said his position was firm.

"I'm for public schools and I am for segregation. I don't think a white student should be forced to go to an integrated school and I don't think a Negro pupil should be forced to go to a white school."

He said he had opposed the so-called last resort' bill in the 1957 session because "it would have impared our pupil assignment law and our public school system."

Beasley said he felt that the parent option bill should be enacted "just in case a school is integrated. It would give us something to fall back on. I think parents ought to be able to make a choice."

Principal feature of the parent-option bill proposed by several legislators is that it would provide funds for tuition assistance to parents who could not otherwise afford to send their children to a private school.



Sketch of New State Office Building
. . . no inspections, declares city official

State Won't Take Out Building Permit Here

The State of Florida has refused to take out a Miami building permit for its 2.5-million-dollar office structure and the city building department is flabbergasted.

"Okay," said Ellis Knox, head of the department. "No tickee, no washee."

He explained that if the state didn't take out a permit, the building department will not inspect construction of the big facility on NW 12 Ave. at 14th St.

Asked if the state could carry out its own inspection, Knox replied:

"That's dangerous. The construction business is highly competitive. I'm not saying that they'd cut corners—but we like to make sure they're up to our standards."

He said the permit would have amounted to about $5,000 in fees for the city's experts and it could cost the state $40,000 to have the inspections made privately.

Knox said Attorney General Richard W. Ervin had ruled that since the Miami charter did not specifically require the state to take out building permits, the state isn't going to.

Mandatory School Training For Teen Drivers is Asked

By JOHN BOYLES
Capitol Bureau Chief

TALLAHASSEE — State Sen. Joe Eaton of Miami told the legislative conference of the Florida Parent-Teachers Association Wednesday he will introduce a bill to prohibit licensing of drivers under 18-years-old, unless the applicant has passed a driver training course in high school.

Eaton said he hoped it would be one of the safety measures adopted by the Legislative Council for the 1959 session, "but if they don't present it, I will introduce it anyway."

The Miami Senator asserted "Insurance people and the press have campaigned to make citizens more aware of the safety picture, and I think there will be a great deal of support in the Legislature for good traffic laws."

He said 34,000 were hurt, 1,117 killed, and property damage totaled $139,000,000 last year as a result of auto accidents.

Eaton, chairman of the Legislative Council's Traffic Safety Committee, said all schools would be required to offer driver education courses.

"Most of our schools now do, but there is no incentive for students to enroll, because they can get a driver's license at 16. Such a law, requiring training, would be a powerful incentive to take the course," Eaton said.

Cost of the education program would be paid by increasing drivers' license fees from $1.25 to $1.75.

Eaton said other traffic legislation would call for adding 150 men to the Florida Highway Patrol, making radar speed-check results prima facie evidence, issuing driver's license in the month of a driver's birthday, and having them all mailed from Tallahassee.

Centralizing the licensing program would help cut down on the number of drivers who fraudulently obtain duplicates or give phony addresses.

He also proposed that a person charged with driving while intoxicated be required to take a drunkometer test or surrender his license until his case has been heard in court.

Collins Hits Ike's Gas Tax Plan

TALLAHASSEE — (UPI) — Gov. LeRoy Collins expressed strong opposition Wednesday to President Eisenhower's call for a 1½ cent per gallon increase in the federal gasoline tax.

The President suggested an increase from 3 to 4½ cents a gallon to keep the interstate highway program, on which the federal government pays 90 per cent of the costs, on a pay-as-you-go basis.

Collins said he recognizes the necessity for the huge network of defense highways.

"I am opposed to the federal government's placing any additional tax on gasoline," Collins said. "This is a field of taxation that should be left to the states."

State Road Chairman Joe Grotegut agreed and said Florida's congressional delegation will be asked to oppose the tax increase.

Collins indicated he might ask the next Legislature to authorize an additional state gasoline tax to help counties buy right-of-way for primary road project.

The state now collects seven cents per gallon, in addition to the three-cent federal levy.

Bishop's Election Set in '60

JACKSONVILLE —(P)— A successor to Bishop John Branscomb, Methodist bishop of Florida and Cuba who died last week of a heart attack, will not be elected until next year.

C. M. Cotton, superintendent of the Jacksonville district of the Florida conference of the Methodist Church, said Wednesday bishops of the southeastern jurisdiction would meet in July, 1960, at Lake Junaluska, N. C., to name the new bishop.

Meanwhile, he said, the College of Bishops of the southeastern jurisdiction will assign a member to fill the vacancy until the election.

Faces Trial Before Successor

Judge Faces DWI Charge

By ZOLA SWARTHOUT
Herald Correspondent

STUART — A Martin County judge, suspended by Gov. LeRoy Collins on charges of drunkenness and incompetence, now faces trial before the judge named to succeed him.

The charge? Driving while intoxicated.

He was held in jail until 10 a.m. when he posted $100 bond.

The case came to light Wednesday when County Prosecutor T. T. Oughterson filed an information outlining the formal charges.

Lowery faces trial during the February term before County Judge Evans Crary Jr., named to the bench by Collins after the governor suspended Lowery Nov. 19.

Harris R. Lowery Jr.
. . . judge faces trial

Collins charged that Lowery was "drunk on the bench" at West Palm Beach Nov. 7.

"I cannot tolerate or condone nor do I have any feeling of lenience for a judge who so degraded himself and his court as to appear in a drunken condition on the bench," Collins said.

Earlier last year, Lowery faced charges in Martin County Court of being in possession of a car while under the influence, drunken driving and reckless driving.

Okeechobee County Prosecutor D. C. Durrance replaced Oughterson as prosecutor, dropped the first two counts, and Lowery pleaded guilty to reckless driving. He was fined $100.

The Senate, meeting in April, will review Lowery's suspension. If the suspension is upheld, Crary will serve the remainder of Lowery's term — through January 1961. If not, Lowery could be returned to the bench and get back pay for the suspension period.

He was elected in November 1956.

Collins to Press For Stronger Bill

By JOHN L. BOYLES
Capitol Bureau Chief

TALLAHASSEE—The State Supreme Court Wednesday knocked out the 1957 law curbing the practice of naturopaths, but Gov. LeRoy Collins said he will renew his fight against naturopathy in the 1959 legislature session.

"An awful lot of work has gone down the drain," Collins said when he learned of the court's decision.

The law prohibited the licensing of any new naturopaths and denied all but a handful the right to prescribe drugs.

The court said in a unanimous opinion that the 1957 law is unconstitutional because it discriminated between classes among naturopaths, giving some the privilege to prescribe drugs but denying the right to others.

The governor said he assumed a petition for rehearing will be filed with the Supreme Court and withheld any definite statement on what action he will take until the final court mandate is handed down.

But he said, "It is a pretty good supposition" that he will ask the Legislature to put the naturopaths out of business completely in the upcoming session.

Collins said meanwhile he will ask Attorney General Richard Ervin for an opinion on the status of the old Board of Naturopathic Examiners which was abolished by the 1957 law. Powers of the board were transferred to the State Board of Health.

State Board of Health Attorney William Walker said the Supreme Court's refusal to uphold a Duval Circuit Court decision "puts us right back where we were two years ago."

Gov. Collins recommended that the 1957 Legislature completely abolish the practice of naturopathy in Florida. He based his recommendation on the results of an extensive probe which charged many naturopaths were graduates of diploma mills and were not properly trained to prescribe drugs.

After a bitter fight, the house passed a bill prohibiting the licensing of any new naturopaths but permitting those who had been practicing for two years to continue.

It also banned the prescribing of drugs by naturopaths which had been allowed under a Supreme Court interpretation of a 1957 law giving legal recognition to naturopathy as a healing art.

The Senate amended the House bill to permit naturopaths who had practiced in Florida for 15 years by Oct. 1, 1957 not only to continue practicing, but also to prescribe drugs.

Naturopaths have been outlawed in all but three states. Florida is the only state which allows them to prescribe drugs, including narcotics.

Although there were only about 350 naturopaths in Florida at their peak, they have long exerted a powerful lobbying influence in the legislative halls. Miami, Tampa, Jacksonville and St. Petersburg have the greatest concentration of naturopaths.

UF Probe Runs Into 'Blocks'

JACKSONVILLE —(P)— State Sen. Charley Johns, whose legislative committee has been investigating irregularities among the University of Florida faculty and students, said Wednesday he may be "forced" into public hearings.

Johns said witnesses who had been cooperative in the inquiry, which has been under way for some weeks, had turned hostile this week.

Instead of answering truthfully some had actually blocked progress of the investigation, he said.

He said others had refused to talk to investigators when sought for further information.

The Senator pointed out that public hearings would place subpena powers in the hands of the committee, allowing it to require testimony under oath.

He said he was reluctant to go into public hearings because of the widespread adverse publicity attendant on such proceedings.

"We do not want to hurt the majority of staff and faculty members who have no connection with wrong doing," he said.

The subject of the investigation has not been officially announced, and Johns said he was not ready to reveal it now. There have been some allegations, however, that part of the probe concerned morals.

"We hope to wind up this week," Johns said. He added a full and official announcement would probably be made at the end of the investigation.

Johns also declared reports the committee investigators had intimidated witnesses were not true.

Our Girls (It's the Makeup) Score With Mikoyan's Son

By Herald Wire Services

WHAT IMPRESSED Sergo Mikoyan most during his visit to the U.S. along with his father, Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan?

"The girls."

The 29-year-old Sergo gave that prompt answer to a Washington Star society reporter who chatted with him at a reception at the Soviet embassy.

"Ours (girls) are just as pretty as yours," he hastened to explain, "but you have the textiles and cosmetics."

The younger Mikoyan, a writer and editor for the Soviet magazine World Economics and International Relations, said:

But he added that he does not believe some news magazines reflect this—"especially U.S. News and World Report and Newsweek. Those are two I have noticed."

"I must say I like your newspapers," he went on. "They were all most friendly (in reporting on his father's visit) . . . They were fair."

Teller Just Pressed Alarm

Leon Harent
. . . 83, still plugging

DETROIT —(AP)— Leon Harent, who says he has spent 69 years of his life in jails across the country, walked into the National Bank of Detroit's main branch.

He handed a teller a note written on a piece of paper bag. The note said: "This is a holdup. I want $1,000 in small bills."

The elderly man's possessions at the time of his arrest included a pair of broken eyeglasses, a pocket knife, a safety razor and three razor blades.

"Is this all you've got to show for 83 years?" police asked.

"I've made progress," Harent replied. "When I was young they didn't have safety razors."

Randolph Mixes His Bournemouths

RANDOLPH CHURCHILL, son of Sir Winston Churchill, got a map of England and sallied forth to do battle for the Conservative seat in the House of Commons from Bournemouth East.

Churchill's campaign got off to a false start when he started politicking in the wrong district.

He called a press conference at the Five Star Royal Bath Hotel at Bournemouth to announce his arrival to "test the political temperature." He said he hoped the local voters would call on him to discuss the state of things in Bournemouth East.

"They won't come here," a reporter told him.

"Why not?" asked Churchill.

"Well, this is Bournemouth West."

Ducktail Haircuts Really a Poor Risk

"I HAVE FOUND that defendants with ducktail haircuts make poor risks on probation," said General Sessions Court Judge Bruce Littlejohn in York, S. C., last December.

Nevertheless the judge imposed one-year suspended sentences on Bennie Kimbrell, 19, and Richard Broome, 18, of Rock Hill, who had pleaded guilty to housebreaking and grand larceny. But, as a term of their probation, Judge Littlejohn ordered haircuts for the pair.

Last week, York County police caught Kimbrell and Broome taking auto parts from a spare parts yard in Rock Hill. Wednesday, General Sessions Court Judge George T. Gregory Jr. revoked their probations and sent them to the State Penitentiary. Both were again sporting ducktail haircuts.

His Gold

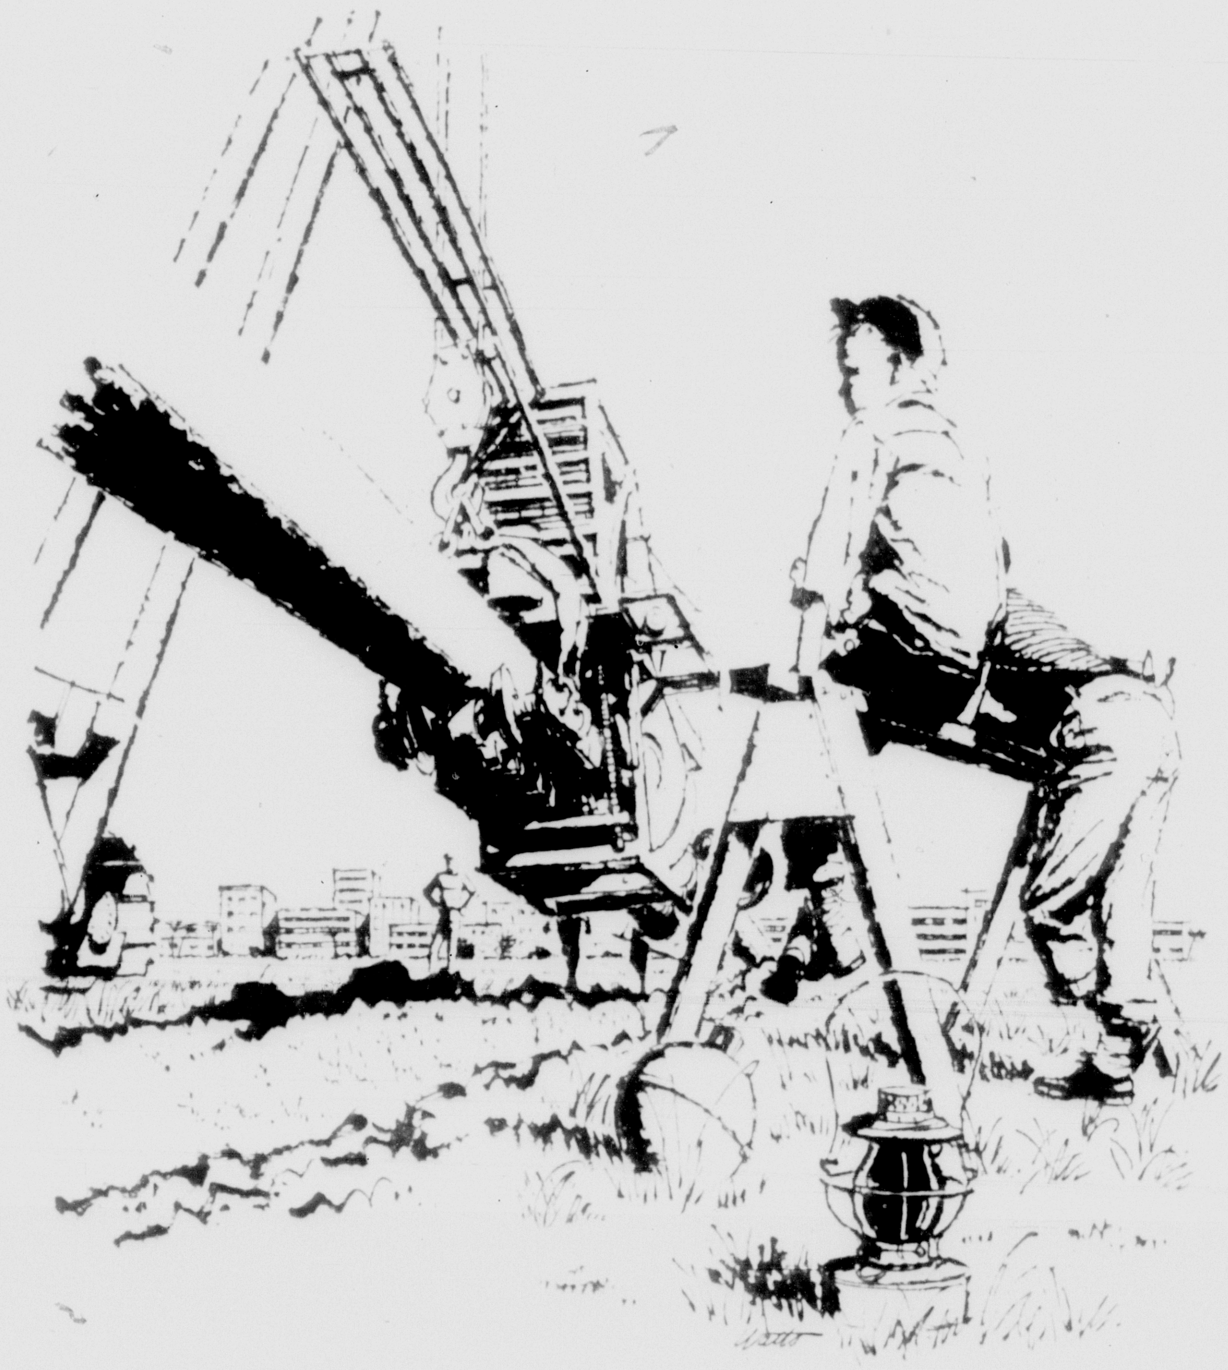
It's Mental And Dental

DALLAS, Tex. — (UPI) — D. E. Jones is returning to his $50-a-week job in a Corsicana, Tex., service station, ending a hoax that began when he claimed to have found about two million dollars worth of gold bars in a berry patch.

Jones, 38-year-old father of eight children, told Secret Service men that the story was untrue, as a lie detector test had indicated earlier.

"The only gold I have is what's in my teeth," he said. "That cost $450 when the dentist put it in, but I've been losing teeth lately."

Jones could be fined $10,000 and-or given a five-year prison sentence for making a false statement to the government.



Natural Gas... will bring new industrial and domestic economy to Florida

This scene is becoming familiar throughout Florida. Perhaps you have seen it alongside a busy highway, in the outskirts of the city or even in your own backyard.

What you are seeing is part of the Houston Corporation's 1517 mile pipeline which will bring an abundant supply of natural gas to all of Florida.

The next time you see this scene, stop and take a second look, for in a few short weeks the men and equipment will be gone and in their wake will come vast new developments in Florida's industry and economy.

Fabulous DeMille Dies at 77

Highlights, Career, 2C

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. —(AP)— Cecil Blount DeMille, a founder of the Hollywood film industry and the most successful of all movie makers, died of a heart attack Wednesday at 77.

It was the third serious heart attack for the producer-director, whose name became a symbol of flamboyant films. He suffered the first in Egypt in November 1954, during location scenes for his last great Biblical epic, "The Ten Commandments." He refused doctors' advice to stop the film, saying, "I'll continue working until God wants me to quit."

Last June he suffered another attack. But in December he undertook a strenuous tour to exploit the last film he supervised, "The Buccaneer." The end came at 5:30 a.m. at his Hollywood home with his daughter Cecilia and her husband, Joseph Harper, at his bedside.

DeMille's wife for 57 years, also in ill health, was not immediately told of his death. But friends said she had sensed something was wrong.

The filmland titan died at the peak of a 45-year history in films. His second making of "The Ten Commandments" was just overtaking "Gone With the Wind" as the biggest money-maker of all time.

His other movies—"Greatest Show on Earth," "Samson and Delilah," "The Unconquered," etc.—were huge successes.

He was proud that his version of the Christ story, "The King of Kings," has been showing somewhere in the world every day since it was released in 1927.

He never won an Oscar for direction. The academy, perhaps in recognition of his great record, finally named "The Greatest Show on Earth" the best picture of 1952.

DeMille's death leaves Samuel Goldwyn the sole survivor of the famous triumvirate who started Hollywood in the big-time back in 1912.

DeMille was born Aug. 12, 1881, at Ashfield, Mass., of a Dutch family that came to America in 1658. His father was a schoolteacher turned playwright who introduced his sons to the theater world.

Cecil started as an actor and in 1902 married a fellow member of the E. H. Sothern troupe, Constance Adams. They had four children: Mrs. Harper, Mrs. Anthony Quinn, John and Richard DeMille. There are 13 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

The family announced that the funeral will be held Friday at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church in Hollywood. Private interment will follow in a $250,000 mausoleum DeMille built in Hollywood cemetery in 1953.

Ike Gets Housing 'Dare'

Veto Will Fail, Lawmaker Says

By FREDERIC SHERMAN
Herald Real Estate Editor

CHICAGO—President Eisenhower is going to get the chance to veto the biggest housing bill in the history of this country.

That was the challenge thrown at the White House Wednesday by Rep. Albert Rains of Alabama in a fiery speech to the National Association of Home Builders. He predicted Congress will override Ike's expected veto of a bill providing almost two billion dollars in special aid for housing and urban renewal.

Rains had been scheduled to talk about the problems of financing community facilities in mushrooming suburban areas. But he whipped the builders into rounds of applause with an attack on Republican Party leaders who are pushing for Ike's balanced budget.

"I read in the papers that I'm one of the big Democratic spenders in Washington because I want a decent house for every American family under the private enterprise system," Rains said.

Rains accused the White House of trying to balance the budget at the expense of programs that have become a part of the nation's growth.

Mr. Eisenhower wants to hand back to the cities the responsibility for urban renewal, flood control and a dozen other important programs. But you don't hear the White House talking about turning back some of the federal tax sources to the cities," Rains said.

Rains told the builders he doesn't believe in government housing and this was worth loud applause. But the Alabama congressman followed with the gambit of his old log cabin school that didn't have electricity. You guessed it. It had a pine knot fire just like the one Abraham Lincoln studied by.

"It took TVA and REA to bring in electricity under the same kind of government help that I am asking for housing," he said. "The White House keeps saying we can't afford it. But those people in high places don't seem to understand the difference between spending and housing programs that don't cost the government a cent."

A bill Rains introduced last week provides 500 million dollars in special assistance to support mortgage prices. It includes the same amount for college housing loans, 1½ billion over three years for outright grants to the cities for slum clearance and urban renewal and 200 million in direct loans for housing for the elderly.

"I have great personal admiration for the President, but it is obvious he is beginning to believe his campaign speeches. If he stops the housing industry this year he will bring a terrible depression down on this country," Rains concluded in a storm of applause.

Tito Arrives In Ceylon

COLOMBO —(AP)— President Tito of Yugoslavia arrived in Ceylon Wednesday on the last stop of his tour of so-called neutral Asian countries.

Tito was to meet Premier Solomon Bandaranaike later for talks on the international situation. They are expected to reaffirm their abstention from alignment with both the Communist and Western power blocs.

Atlas Death Witnessed In Pacific

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. —(AP)— The flaming death-plunge of America's biggest satellite apparently was witnessed from two places in the Pacific, the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory said Wednesday.

The observatory said it had received what appeared to be "very reliable" reports from the naval station on Guam and from the Navy cruiser Rochester which was in the Guam area.

Smithsonian officials said they received a radio message from Guam that a "fiery red comet" had been observed streaking through the sky at 9:10 a.m.

The skipper of the USS Rochester radioed that a "possible Atlas sighting" had been made at about 9:08 a.m.

Both these times would be near midnight Wednesday night, Guam time.

Million Cheer Castro Pledge That Executions Won't Stop

By Herald Wire Services

HAVANA, Cuba — Fidel Castro told a wildly-cheering crowd of Cubans Wednesday that the new regime will revise or wipe out burdensome foreign concessions granted by the fallen Batista dictatorship.

In a fiery speech, the rebel chief made it clear he will continue with the execution of Batista "assassins and torturers."

Estimates of the crowd ranged from 500,000 to one million. The massive turnout was all the more impressive in view of the fact that the total population of all of Cuba is just under six million.

As Castro spoke to the record crowd gathered before Havana's Presidential Palace, reports from interior cities said at least 22 more Batista followers had been cut down by military firing squads, bringing to an estimated 250 the total of those reported executed since the overthrow of Fulgencio Batista on New Year's Day.

The bearded rebel leader said his victorious revolutionary movement had been made the target of the "most infamous, the most criminal campaign ever launched against a people."

He blamed the campaign on foreign business interests because "they know that we are going to ask for the cancellation of all the onerous concessions made to foreign interests" by the Batista government.

Castro's first appearance on the scene was from a helicopter which flew over the crowd and the palace to land on Zayas Park, on the other side of the palace from the crowd. Those who recognized him from the ground broke into wild cheering.

Cubans of all ranks and ages had poured through downtown Havana streets and into the "People's Square" facing the palace to acclaim Castro and endorse his wholesale execution of "war criminals" of the toppled Batista dictatorship.

Among those who heard Castro were two U.S. congressmen and 46 American newsmen, as well as journalists from other countries who were invited here to witness Wednesday's demonstration and the next series of "war crimes" trials. The two congressmen were Rep. Charles O. Porter (D., Ore.) and Rep. Adam Clayton Powell (D., N.Y.).

The invitations were extended after snowballing criticism, particularly in the U.S., that the swift rebel trials and executions were a "bloodbath" with no legal basis.

Castro was greeted by a deafening ovation when he appeared on the speakers rostrum at 5 p.m. The start of his address was delayed several minutes by the thunderous acclaim.

Describing the Cuban crowd as a "jury of one million men and women, of all social classes, of all religions, of all political creeds," Castro asked that "those who are in accord with our justice raise their hands."

The huge crowd raised hands as one man and another tremendous cheer rang out.

Castro then said, "Gentlemen, representatives of the diplomatic corps, newspapermen from all over the continent: a jury of one million Cubans of all ideas and social classes has voted. Let those democrats, or those who call themselves democrats, say if this is not indeed democracy.

Mikoyan Gets Back In the Air

Flight plans called for a non-stop trip to Copenhagen where it was understood he would catch a Soviet jetliner for Moscow.

Mikoyan and his party of five, including his son Sergo, spent an unscheduled night at this U. S. Naval Air Base. The SAS pilot was forced to land because of mechanical trouble in one engine and fire in another.

Mikoyan said he was unshaken by the trouble on the four-engine plane — though it caused nervous chills in world capitals. The DC7 was carrying 35 passengers and a crew of 14 when it first encountered trouble high over the Atlantic.

"I've had a full life and would have accepted whatever consequences might have befallen me," the 63-year-old Mikoyan told a reporter.

SAS spokesmen in New York expressed doubt any sabotage was involved.

Rumors Flying Around Malik

LONDON —(AP)— Soviet Ambassador Jacob A. Malik was back at his London desk Wednesday amid mounting speculation he may soon be moved to a new post in Moscow.

The handsome, 52-year-old envoy has just returned from a nine-week visit to the Soviet capital. Diplomatic circles here believe he may already have word of a new assignment — possibly as a deputy to Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko. He held that rank before he came here.

Forecast: Rain, Sleet And Snow

Ice Knocks Out Power Lines

CHICAGO — (UPI) — Winter's worst storm chased thousands of persons from flood-threatened homes and buried the mid-continent under blizzard snows Wednesday.

The vast storm, ranging from the Rockies to the Appalachians, also sent tornadoes racing through the Southland. A sub-zero cold wave moved into the Plains as the snows dwindled.

The U.S. Weather Bureau predicted more severe winter weather from the Great Lakes to the Middle Gulf States. In the North, the forecast was for more snow, sleet and freezing rains.

In the South, warnings of thunderstorms and possible tornadoes hung over parts of Tennessee, Georgia, the western Carolinas, southeast Kentucky and southern Virginia.

High waters forced 2,500 of the 16,000 residents of Mount Vernon, Ohio, from their homes, flooded the state Capitol of Columbus, created a state of emergency at Sharon, Pa., and closed highways in southern Indiana. Buffalo, N.Y., motorists abandoned their cars in the flooded streets.

From New Mexico to Indiana, Westerners and Midwesterners struggled to dig out of foot-deep snows. Schools, factories and roads were closed through nine states and traffic in the big cities of Kansas City, St. Louis, Dallas and Chicago became paralyzed.

Ice knocked out the power in scores of Midwest towns. At Decatur, Ill., the Red Cross set up shelter for an expected 2,500 persons driven from their homes because of power and water failures.

The Southland took its storm in the form of tornadoes which powered their way through Kentucky, Mississippi, Alabama and Tennessee.

A fast-moving twister smashed Caneyville, Ky., and Kentucky State Police said they had reports of at least one person killed or seriously injured, plus heavy damage. Two more persons were reported injured by high winds which hit the Fort Knox area. The highway between Elizabethtown, Ky., and Caneyville was blocked.

A church and several barns went down before a twister

New Chill On the Way

A cold weather system moving in from the Gulf of Mexico promised to end Florida's warm weather respite today with a resurgence of temperatures ranging below the freezing point.

The weather bureau Wednesday night predicted a mercury drop of 25 to 35 degrees by midday today in extreme northwest Florida.

Forecasters said that by tonight all Florida would feel the chilly brunt of the new cold snap to some extent.

They said temperatures would be below freezing in North Florida and near freezing in the state's citrus-growing central portion by Friday morning, with sub-freezing temperatures in most of the state Saturday morning.

Shallow, But Too Deep for Them

Gusher Was a Real Gasser!

TULSA, Okla. — (UPI) — The Sooner State Drilling and Producing Co. of Coleman, Tex., recently brought in the world's shallowest oil well, a healthy 4,000-barrel-an-hour gusher in southern Oklahoma—at a depth of 2½ feet.

Unfortunately, the well nine miles east of Bretch, Okla., had to be abandoned soon after it came in.

The well sprayed over the top of the rig and continued to flow at the rate of more than 4,000 barrels an hour, until it was choked off 40 minutes later.

There was no fire, no damage to drilling rig and no crew injuries. About 2,700 barrels of oil were recovered, most of which flowed into an adjacent slush pit.

All was going like clockwork when suddenly the happy smiles on the faces of the drillers turned to frowns, then astonishment, and finally horror.

What caused the consternation was the unhappy discovery that the oil was coming from a 16-inch pipeline, owned by the Service Pipe Line Co., of Tulsa.

The line was repaired and the rig moved for another try.

Long Wait in Hot Sun

He Packed 'em In-- And Scores Fainted

By JAMES BUCHANAN
Herald Staff Writer

HAVANA, Cuba — Fidel Castro played to a packed plaza Wednesday.

And he wasn't giving away a thing.

In fact, he kept half a million people waiting in the hot sun for three hours just to tell him he'd been right all along.

They told him, too, in no uncertain terms that they wanted the new Cuban government to go on trying and killing war criminals.

They came from the length and breadth of the island to fill the four-block-long plaza in front of the Presidential Palace.

And they overflowed into every side street and the park behind the palace, and filled every rooftop and balcony within a two-block area of the speaker's platform.

I believe there were 500,000 people answering Castro's call for a show of faith in the new regime.

They arrived loaded with banners and placards saying "Death to the Traitors," and "Kill Now — Not Later."

There were many in English, some proclaiming "Cuban

'Recalled for Consultations'

Didn't 'Flee' Cuba, Says Envoy Rubirosa

Special To The Herald

CIUDAD TRUJILLO — Porfirio Rubirosa, the Dominican Don Juan, diplomat and sometime sports car racer, arrived here Wednesday afternoon from Cuba via Miami for diplomatic consultations.

He spoke of politics, Havana, and racing — but of women — no.

Accompanying Rubirosa was his beauteous young, French actress wife. And the suave diplomat, whose amours brought him more of an international reputation than his diplomatic skill, deftly spoke of politics, yet managed to court his lovely wife.

The great Latin lover, who has been representing his country in Cuba, denied that he was on thin standing with the Castro government and fled Cuba because Batista fell.

"I enjoy my assignment there and see no reason why I would not return to Havana."

Mrs. Rubirosa, his fifth wife, kept holding hands with her husband and exchanging romantic glances with him while he discussed politics.

She also had with her a woven basket which contained a trio of Chihuahuas which she petted occasionally. And when she wasn't holding onto Porfirio, she was clinging to a nine-inch Raggedy Ann cloth doll.

Asked if he planned to do any more sports car racing, Rubirosa looked at his wife and said:

"No. I will do no more. I am too busy, and besides . . ." The words trailed off but he glanced at his wife.

An excellent reason to surrender racing.

PAA Talks Recess: No Strike Set

Contract negotiations between Pan American World Airways and the Transport Workers Union were recessed in New York Wednesday, but a union official said no date has been set for a strike of some 8,000 PAA employes.

"We will resume the negotiations on Friday," William Grogan, international vice president of the TWU, told The Herald by telephone.

He said the contract talks have not been terminated and that "there is no real significance" to postponement of negotiations over a new contract.

"We're just coasting for a day or so," Grogan said. "There are a number of issues on which we have not reached agreement."

Some 3,000 of the PAA workers involved are in Miami and 1,500 are at the missile base at Cape Canaveral.

Eastern Air Lines, meanwhile, announced formal signing of a contract with the Air Lines Stewards and Stewardesses Association. An Eastern spokesman said the new contract, effective through Jan. 31, 1960, provides more pay and improved working conditions for Eastern's 1,400 flight attendants.

Biggest issue in the talks between Pan American, the TWU and a federal negotiator is the union demand for a cut in weekly working hours from 40 to 37½.

"Strike standby" telegrams already have been sent to union members at all PAA installations, but Grogan refused to speculate on whether or when a strike will be called.

He said that if the present talks break off altogether, the government will offer arbitration to each side before a strike is called.

TV Tower Falls, Kills 1, Hurts 2

Fred Gregg, owner of Radio Station WLAP in Lexington, said the huge steel tower almost cut the building in half.

"The big tower whipped around in the wind and then fell directly across the center of the station," Gregg said.

The dead woman was identified as Mrs. Susan Grazley, who had been working at WLEX-TV for about three or four months.

Mrs. Nita Wash, bookkeeper at the station, and an unidentified man who was standing in front of the building were injured and taken to the hospital.

which hit Yokena, Miss., near Vicksburg. Wind damage was estimated at $100,000 at Adamsville, Tenn.; a twister swept away a 300-foot highway patrol tower at Lawrenceburg, Tenn., and more tornadoes wrecked buildings near Eva and Cullman, Ala.

National Guard troops moved into Mount Vernon to aid in this mass evacuation caused by a 3.69-inch downpour. The flood's first victim was a 17-year old boy who drowned trying to leap from the front porch of his flooded home to a truck pulling away.

Boats and ambulances were used to remove the sick from a 10-block area at Lima, Ohio, which was under water.

The Coast Guard, meanwhile, evacuated 25 persons stranded on the west channel of Rocky River near Cleveland, and authorities sent a distress call to a National Guard armory for amphibious tanks to rescue families in the Cleveland suburb of Eastlake. Ice chunks on the flooding Rocky River were two feet thick and as big as a room.

At Columbus, the worst flood in 23 years on the Scioto and Olentangy Rivers drove hundreds from their homes. Gov. Michael V. DiSalle alerted the National Guard and Highway Department to be ready for new emergencies.

In northwest Pennsylvania, Sharon Mayor Michael J. Dunn declared a state of emergency after the Shenango River poured into downtown stores. The Civil Defense and extra police were called out.

In southern Indiana, rains measuring up to 5.13 inches deep sent flood waters swirling over highways. School buses couldn't get through the floods in Jackson, Washington, Scott and Wayne counties, and a Decatur county teacher, Mrs. Anna Walke, 42, was rescued by boat after spending more than two hours in a car which had been swept into Salt Creek flood waters.

Chicago endured freezing rain and more snow in the wake of an overnight storm which dumped almost a foot of snow. More than 200 schools closed down in the Chicago area.

In Missouri, drifts were seven feet deep at Chillicothe, all public and parochial schools closed in storm-swept Kansas City along with some factories, and power went out for 40,000 persons in a St. Louis suburb.

Hundreds of snowbound schools were closed across Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Iowa, Michigan, Kansas, Colorado and Oklahoma.

Sun Fells Scores at Rally

Mothers Demand Death to Avenge Their Sons."

Those who held their signs in the air at 2 p.m. when Castro was scheduled to appear, couldn't put them down until 6:45 p.m. when the rally finally broke up.

They couldn't because they were packed in shoulder-to-shoulder and hip-to-hip.

Castro, who may be the most public relations-conscious national leader today, goofed on this rally.

He told his people to be on hand at 2 p.m., but didn't show up until 3:30 p.m. and didn't begin speaking until after 4:30 p.m.

In the meantime, he gave them no music or other entertainment. Just a hot sun that boiled tempers which grew hotter as the wait grew longer.

Women fainted by the score and were fanned back into consciousness standing up — unable to fall.

Women who fainted were passed overhead to the edge of the crowd, then taken by stretcher to first aid tents.

At one point, a big pushing movement began a block away from the speaker's stand. It was like watching a good breeze blow waves through a field of wheat.

When the surge hit the edge of the crowd, people went down like ten-pins.

Castro made what was for him a short appearance. He spoke for only an hour and a half.

At one point in his speech, a shapely young Cuban girl in the revolutionary attire of a tight red sweater and black skirt was passed over the heads of the crowd, apparently in a dead faint. Her body moved from hand to hand and went directly beneath and in front of Castro as if she were some living offering to a pagan god.

Once past the rebel leader, however, she quickly came to life and began slapping at a rescuer, who was too free with his hands.

The rebel troops which handled Batista's army had more trouble with the Cubanos of Havana. The army buttressed its blockade around the speaker's platform with tanks and trucks, but when Castro appeared the people crawled over them and ended up directly under his nose.

Castro wasn't the only one who learned the Cubans were satisfied with the way the executions are going. Every U.S. and Latin American newsman was button-holed on the street and told why it was necessary to kill the men who themselves had killed and tortured.

The people's stories are too simple to have been made up for propaganda, and the pictures mothers show you of what happened to their sons couldn't have been faked.

There is no doubt in the mind of anyone who saw the demonstration Wednesday that the Cubans believe the quick execution of their war criminals is necessary and just.

Perhaps by U.S. standards, the justice comes too quickly. The Cubans themselves believe a firing squad is too quick. But they believe they are more humane in killing quickly than in torturing their prisoners for hours and days as they and their families were tortured by Batista.

VATICAN CITY —(AP)— Pope John XXIII Wednesday received U.S. Adm. Charles R. Brown, new commander of NATO forces in Southern Europe, in private audience.

Wife of Herald Executive

Mrs. A. J. Gucker, Civic Worker, Dies

Mrs. Virginia Gucker, 47, wife of Arthur J. Gucker, business manager of The Miami Herald, died Tuesday. She had been in ill health for about two years.

Mrs. Virginia Gucker

. . . dies at 47

A resident of Miami 17 years, she had been active in social and civic affairs. She was a member of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, Miami Woman's Club, the Bath Club and the Miami Shores Country Club.

She was a leader in the annual Easter Lily Balls, sponsored to aid the Crippled Children's Society.

Graduated from Southern Junior College, Chattanooga, Tenn., she was the widow of Kingsley A. Shaw when she moved to Miami from Gainesville.

She and Mr. Gucker were married in February, 1947.

Mrs. Gucker continued to be as active as possible until her death.

On Dec. 20, she insisted that the annual Christmas party for her young daughter, Mary Anne, must be held as usual. Friends did much of the work in arranging it, but she watched the festivities from a chair as 10-year-old Mary and 20 friends made the house bright with holiday gaiety.

And then she was able to observe Christmas at home with her family — an important thing to her.

Survivors include two daughters, Mary Anne, at home, and Mrs. E. Bruce Capper, III, Dallas; one brother, Jesse Burts, Jr., Miami; her mother, Mrs. T. Finley Cato, Miami, and one grandson.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Friday in Van Orsdel Northside Mortuary, 3333 NE Second Ave., with private interment in Southern Memorial Park.

U.S. Envoy Switched to Cuban Post

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Philip W. Bonsal, a career diplomat, was nominated by President Eisenhower Wednesday to be the new ambassador to Cuba.

BONSAL

Bonsal, now ambassador to Bolivia, succeeds Earl E. T. Smith, who resigned Jan. 10—a few days after the forces of Fidel Castro overthrew the government of Fulgencio Batista.

Smith had been criticized by the Castro forces as having been favorable to the Batista government.

Bonsal became ambassador to Bolivia in 1957. He served previously as ambassador to Colombia. Bonsal, 55, has been in the State Department since 1938.

Gov. Egan Still 'Desperately Ill'

SEATTLE, Wash. —(UPI)— Gov. William A. Egan of Alaska remained in critical condition Wednesday in his 50-50 fight for life.

"He is desperately ill," said Dr. Joel W. Baker. "Governor Egan has a 50-50 chance to survive. It will be five days to a week before we know if the crisis is over."

if this is not indeed respecting the will of the people."

Earlier, Castro had unleashed an attack on those who had criticized the actions of the revolutionary government but had remained silent about the evils of the Batista dictatorship:

"While the tyrant lived in this palace, who sold the interests of the country and granted the most onerous concessions to the foreigners, no one attacked him, no press campaign was carried out against him abroad, no congressional voices were raised to accused him."

Castro won another cheer from the mass of humanity before him when he asked if they approved of his recommendation of his brother, Raul, as second-in-command of the revolution to succeed him if he should be killed.

Virtually all normal activities ceased in Havana at 11 a.m. to allow the crowd to gather before the palace.

He was followed by Provisional President Manuel Urrutia, who said he would seek changes in laws on international asylum so "dictators and collaborators" could not take refuge in foreign embassies.

DEW Line Shift Slated

OTTAWA —(AP)— The government announced that the Royal Canadian Air Force will take over operational control of the DEW (Distant Early Warning) Radar Line from the U. S. Air Force.

Beginning Feb. 1, RCAF officers will take over as bosses at the four main DEW Line sites in the Canadian Arctic which are controlled by the military.

The four sites are Cape Dyer on Baffin Island, Hall Lake on the Melville Peninsula, Cambridge Bay on Victoria Island and Cape Parry on Amundsen Gulf.

The new policy will involve only 20 RCAF officers. Four already have been trained in the U.S. and the others are being trained.

National Summary

The vicious winter storm in the midwest spread its effects throughout the eastern half of the country.

The low center moving slowly northward through eastern Indiana was gaining force as warm moist air from the Gulf continued to stream into the pattern.

Heavy rains ahead of the system broke records with a band of thunderstorms from the southern Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico.

Tornadoes were reported in the northern half of Mississippi and Alabama and into central Kentucky.

One band of most violent weather was moving across Ohio, Tennessee and into eastern Alabama while the storms associated with the sharpest drop in temperatures were along the front that stretched from the low center to Cincinnati, Nashville, Florence, Ala., Mississippi and New Orleans.

In the northeast moderate to heavy rains on top of snows of nearly a foot have created the danger of flash floods in western New York and Pennsylvania during the period of the sharp warming ahead of the storm.

Second Street Site for Jail Is Abandoned

By ANNE WILDER
Herald Correspondent

FORT PIERCE — St. Lucie County Commissioners, indicated Wednesday that they have abandoned plans to build a proposed new jail on South Second Street, directly west of the present courthouse.

Meeting with H. W. Johnson, of the architectural firm of James Gable Rogers, Locklock, and Fritz, of Winter Park, the commissioners asked that alternate locations be considered.

Businessmen and property owners on Second Street had protested that the new jail building would result in property depreciation.

Johnson said he will make a report on other possible jail sites at a later date.

The county will also explore the possibility of the city housing county prisoners while the new jail is being built. This would enable the county to use the present jail location for the new structure.

The possibility of placing the jail on top of the new courthouse addition also was discussed. Johnson said this can be done when space is at a premium, but it has decided disadvantages to the operation of the jail.

It also results, he said, in an expensive building because of the weight of jail construction.

Sheriff J. R. Norvell, meeting with the commission and Johnson, did not commit himself Wednesday on the idea of a jail several stories up — he said he would like to think about it first.

Fort Pierce Police Chief Bruce Parsons, also attending the meeting, said any official action on sharing the city jail temporarily with the county would be for the city manager and city commission to decide, but he said he could assure the county that the police department will cooperate 100 per cent.

Melbourne Youth Given Award

Edgar Womack II
. . . young scientist

By BILL BUNGE
Herald Bureau

MELBOURNE — One of the nation's top young scientists of 1959 is a 16-year-old Melbourne High School senior who manages to squeeze in "a few dates with girls" between laboratory experiments.

He is Edgar Allen Womack II, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Womack of 359 Dairy Rd., Melbourne. His father is a developer and builder, and no other member of Allen's family "has ever been interested in science." The Womacks also have a seven-year-old daughter.

A transplanted Floridian, moving here seven years ago from Tennessee, Allen —who drops the Edgar — has been included in a list of honor science students who will compete for top prizes in the 18th annual Westinghouse science talent search.

He is among a handful of finalists picked from 427 entrants from high schools throughout the U.S. Several other Melbourne youngsters also participated. From Allen's group will be selected 40 youthful scientists, who will receive awards, ranging from a $7,500 scholarship to $250.

The first five will receive scholarships to the college of their choice, plus a trip to Washington for a five-day science institute.

Allen has his sights set on attending Massachusetts Institute of Technology, he says it would be "wonderful" to be among the 40 winners.

Although contest winners are also judged on the basis of stiff examinations, scholastic and personal records, and reports from science teachers, an important requirement is the writing of a 1,000-word paper on "My Scientific problem."

Allen's paper was written about a half-completed project he believes "might prove valuable to some person designing the 'alloy skin' of a space ship" to take man safely through the "radiation belt" that circles earth.

In this belt, explains Allen, is said to be the main obstacle to man's exploration of space, according to satellite experiments made during the International Geophysical Year.

The title of his paper, comprising a mouthful of scientific tongue-twisters, is: "An Investigation of the Coulomb Scattering of High Energy Electrons by Point Nucoli."

According to Aller's description of the purpose of this experiment (the cost of which he hopes to hold below $200) is to investigate and determine the characteristics of the coulomb (unusual unit of quantity of electricity) scattering of electrons by point nuclei.

"I intend to bombard metal foils with electrons from a source of high energy beta (radioactive) radiation and analyze the angular distribution and energy of the scattered particles."

On doing this, he explains, "I hope to be able to present a correlated theory for beta scattering which may shed new light on the nucleus and the fields which surround it."

Allen modestly describes his experiment and his future aims in the field of nuclear physics, and is always quick to tell of the help received from teachers and electronic concerns here.

Old Smoke Bomb Goes Off on Bank Of Indian River

FORT PIERCE — Residents of Walton, south of Fort Pierce on the Indian River, had a lively few minutes Wednesday afternoon when an old smoke bomb went off at 3:30 p.m.

Lewis Toye and a neighbor, Mrs. Gordon McCab, heard a report and looked out to see smoke pouring up from a spot on the bank of the river.

Deputy Sheriff Alfred Test, who investigated, said the old signal bomb had evidently washed ashore some time ago.

What set it off no one knows.

Bozun's mate 1-C Allen Gray of the Coast Guard Depot, who was also called to the scene, said the bomb was the type used for signaling in rescue work.

Under Arrest

STATESBORO, Ga. — (AP) — Two Cocoa Beach, Fla., fishermen who admitted leaving a trail of bad checks through Georgia are under arrest on forgery charges.

Sheriff Harold Howell said Leon Blackwelder, 31, and Roger Wayne Monismith, 20, tried to cash a $595 check in a bank here. Officials, who had heard of bad checks being passed in Bainbridge, Thomasville and Brunswick, became suspicious and called police.

Howell reported several thousand dollars worth of checks made out to fictitious names were found in the Floridians' car.

JENSEN BEACH — The second annual United Funds Drive of Jensen Beach and Rio is $1,500 short of its goal of $6,000. It supports nine separate community and health agencies.

Mrs. Frank Wacha, president of the UF Association of Jensen-Rio, said Tuesday that a "victory dance" would be held Jan. 28 at Symour's Inn to put the drive "over the top."

Dancing, and entertainment, and will be offered, with a ticket at a $1. Dance chairman is William Weiss, assisted by Edward Peckelis, Albert Walker, and Seymour Gideon.

Mrs. Wacha urged residents who have not been contacted for their contribution to call Mrs. Warren Shipes Jr., or Robert Larsen.

Tickets may be purchased from any board member, or at Macy's, Mil's Glamour Nook, Sun 'N Surf, Perwinkle Cottages at Rio, o at Indian -iRv tages at Rio, or at Indian River Sales.

Collins Hits Ike's Gas Tax Plan

TALLAHASSEE — (UPI) — Gov. LeRoy Collins expressed strong opposition Wednesday to President Eisenhower's call for a 1½ cent per gallon increase in the federal gasoline tax.

The President suggested an increase from 3 to 4½ cents a gallon to keep the interstate highway program, on which the federal government pays 90 per cent of the costs, on a pay-as-you-go basis.

Collins said he recognizes the necessity for the huge network of defense highways.

"I am opposed to the federal government's placing any additional tax on gasoline," Collins said. "This is a field of taxation that should be left to the states."

State Road Chairman Joe Grotegut agreed and said Florida's congressional delegation will be asked to oppose the tax increase.

Jupiter Is Fired At Cape

CAPE CANAVERAL, —(UPI—The Army fired a thundering Jupiter missile into a clear, moonlit sky Wednesday night on another "operation gaslight" test.

Officials said there was no living creature in the Jupiter, which was used Dec. 13 to blast a monkey through space in a scientific experiment. The Jupiter also served as the booster for the first Army moon rocket.

The purpose of Wednesday night's 1,500-mile test flight, officials said, was to test refinements in the Jupiter and observe the effects of re-entry into the earth's atmosphere of the missile's nose cone. In a combat situation the cone would carry a devastating hydrogen warhead.

The launching appeared normal, but the Jupiter appeared to climb to a higher altitude than in other tests.

Charge is Filed In Auto Fatality

COCOA — The Florida Highway Patrol Wednesday filed an improper passing charge against the driver of a car which killed a motorcycle rider here Tuesday night.

FHP Sgt. Hope Carlan said records of the accident investigation would be turned over to the state's attorney for further investigation aimed at determining whether additional charges should be filed.

The death car was operated by Thomas A. Maxwell Jr., 22, of 1207 Columbia Way, Cocoa. Maxwell was free on nond Wednesday.

Sgt. Carlan and Trooper G. F. Brubaker said investigation showed Maxwell's car and the eastbound car collided while Maxwell was passing several other cars between the Indian River drawbridge and Merritt Island.

Maxwell also swerved onto the shoulder and the two vehicles met headon. Snellgrove's death was Brevard County's second 1959 traffic fatality.

Snellgrove, a native of New Brockton, Ala., is survived by his wife, Fay and two children, Judy 3, and Tom Jr. 4.

Bishop's Election Set in '60

JACKSONVILLE —(AP)— A successor to Bishop John Branscomb, Methodist bishop of Florida and Cuba who died last week of a heart attack, will not be elected until next year.

C. M. Cotton, superintendent of the Jacksonville district of the Florida conference of the Methodist Church, said Wednesday bishops of the southeastern jurisdiction would meet in July, 1960, at Lake Junaluska, N. C., to name the new bishop.

Meanwhile, he said, the College of Bishops of the southeastern jurisdiction will assign a member to fill the vacancy until the election.

Officers Picked At Church Meet

NAPLES — Named this week to three year terms on the vestry of Trinity-by-the-Cove Episcopal Church were Henry B. Watkins Jr., Carl O. Hoffman and Roger Henshaw.

Chosen as delegates to the April diocesan convention in Lakeland were Tony Grana, William Gracely and Henshaw. Watkins, Leslie Johnson and Frank Otte are alternates.

Martin County Still Destroyed

STUART — The first moonshine still raid in 1959 was made Monday three miles south of Salerno between U.S. 1 and A1A.

A 1,500 gallon abandoned still complete with all the "fixings," plus a gallon of shine was discovered and destroyed by W. V. Eddy, beverage agent of Tallahassee, and Sheriff Roy C. Bakerm and Deputy Sheriff Morgan Sprott.

The still was located deep in the piney woods.

Conference Set With Power Firm

By DAN BROWN
Cocoa Bureau Chief

COCOA — A Chamber of Commerce group is readying a four-pronged drive to attract industry to central Brevard —the first large-scale move to counterbalance the impact of Cape Canaveral.

Members of the new industrial committee will gather industrial statistics, find property, launch a publicity campaign and plan plant financing for industries.

The businessmen's group is headed by Claude Dyal, an insurance agent, who says there is a great need to "stabilize the economy of central Brevard and make it less dependent on Patrick Air Force Base and Cape Canaveral."

An industrial development could also stimulate the commercial, financial and residential development of central Brevard, he adds.

The Air Force has invested about 500 million dollars in missile testing facilities at Cape Canaveral and Patrick AFB and is paying a 15-million-dollar monthly payroll. The annual gross of Brevard's second industry — agriculture — must meet the monthly payroll figure.

No new industries have located in central Brevard for several years, chamber spokesmen point out, and one — the million-dollar Centronix Inc., an electronics firm — has left to relocate in Miami.

First important move of the new Chamber group will be a conference with D. P. Caldwell, director of industrial development for the Florida Power and Light Co., which does industrial promotions because industry is a good electrical customer.

No date for the meeting with Caldwell had been set Wednesday.

But four subcommittees of the industrial committee plan to start their work even before the conference with Caldwell, according to Mayo Hill, secretary-manager of the greater Cocoa Chamber of Commerce.

The committees were set up Tuesday night during a committee meeting.

They are a fact-finding committee headed by Walter Lasobeck, a state employment officer; a real estate committee headed by Arthur Lloyd, a common carrier; and a plant financing committee headed by Ernie Johnson, a banker.

Hill indicated the committee's biggest job may be finding property suitable for industry.

So far, central Brevard has only three industrial areas, the Port Canaveral industrial park, an 80-acre privately owned tract north of Cocoa and the Cocoa-Titusville Airport.

School Bus Accident Injures 2

VERO BEACH — A teacher and student were injured Wednesday on lateral A when the teacher's car collided with the side of a school bus making a left turn onto N. Gifford Dr.

State Trooper W. C. Frossard charged Selvin Cobb 28, of Gifford, Negro driver of the school bus, with violating the right-of-way.

About 40 Negro children from Rellsmere were on the bus. All were taken to Indian River Memorial Hospital for check-ups. Only one, Juanita Brown 15, was injured. She was treated for cuts on her head and released.

Mrs. Jane Bryant Yates of Vero Beach, Negro teacher at Douglas Elementary School, was admitted to the hospital with a broken rifht arm and bruised shoulders, chest and legs. Her sedan was a total loss, Trooper Frossard reported.

Navy Cadets Start Flying In New Jets

PENSACOLA — (AP) — The Navy may do away with propellor - driven airplanes in primary flight training if studies beginning with a new all-jet trainer prove satisfactory.

A special all jet class is ready to start its training with the PT-1 Pinto, a high performance two-place trainer.

The first of 15 Pensacola Naval Air Station cadets who will learn to fly in the Pinto, went aloft Wednesday.

K. A. MacDonald, 22, of Rockbury, Mass., rode as a passenger with Maj. William Lucas of Chicago as pilot.

Vice Adm. Robert Goldthwaite, Naval Air Training chief, said the performance of men trained in jets and those trained in prop airplanes will undergo a year's evaluation.

The Pinto is manufactured by Temco Aircraft Corp., of Dallas. It cruises at 270 m.p.h. and lands at 86 m.p.h. Nine have been delivered, and two more are expected.

Judge Faces Drink 'n Drive Charge

Harris R. Lowery Jr.
. . . judge faces trial

By ZOLA SWARTHOUT
Herald Correspondent

STUART — A Martin County judge, suspended by Gov. LeRoy Collins on charges of drunkenness and incompetence, now faces trial before the judge named to succeed him.

The charge? Driving while intoxicated.

He was held in jail until 10 a.m. when he posted $100 bond.

The case came to light Wednesday when County Prosecutor T. T. Oughterson filed an information outlining the formal charges.

Lowery faces trial during the February term before County Judge Evans Crary Jr., named to the bench by Collins after the governor suspended Lowery Nov. 19.

Collins charged that Lowery was "drunk on the bench" at West Palm Beach Nov. 7.

"I cannot tolerate or condone nor do I have any feeling of lenience for a judge who so degraded himself and his court as to appear in a drunken condition on the bench," Collins said.

Earlier last year, Lowery faced charges in Martin County Court of being in possession of a car while under the influence, drunken driving and reckless driving.

Okeechobee County Prosecutor D. C. Durrance replaced Oughterson as prosecutor, dropped the first two counts, and Lowery pleaded guilty to reckless driving. He was fined $100.

The Senate, meeting in April, will review Lowery's suspension. If the suspension is upheld, Crary will serve the remainder of Lowery's term — through January 1961. If not, Lowery could be returned to the bench and get back pay for the suspension period.

He was elected in November 1956.

Our Girls (It's the Makeup) Score With Mikoyan's Son

By Herald Wire Services

WHAT IMPRESSED Sergo Mikoyan most during his visit to the U.S. along with his father, Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan?

"The girls."

The 29-year-old Sergo gave that prompt answer to a Washington Star society reporter who chatted with him at a reception at the Soviet embassy.

"Ours (girls) are just as pretty as yours," he hastened to explain, "but you have the textiles and cosmetics."

The younger Mikoyan, a writer and editor for the Soviet magazine World Economics and International Relations, said:

But he added that he does not believe some news magazines reflect this—"especially U.S. News and World Report and Newsweek. Those are two I have noticed."

"I must say I like your newspapers," he went on. "They were all most friendly (in reporting on his father's visit) . . . They were fair."

"Well, this is Bournemouth West."

Ducktail Haircuts Really a Poor Risk

"I HAVE FOUND that defendants with ducktail haircuts make poor risks on probation," said General Sessions Court Judge Bruce Littlejohn in York, S. C., last December.

Nevertheless the judge imposed one-year suspended sentences on Bennie Kimbrell, 19, and Richard Broome, 18, of Rock Hill, who had pleaded guilty to housebreaking and grand larceny. But, as a term of their probation, Judge Littlejohn ordered haircuts for the pair.

Last week, York County police caught Kimbrell and Broome taking auto parts from a spare parts yard in Rock Hill. Wednesday, General Sessions Court Judge George T. Gregory Jr. revoked their probations and sent them to the State Penitentiary. Both were again sporting ducktail haircuts.

Teller Just Pressed Alarm

Leon Harent

. . . 83, still plugging

DETROIT —(AP)— Leon Harent, who says he has spent 69 years of his life in jails across the country, walked into the National Bank of Detroit's main branch.

He handed a teller a note written on a piece of paper bag. The note said: "This is a holdup. I want $1,000 in small bills."

The elderly man's possessions at the time of his arrest included a pair of broken eyeglasses, a pocket knife, a safety razor and three razor blades.

"Is this all you've got to show for 83 years?" police asked.

"I've made progress," Harent replied. "When I was young they didn't have safety razors."

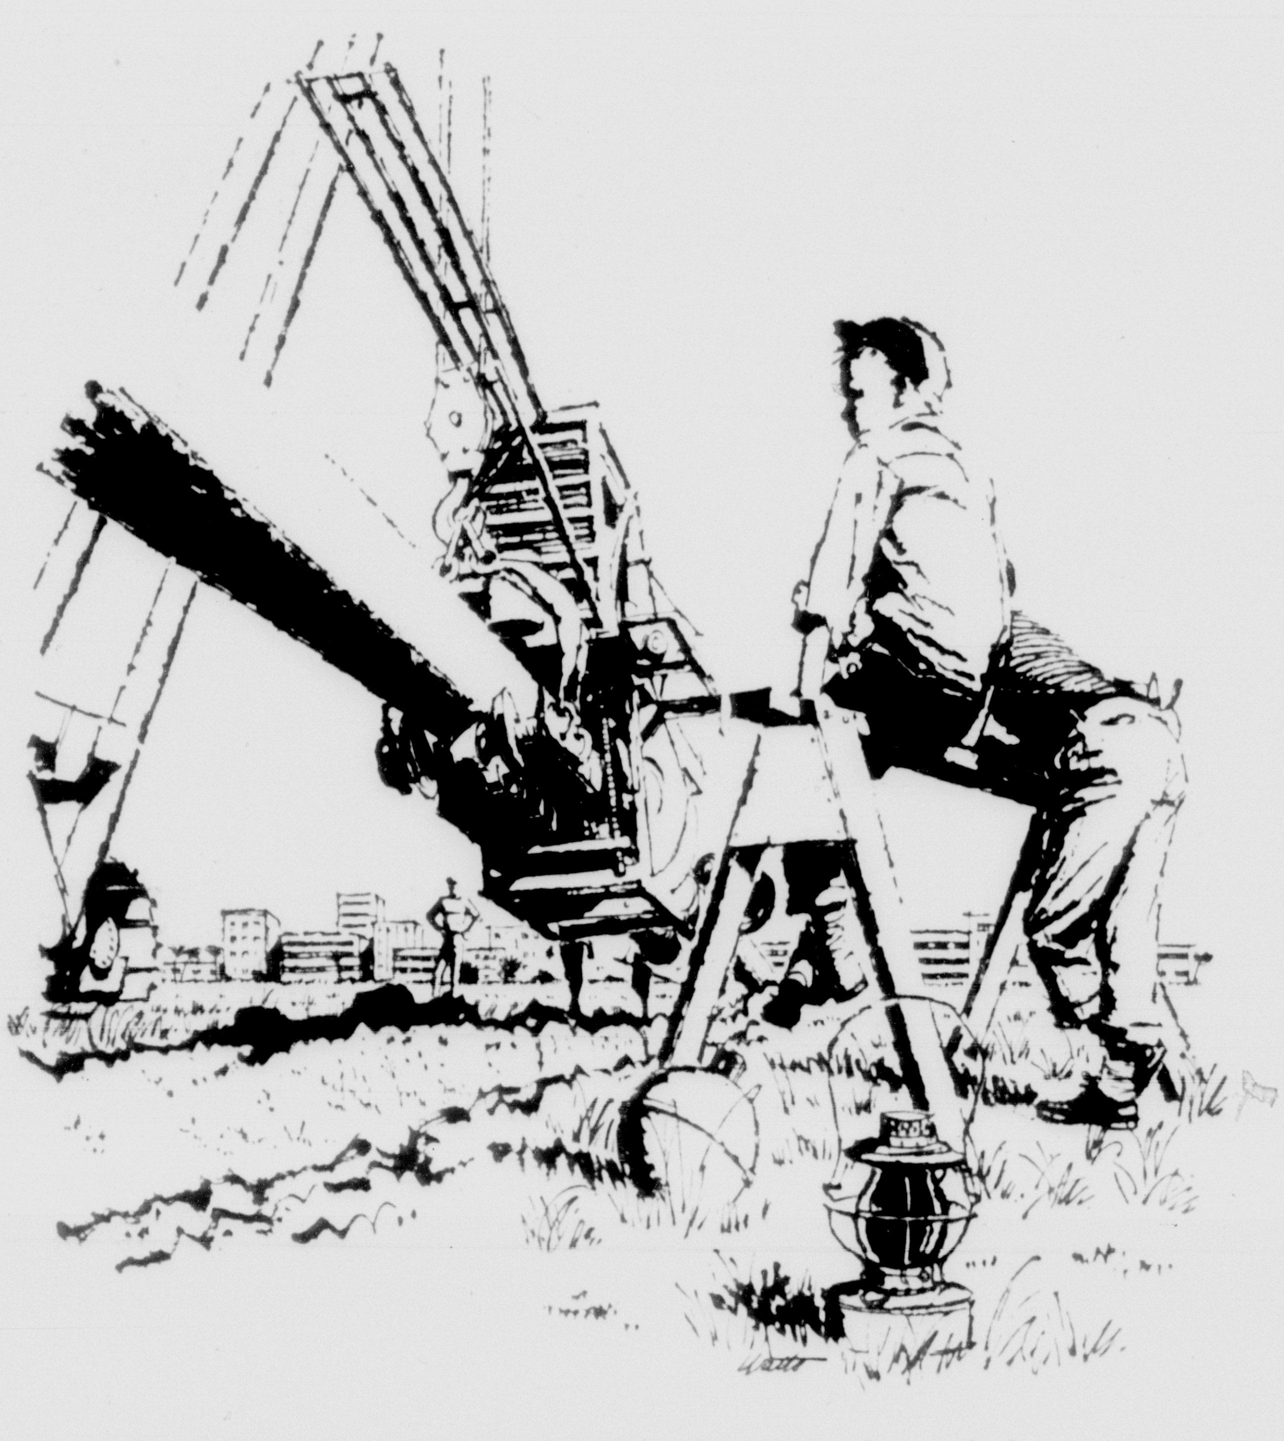
It's Mental And Dental

DALLAS, Tex. — (UPI) — D. E. Jones is returning to his $50-a-week job in a Corsicana, Tex., service station, ending a hoax that began when he claimed to have found about two million dollars worth of gold bars in a berry patch.

Jones, 38-year-old father of eight children, told Secret Service men that the story was untrue, as a lie detector test had indicated earlier.

"The only gold I have is what's in my teeth," he said. "That cost $450 when the dentist put it in, but I've been losing teeth lately."

Jones could be fined $10,000 and-or given a five-year prison sentence for making a false statement to the government.



Natural Gas... will bring new industrial and domestic economy to Florida

This scene is becoming familiar throughout Florida. Perhaps you have seen it alongside a busy highway, in the outskirts of the city or even in your own backyard.

What you are seeing is part of the Houston Corporation's 1517 mile pipeline which will bring an abundant supply of natural gas to all of Florida.

The next time you see this scene, stop and take a second look, for in a few short weeks the men and equipment will be gone and in their wake will come vast new developments in Florida's industry and economy.

Antiques Sing A Siren Song to Fanny Lu Fisher

By HELEN VAN HOY SMITH
Herald Staff Writer

THE PALM BEACHES—Why doesn't someone organize Antiquers Anonymous? Collectors of antiques swear off periodically, then go right out again on a buying spree.

Fanny Lu (Mrs. Clyde W.) Fisher, 130 Everglades Ave., Palm Beach, and Anita (Mrs. F. Earl) Wallace, 263 Valencia Rd., West Palm Beach, have long been avid "antiquers." They were vowing "never again" in one breath and in the other were making plans to attend antique fairs and shows.

MRS. SMITH

Her dining room chairs are Italian Provincial. She has lovely Spode, Wedgewood and some rare Sevres. Her Tiffany champagne glasses are the sort that are now displayed in museums.

A strong box has a secret lock — you'd never in the world find it. It's the same sort of a box that Benjamin Franklin used to carry his papers to Europe.

Other pieces of old glass include Venetian glass with fragile enamel work overlay, hobnail, button-and-daisy, and rare frosted Vara.

Mrs. Fisher has photographs of all her paintings, handsmoely mounted in an album. Her paintings include a Gainsboro, a small Reubens, a medieval tryptich, and many, many others of art gallery caliber.

A life sized head of a saint in silver, circa 1100-1200 is said to have contained a sacred relic. The hair is bound with a fillet of semi-precious stones.

Pastel Dinner Coats the Latest

DINNER COATS for men will be in pastel hues—beige, blue, green and yellow—says Meyer Lebow, prominent manufacturer of men's clothes now vacationing at Whitehall Hotel. Dress wear this spring will feature mohair and silk in brown and blue with semi-peak lapels and welt pockets.

The new "hinged sleeve" for leisure coats allows complete comfort in action as well as a smooth undistorted fit when the arm is raised.

Sounds as though it might be fine for traffic cops, too, Mr. L., or even for the Statue of Liberty, whose arm has been upraised all these years.

It's rumored that Lang, vice president and general manager of the Roosevelt hotel in New York, will be going into the Plaza before long in the same capacity.

His interest just now is integrating into industry the Spanish speaking people of New York City. This spring he will have an article in Coronet telling of the life of his son, seven year old Neal Lang, who is the only child in one long city block, and of the youngster's efforts to keep amused.

Sandra's on the Party-Go-Round

WONDERFUL TIME in a wonderful town is the way Sandra Clarke might describe the last few weeks. Her wedding to the Rev. Richard Franklin Tombaugh will take place Jan. 31 at Holy Trinity Episcopal Church. Parties given for her have been numerous and all have been beautifully appointed.

Mrs. Raymond Richardson and Mrs. William Charles Williams gave one of the earliest parties at the Williams home in Delray Beach.

Then a mother-daughter luncheon was that hosted by Mrs. Edward T. Alford and Mrs. Henry Lilienthal at their home on S. Olive Ave.

Mrs. Orrin Randolph, Mrs. George W. Coleman and Mrs. Claude D. Reese entertained at the Sailfish Club.

Mrs. Paschal C. Reese gave a luncheon at the Howard Hamilton restaurant for Sandra, giving a garden shower in connection with it. A gold wheelbarrow filled with flowers decorated the center of the table, while place cards were miniature gold flower pots in which grew sweetheart roses.

Mrs. E. W. Jackson and her daughter, Mrs. Malcolm Lewis, gave a luncheon at the Sailfish Club, and last Saturday Mrs. Charles Trevail and Miss Bess Fenn gave a linen shower for the bride-elect at the Trevail home on Dyer Ave.

Grace and fragrance of spring flowers enhanced the home of Mrs. Joe Blank Monday night when she and her daughter, Jo Beverly, together with Mrs. Sam O. Smith and Susan, gave a miscellaneous shower for Sandra. Some 25 friends attended.

Sandra's honor attendants at the wedding will be her two sisters, Mrs. James Bradt and Mrs. John Foskett.

Miss Ginger Floyd, her sorority sister and roommate at the University of North Carolina, will be bridesmaid.

She's Loyal to Anchorage High

THAT ATTRACTIVE YOUNG GIRL with the fair, fair complexion going coatless on the coldest days is Peggy Sanford, the former Peggy Patrick. She and Airman Ronald L. Sanford were married Dec. 6 in Anchorage, Alaska, where Peggy and her parents have been living for the last two years. Peggy's father is also in the Air Force.

Graduating from Anchorage High School in 1957, the former local girl says the school is really deluxe — wall-to-wall velvet carpeting in the auditorium, handsome draperies at the windows, and every possible improvement.

The young Sanfords will be living in Pensacola. Meantime they are guests of Peggy's grandfather, R. A. Whittaker, and trying desperately to get a tan.

She says that in Anchorage the school girls all wear stockings and usually are dressed in slacks on account of the cold.

School dances, she says, are well attended, but foot ball games aren't so interesting as two teams in the school play against each other. Nearest high school for competition is in Fairbanks, 400 miles away, and that makes the cost prohibitive.

3 Vignettes Applauded

'Tonight at 8:30' Bows at Delray

Herald Service

DELRAY BEACH — Delray Beach theatergoers were treated to an evening of light comedy well performed Tuesday night at the Delray Beach Playhouse.

Noel Coward's "Tonight at 8:30" proved entertaining fare for a near-capacity opening-night audience. The three Coward vignettes of British mores also provided some meaty roles for Elvira Raymond and Robert Blake as well as for supporting members of the cast.

Coward's fine hand with sophisticated comedy broadened a little with the portrayal of Mary Farris in each of the three skits. But the audience thoroughly approved of her as a pungent-mouthed society matron in "Hands Across the Sea" and "Ways and Means" as well as of her cockney accent and lively antics as the barkeep in "Still Life."

Two newcomers to Playhouse careers gave fine performances in major supporting roles in each of the three Coward pieces. Jeannette Thomas and William R. Lupton showed versatility and presence.

Versatility was also the strong point of three performances by Martha Carroll, another Playhouse newcomer. She was a real scene-stealer as the Cockney barmaid in "Still Life" after a rather weak start as a French maid in "Hands Across the Sea."

Probably the male portion of the audience, entranced with the short-skirted, black-stockinged picture of the pert French maid, hardly noticed what accent the pretty Miss Carroll had failed to master.

The burden of the evening's lengthy and sometimes complicated though witty dialogue fell on the more than capable shoulders of Miss Raymond and Blake, both veteran Playhouse performers.

Blake had some really superb bits and carried them off beautifully in "Ways and Means," the sketch about two stranded, flat-broke, social parasites bent on begging, borrowing or stealing their way out of an embarrassing situation.

A somewhat similar role in "Hands Across the Sea," as Commander Peter Gilpin, who "goes to sea" for two or three days every now and then also suited Blakes talents better than the more serious part of the lover doctor in "Still Life."

Miss Raymond seemed to handle both types with equal grace, giving a properly restrained and credible performance as the doctor's guilty mistress in "Still Life," then jumping to the "dahling-ed" realm of "Ways and Means" with no lack of effectiveness.

A generally high level of performance was also sustained by Howard Crouch, Vince Canning Jr. and Anthony Allerton in smaller roles.

The real ingenuity of the man behind the scenes responsible for the Playhouse's success for many years was nowhere more evident than in the clever set designed for "Tonight" by director J. Stuart Warrington, assisted by Bob Overdorf.

The basic set allowed quick changes from elegant society drawing room to railroad restaurant to elegant society bedroom, each completely different, colorful and attractive. Far from the more makeshift or less attractive stage design one might expect at the hands of a non-professional theater group, the sets themselves drew spontaneous applause at the rise of each curtain.

To look for things to carp about in this production, one would have to resort to complaints about the recording of trains approaching and leaving the station in "Still Life."

By all standards, "Tonight at 8:30" will provide good entertainment for Delray Beach audiences every night this week through Saturday at the Playhouse on Lake Ida.

Bethesda Dedication Saturday

By BILL BECK
Delray Bureau Chief

The dedication has been set for 2 p.m. Jan. 24.

An even bigger day — the day the doors swing open to admit the first patient — is not far off. The opening date hasn't been set, but the best guess of hospital commissioners and officials is that it will be "early in February."

The dedication ceremony is expected to be a real corker, with some 2,000 persons in attendance. There'll be speeches, ribbon cutting and the unveiling of plaques—all befitting the completion of a project in which so many people gave so generously of their time and money.

William F. Koch, president of the Bethesda Hospital Association, will serve as master of ceremonies, and Emory J. Barrow, chairman of the Hospital Commission, will give the dedicatory address.

Following the ceremonies, the public will have until 8 p.m. to inspect the 80-bed hospital and see how the commission spent over a million dollars in public and private funds. The following day, Jan. 25, the hospital will again be open for public inspection between 2 p.m. and 8 p.m.

On Jan. 22, the 32-member medical staff will play host for a reception and guided tour to which all of Palm Beach County's doctors, nurses aides and their families are invited.

Dr. Merrill F. Steele, the hospital administrator, said the delay between the dedication and the actual opening was absolutely necessary to allow for some last minute details, including disinfecting everything following the public inspections.

"Nobody wants it open more than I do and you can bet that it will be open as soon as possible," Steele said.

Pahokee Man Dies In Canal

Herald Service

PAHOKEE—A Pahokee man died Wednesday when the car he was driving plunged into West Palm Beach Canal.

Police said Donald Kenneth Tarr, 28, was traveling east on State Rd. 700 when his car ran off the left side of the road and came to rest in 30-feet of water.

The accident happened about a half mile west of 20-mile bend. Trooper Harold S. Peterson of the State Highway Patrol said there was no apparent reason for Tarr's going off the road.

Tarr was bookkeeper for Stanley Chevrolet of Pahokee. He was a member of Jr. Chamber of Commerce, Elks Club and the Episcopal Church.

Survivors include his wife, Veronica; two sons, Jeffrey and Allen; one daughter, Laural, all of Pahokee; and his parents Mr. and Mrs. Joseph K. Tarr of Miami.

Funeral services will be Friday at 11 a.m. at the Episcopal Church of the Holy Nativity in Pahokee.

Rev. Robert M. Huffman, vicar of the church, will officiate.

Burial will be at Port Mayaca. Williams Wetherington Funeral Home is in charge.

He was a member of the Moose. Survivors include his wife, Ellen; a daughter, Mrs. John C. Rockwell of Gloversville and a sister, Mrs. Henry Maxson, of Miami. E. Earl Smith and Son is in charge.

Elizabeth A. Thornton

LAKE WORTH — Services for Elizabeth Adam Thornton, 69, of 306 Elizabeth Rd., who died Tuesday, will be at 2 p.m. Saturday at the E. Earl Smith and Son Chapel. Burial will be in Hillcrest Cemetery. She came here in 1955 from North Arlington, N.J., and was a retired supervisor with a thread company. She was a member of Eastern Star. Survivors include a sister, Agnes Thornton of Lake Worth; and two brothers, Robert of Lake Worth, and Thomas of Lake Park.

Mrs. Laura Mason

FORT PIERCE—Mrs. Laura (Granny) Mason, 86, of So. 36th St., died Wednesday. She had lived here since 1922, coming from West Plains, Mo. Survivors include four grandchildren all of New York. The Yates Funeral Home is in charge.

Gerald H. Finney

ROCKLEDGE — Funeral services will be held at the Rockledge Presbyterian Church at 11 a.m. Friday for Gerald H. Finney, 45, who died Tuesday. Burial will be in Woodlawn Cemetery. Mr. Finney of 24 Bartan Ave., was the owner and operator of the Rockledge Grocery. A native of Mansfield, Ohio, he moved here 13 years ago. Survivors include his wife, two sons, Donald and Wilbur, four brothers and two sisters.

Mrs. Hazel Grace Jones

STUART — Mrs. Hazel Grace Jones, 66, a resident of Rio for three months, died Sunday in Rio. Her only survivor, her husband has lived in Salerno for many years. Johns Funeral Home is in charge. Services and burial will be in Akron, Ohio.

Rapid Expansion

Coral Shores School Addition is Fourth

By CAROLYN V. COHEN
Herald Correspondent

UPPER KEYS — The Coral Shores School addition, just completed, is the fourth major expansion of the school plant since it was dedicated in November, 1951.

School officials then believed the school, staffed by a principal and five teachers, would be adequate for at least 10 years. But, in a short time, Upper Keys growth resulted in use of all available space.

There were no high school classes then, and students went to either Key West or Homestead. But high school has been added and last year a class of 27 graduated.

The Coral Shores enrollment now averages 500, Charles C. Albury, principal, said. Albury has 24 teachers on the faculty and a full-time office secretary.

The original buildings were remodeled and renovated during construction of the addition. For the first time the principal has an office suite that is ample for administrative needs.

A first-aid room, to care for emergencies, and provide facilities for the preventative medicine program, sponsored by the Monroe County Health Department, is included.

The new wing includes a teachers' lounge and a conference room for student clubs and organizations. A study hall is also provided. In the past the study hall has been crowded into the library.

In addition to four classrooms, the wing also provides instruction space for business and home economics courses. The home economics department includes sewing machines, appliances, kitchen, dining room, fitting rooms, and laundry.

The business suite is well equipped with typewriters and provisions were made for other office machines, which will be added soon.

Innovations include accoustical treatment of walls and ceilings, new types of skylights, special windows, comfortable desks and seats, modern wall and floor treatment, and green "blackboards."

The buildings are arranged to provide maximum lighting and ventilation, and in back of the school are two basketball courts and a football field. A field house, built by public contributions, contains dressing rooms and athletic offices.

A large "cafetorium," a combination cafeteria and auditorium, was built two years ago and includes large, well equipped kitchens and stage. It is used frequently for community affairs.

The Coral Shores school serves the area extending from the southern end of Lower Matecumbe Key to the Monroe-Dade County line.

Civil Defense Said Lagging

LAKE WORTH — City Commissioner Zell Altman is urging "affirmative steps" to increase the efficiency of Lake Worth's civil defense program.

Altman this week blasted the city's attitude toward civil defense.

"The subject has been sadly neglected," he charged.

"It has been overlooked to the extent that if anything happened this town would be in sad shape."

Altman declared that civil defense was not a matter to be taken lightly and urged city action aimed at an efficient program.

Fabulous DeMille Dies at 77

Highlights, Career, 2C

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. —(AP)— Cecil Blount DeMille, a founder of the Hollywood film industry and the most successful of all movie makers, died of a heart attack Wednesday at 77.

It was the third serious heart attack for the producer-director, whose name became a symbol of flamboyant films. He suffered the first in Egypt in November 1954, during location scenes for his last great Biblical epic, "The Ten Commandments." He refused doctors' advice to stop the film, saying, "I'll continue working until God wants me to quit."

Last June he suffered another attack. But in December he undertook a strenuous tour to exploit the last film he supervised, "The Buccaneer." The end came at 5:30 a.m. at his Hollywood home with his daughter Cecilia and her husband, Joseph Harper, at his bedside.

DeMille's wife for 57 years, also in ill health, was not immediately told of his death. But friends said she had sensed something was wrong.

The filmland titan died at the peak of a 45-year history in films. His second making of "The Ten Commandments" was just overtaking "Gone With the Wind" as the biggest money-maker of all time.

His other movies—"Greatest Show on Earth," "Samson and Delilah," "The Unconquered," etc.—were huge successes.

He was proud that his version of the Christ story, "The King of Kings," has been showing somewhere in the world every day since it was released in 1927.

He never won an Oscar for direction. The academy, perhaps in recognition of his great record, finally named "The Greatest Show on Earth" the best picture of 1952.

DeMille's death leaves Samuel Goldwyn the sole survivor of the famous triumvirate who started Hollywood in the big-time back in 1912.

DeMille was born Aug. 12, 1881, at Ashfield, Mass., of a Dutch family that came to America in 1658. His father was a schoolteacher turned playwright who introduced his sons to the theater world.

Cecil started as an actor and in 1902 married a fellow member of the E. H. Sothern troupe, Constance Adams. They had four children: Mrs. Harper, Mrs. Anthony Quinn, John and Richard DeMille. There are 13 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

The family announced that the funeral will be held Friday at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church in Hollywood. Private interment will follow in a $250,000 mausoleum DeMille built in Hollywood cemetery in 1953.

Ike Gets Housing 'Dare'

Veto Will Fail, Lawmaker Says

By FREDERIC SHERMAN
Herald Real Estate Editor

CHICAGO—President Eisenhower is going to get the chance to veto the biggest housing bill in the history of this country.

That was the challenge thrown at the White House Wednesday by Rep. Albert Rains of Alabama in a fiery speech to the National Association of Home Builders. He predicted Congress will override Ike's expected veto of a bill providing almost two billion dollars in special aid for housing and urban renewal.

Rains had been scheduled to talk about the problems of financing community facilities in mushrooming suburban areas. But he whipped the builders into rounds of applause with an attack on Republican Party leaders who are pushing for Ike's balanced budget.

"I read in the papers that I'm one of the big Democratic spenders in Washington because I want a decent house for every American family under the private enterprise system," Rains said.

Rains accused the White House of trying to balance the budget at the expense of programs that have become a part of the nation's growth.

Mr. Eisenhower wants to hand back to the cities the responsibility for urban renewal, flood control and a dozen other important programs. But you don't hear the White House talking about turning back some of the federal tax sources to the cities," Rains said.

Rains told the builders he doesn't believe in government housing and this was worth loud applause. But the Alabama congressman followed with the gambit of his old log cabin school that didn't have electricity. You guessed it. It had a pine knot fire just like the one Abraham Lincoln studied by.

"It took TVA and REA to bring in electricity under the same kind of government help that I am asking for housing," he said. "The White House keeps saying we can't afford it. But those people in high places don't seem to understand the difference between spending and housing programs that don't cost the government a cent."

A bill Rains introduced last week provides 500 million dollars in special assistance to support mortgage prices. It includes the same amount for college housing loans, 1½ billion over three years for outright grants to the cities for slum clearance and urban renewal and 200 million in direct loans for housing for the elderly.

"I have great personal admiration for the President, but it is obvious he is beginning to believe his campaign speeches. If he stops the housing industry this year he will bring a terrible depression down on this country," Rains concluded in a storm of applause.

Forecast: Rain, Sleet And Snow

Ice Knocks Out Power Lines

CHICAGO — (UPI) — Winter's worst storm chased thousands of persons from flood-threatened homes and buried the mid-continent under blizzard snows Wednesday.

The vast storm, ranging from the Rockies to the Appalachians, also sent tornadoes racing through the Southland. A sub-zero cold wave moved into the Plains as the snows dwindled.

The U.S. Weather Bureau predicted more severe winter weather from the Great Lakes to the Middle Gulf States. In the North, the forecast was for more snow, sleet and freezing rains.

In the South, warnings of thunderstorms and possible tornadoes hung over parts of Tennessee, Georgia, the western Carolinas, southeast Kentucky and southern Virginia.

High waters forced 2,500 of the 16,000 residents of Mount Vernon, Ohio, from their homes, flooded the state Capitol of Columbus, created a state of emergency at Sharon, Pa., and closed highways in southern Indiana. Buffalo, N.Y., motorists abandoned their cars in the flooded streets.

From New Mexico to Indiana, Westerners and Midwesterners struggled to dig out of foot-deep snows. Schools, factories and roads were closed through nine states and traffic in the big cities of Kansas City, St. Louis, Dallas and Chicago became paralyzed.

Ice knocked out the power in scores of Midwest towns. At Decatur, Ill., the Red Cross set up shelter for an expected 2,500 persons driven from their homes because of power and water failures.

The Southland took its storm in the form of tornadoes which powered their way through Kentucky, Mississippi, Alabama and Tennessee.

A fast-moving twister smashed Caneyville, Ky., and Kentucky State Police said they had reports of at least one person killed or seriously injured, plus heavy damage. Two more persons were reported injured by high winds which hit the Fort Knox area. The highway between Elizabethtown, Ky., and Caneyville was blocked.

A church and several barns went down before a twister

Atlas Death Witnessed In Pacific

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. —(AP)— The flaming death-plunge of America's biggest satellite apparently was witnessed from two places in the Pacific, the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory said Wednesday.

The observatory said it had received what appeared to be "very reliable" reports from the naval station on Guam and from the Navy cruiser Rochester which was in the Guam area.

Smithsonian officials said they received a radio message from Guam that a "fiery red comet" had been observed streaking through the sky at 9:10 a.m.

The skipper of the USS Rochester radioed that a "possible Atlas sighting" had been made at about 9:08 a.m.

Both these times would be near midnight Wednesday night, Guam time.

Tito Arrives In Ceylon

COLOMBO —(AP)— President Tito of Yugoslavia arrived in Ceylon Wednesday on the last stop of his tour of so-called neutral Asian countries.

Tito was to meet Premier Solomon Bandaranaike later for talks on the international situation. They are expected to reaffirm their abstention from alignment with both the Communist and Western power blocs.

Million Cheer Castro Pledge That Executions Won't Stop

By Herald Wire Services

HAVANA, Cuba — Fidel Castro told a wildly-cheering crowd of Cubans Wednesday that the new regime will revise or wipe out burdensome foreign concessions granted by the fallen Batista dictatorship.

In a fiery speech, the rebel chief made it clear he will continue with the execution of Batista "assassins and torturers."

Estimates of the crowd ranged from 500,000 to one million. The massive turnout was all the more impressive in view of the fact that the total population of all of Cuba is just under six million.

As Castro spoke to the record crowd gathered before Havana's Presidential Palace, reports from interior cities said at least 22 more Batista followers had been cut down by military firing squads, bringing to an estimated 250 the total of those reported executed since the overthrow of Fulgencio Batista on New Year's Day.

The bearded rebel leader said his victorious revolutionary movement had been made the target of the "most infamous, the most criminal campaign ever launched against a people."

He blamed the campaign on foreign business interests because "they know that we are going to ask for the cancellation of all the onerous concessions made to foreign interests" by the Batista government.

Castro's first appearance on the scene was from a helicopter which flew over the crowd and the palace to land on Zayas Park, on the other side of the palace from the crowd. Those who recognized him from the ground broke into wild cheering.

Cubans of all ranks and ages had poured through downtown Havana streets and into the "People's Square" facing the palace to acclaim Castro and endorse his wholesale execution of "war criminals" of the toppled Batista dictatorship.

Among those who heard Castro were two U.S. congressmen and 46 American newsmen, as well as journalists from other countries who were invited here to witness Wednesday's demonstration and the next series of "war crimes" trials. The two congressmen were Rep. Charles O. Porter (D., Ore.) and Rep. Adam Clayton Powell (D., N.Y.).

The invitations were extended after snowballing criticism, particularly in the U.S., that the swift rebel trials and executions were a "bloodbath" with no legal basis.

Castro was greeted by a deafening ovation when he appeared on the speakers rostrum at 5 p.m. The start of his address was delayed several minutes by the thunderous acclaim.

Describing the Cuban crowd as a "jury of one million men and women, of all social classes, of all religions, of all political creeds," Castro asked that "those who are in accord with our justice raise their hands."

The huge crowd raised hands as one man and another tremendous cheer rang out.

Castro then said, "Gentlemen, representatives of the diplomatic corps, newspapermen from all over the continent: a jury of one million Cubans of all ideas and social classes has voted. Let those democrats, or those who call themselves democrats, say if this is not indeed democracy,

Long Wait in Hot Sun

He Packed 'em In-- And Scores Fainted

By JAMES BUCHANAN
Herald Staff Writer

HAVANA, Cuba — Fidel Castro played to a packed plaza Wednesday.

And he wasn't giving away a thing.

In fact, he kept half a million people waiting in the hot sun for three hours just to tell him he'd been right all along.

They told him, too, in no uncertain terms that they wanted the new Cuban government to go on trying and killing war criminals.

They came from the length and breadth of the island to fill the four-block-long plaza in front of the Presidential Palace.

And they overflowed into every side street and the park behind the palace, and filled every rooftop and balcony within a two-block area of the speaker's platform.

I believe there were 500,000 people answering Castro's call for a show of faith in the new regime.

They arrived loaded with banners and placards saying "Death to the Traitors," and "Kill Now — Not Later."

There were many in English, some proclaiming "Cuban

Mikoyan Gets Back In the Air

Flight plans called for a nonstop trip to Copenhagen where it was understood he would catch a Soviet jetliner for Moscow.

Mikoyan and his party of five, including his son Sergo, spent an unscheduled night at this U. S. Naval Air Base. The SAS pilot was forced to land because of mechanical trouble in one engine and fire in another.

Mikoyan said he was unshaken by the trouble on the four-engine plane — though it caused nervous chills in world capitals. The DC7 was carrying 35 passengers and a crew of 14 when it first encountered trouble high over the Atlantic.

"I've had a full life and would have accepted whatever consequences might have befallen me," the 63-year-old Mikoyan told a reporter.

SAS spokesmen in New York expressed doubt any sabotage was involved.

Rumors Flying Around Malik

LONDON —(AP)— Soviet Ambassador Jacob A. Malik was back at his London desk Wednesday amid mounting speculation he may soon be moved to a new post in Moscow.

The handsome 52-year-old envoy has just returned from a nine-week visit to the Soviet capital. Diplomatic circles here believe he may already have word of a new assignment — possibly as a deputy to Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko. He held that rank before he came here.

New Chill On the Way

A cold weather system moving in from the Gulf of Mexico promised to end Florida's warm weather respite today with a resurgence of temperatures ranging below the freezing point.

The weather bureau Wednesday night predicted a mercury drop of 25 to 35 degrees by midday today in extreme northwest Florida.

Forecasters said that by tonight all Florida would feel the chilly brunt of the new cold snap to some extent.

They said temperatures would be below freezing in North Florida and near freezing in the state's citrus-growing central portion by Friday morning, with sub-freezing temperatures in most of the state Saturday morning.

Shallow, But Too Deep for Them

Gusher Was a Real Gasser!

TULSA, Okla. — (UPI) — The Sooner State Drilling and Producing Co. of Coleman, Tex., recently brought in the world's shallowest oil well, a healthy 4,000-barrel-an-hour gusher in southern Oklahoma—at a depth of 2½ feet.

Unfortunately, the well nine miles east of Bretch, Okla., had to be abandoned soon after it came in.

The well sprayed over the top of the rig and continued to flow at the rate of more than 4,000 barrels an hour, until it was choked off 40 minutes later.

There was no fire, no damage to drilling rig and no crew injuries. About 2,700 barrels of oil were recovered, most of which flowed into an adjacent slush pit.

All was going like clockwork when suddenly the happy smiles on the faces of the drillers turned to frowns, then astonishment, and finally horror.

What caused the consternation was the unhappy discovery that the oil was coming from a 16-inch pipeline, owned by the Service Pipe Line Co., of Tulsa.

The line was repaired and the rig moved for another try.

'Recalled for Consultations'

Didn't 'Flee' Cuba, Says Envoy Rubirosa

Special To The Herald

CIUDAD TRUJILLO — Porfirio Rubirosa, the Dominican Don Juan, diplomat and sometime sports car racer, arrived here Wednesday afternoon from Cuba via Miami for diplomatic consultations.

He spoke of politics, Havana, and racing — but of women — no.

Accompanying Rubirosa was his beauteous young, French actress wife. And the suave diplomat, whose amours brought him more of an international reputation than his diplomatic skill, deftly spoke of politics, yet managed to court his lovely wife.

The great Latin lover, who has been representing his country in Cuba, denied that he was on thin standing with the Castro government and fled Cuba because Batista fell.

"I have no trouble with the new government in Havana.

"I enjoy my assignment there and see no reason why I would not return to Havana."

Mrs. Rubirosa, his fifth wife, kept holding hands with her husband and exchanging romantic glances with him while he discussed politics.

She also had with her a woven basket which contained a trio of Chihuahuas which she petted occasionally. And when she wasn't holding onto Porfirio, she was clinging to a nine-inch Raggedy Ann cloth doll.

Asked if he planned to do any more sports car racing, Rubirosa looked at his wife and said:

"No. I will do no more. I am too busy, and besides . . ." The words trailed off but he glanced at his wife.

An excellent reason to surrender racing.

PAA Talks Recess: No Strike Set

Contract negotiations between Pan American World Airways and the Transport Workers Union were recessed in New York Wednesday, but a union official said no date has been set for a strike of some 8,000 PAA employes.

"We will resume the negotiations on Friday," William Grogan, international vice president of the TWU, told The Herald by telephone.

He said the contract talks have not been terminated and that "there is no real significance" to postponement of negotiations over a new contract.

"We're just coasting for a day or so," Grogan said. "There are a number of issues on which we have not reached agreement."

Some 3,000 of the PAA workers involved are in Miami and 1,500 are at the missile base at Cape Canaveral.

Eastern Air Lines, meanwhile, announced formal signing of a contract with the Air Lines Stewards and Stewardesses Association. An Eastern spokesman said the new contract, effective through Jan. 31, 1960, provides more pay and improved working conditions for Eastern's 1,400 flight attendants.

◆ Biggest issue in the talks between Pan American, the TWU and a federal negotiator is the union demand for a cut in weekly working hours from 40 to 37½.

"Strike standby" telegrams already have been sent to union members at all PAA installations, but Grogan refused to speculate on whether or when a strike will be called.

He said that if the present talks break off altogether, the government will offer arbitration to each side before a strike is called.

TV Tower Falls, Kills 1, Hurts 2

LEXINGTON, Ky. — (AP) — A 600-foot television tower toppled onto WLEX-TV station Wednesday killing a receptionist and injuring two other persons.

Fred Gregg, owner of Radio Station WLAP in Lexington, said the huge steel tower almost cut the building in half.

The tower collapsed when an old 300-foot tower fell cutting the guide lines to the 600-foot structure.

"The big tower whipped around in the wind and then fell directly across the center of the station," Gregg said.

The dead woman was identified as Mrs. Susan Grazley, who had been working at WLEX-TV for about three or four months.

Mrs. Nita Wash, bookkeeper at the station, and an unidentified man who was standing in front of the building were injured and taken to the hospital.

which hit Yokena, Miss., near Vicksburg. Wind damage was estimated at $100,000 at Adamsville, Tenn.; a twister swept away a 300-foot highway patrol tower at Lawrenceburg, Tenn., and more tornadoes wrecked buildings near Eva and Cullman, Ala.

Cold-wave fires killed at least 18 persons, 15 of them children.

National Guard troops moved into Mount Vernon to aid in this mass evacuation caused by a 3.69-inch downpour. The flood's first victim was a 17-year old boy who drowned trying to leap from the front porch of his flooded home to a truck pulling away.

Boats and ambulances were used to remove the sick from a 10-block area at Lima, Ohio, which was under water.

The Coast Guard, meanwhile, evacuated 25 persons stranded on the west channel of Rocky River near Cleveland, and authorities sent a distress call to a National Guard armory for amphibious tanks to rescue families in the Cleveland suburb of Eastlake. Ice chunks on the flooding Rocky River were two feet thick and as big as a room.

At Columbus, the worst flood in 23 years on the Scioto and Olentangy Rivers drove hundreds from their homes. Gov. Michael V. DiSalle alerted the National Guard and Highway Department to be ready for new emergencies.

In northwest Pennsylvania, Sharon Mayor Michael J. Dunn declared a state of emergency after the Shenango River poured into downtown stores. The Civil Defense and extra police were called out.

In southern Indiana, rains measuring up to 5.13 inches deep sent flood waters swirling over highways. School buses couldn't get through the floods in Jackson, Washington, Scott and Wayne counties, and a Decatur county teacher, Mrs. Anna Walke, 43, was rescued by boat after spending more than two hours in a car which had been swept into Salt Creek flood waters.

Chicago endured freezing rain and more snow in the wake of an overnight storm which dumped almost a foot of snow. More than 200 schools closed down in the Chicago area.

In Missouri, drifts were seven feet deep at Chillicothe, all public and parochial schools closed in storm-swept Kansas City along with some factories, and power went out for 40,000 persons in a St. Louis suburb.

Hundreds of snowbound schools were closed across Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Iowa, Michigan, Kansas, Colorado and Oklahoma.

Sun Fells Scores at Rally

Mothers Demand Death to Avenge Their Sons."

Those who held their signs in the air at 2 p.m. when Castro was scheduled to appear, couldn't put them down until 6:45 p.m. when the rally finally broke up.

They couldn't because they were packed in shoulder-to-shoulder and hip-to-hip.

Castro, who may be the most public relations-conscious national leader today, goofed on this rally.

He told his people to be on hand at 2 p.m., but didn't show up until 3:30 p.m. and didn't begin speaking until after 4:30 p.m.

In the meantime, he gave them no music or other entertainment. Just a hot sun that boiled tempers which grew hotter as the wait grew longer.

Women fainted by the score and were fanned back into consciousness standing up — unable to fall.

Women who fainted were passed overhead to the edge of the crowd, then taken by stretcher to first aid tents.

At one point, a big pushing movement began a block away from the speaker's stand. It was like watching a good breeze blow waves through a field of wheat.

When the surge hit the edge of the crowd, people went down like ten-pins.

Castro made what was for him a short appearance. He spoke for only an hour and a half.

At one point in his speech, a shapely young Cuban girl in the revolutionary attire of a tight red sweater and black skirt was passed over the heads of the crowd, apparently in a dead faint. Her body moved from hand to hand and went directly beneath and in front of Castro as if she were some living offering to a pagan god.

Once past the rebel leader, however, she quickly came to life and began slapping at a rescuer, who was too free with his hands.

The rebel troops which handled Batista's army had more trouble with the Cubanos of Havana. The army buttressed its blockade around the speaker's platform with tanks and trucks, but when Castro appeared the people crawled over them and ended up directly under his nose.

Castro wasn't the only one who learned the Cubans were satisfied with the way the executions are going. Every U.S. and Latin American newsman was button-holed on the street and told why it was necessary to kill the men who themselves had killed and tortured.

The people's stories are too simple to have been made up for propaganda, and the pictures mothers show you of what happened to their sons couldn't have been faked.

There is no doubt in the mind of anyone who saw the demonstration Wednesday that the Cubans believe the quick execution of their war criminals is necessary and just.

Perhaps by U.S. standards, the justice comes too quickly.

The Cubans themselves believe a firing squad is too quick. But they believe they are more humane in killing quickly than in torturing their prisoners for hours and days as they and their families were tortured by Batista.

Wife of Herald Executive

Mrs. A. J. Gucker, Civic Worker, Dies

Mrs. Virginia Gucker, 47, wife of Arthur J. Gucker, business manager of The Miami Herald, died Tuesday. She had been in ill health for about two years.

A resident of Miami 17 years, she had been active in social and civic affairs. She was a member of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, Miami Woman's Club, the Bath Club and the Miami Shores Country Club.

She was a leader in the annual Easter Lily Balls, sponsored to aid the Crippled Children's Society.

Graduated from Southern Junior College, Chattanooga, Tenn., she was the widow of Kingsley A. Shaw when she moved to Miami from Gainesville.

She and Mr. Gucker were married in February, 1947.

After living in Miami Shores throughout their married life, they moved recently to a new home at 550 Melaleuca Ave., Bay Point.

Mrs. Gucker continued to be as active as possible until her death.

On Dec. 20, she insisted that the annual Christmas party for her young daughter, Mary Anne, must be held as usual. Friends did much of the work in arranging it, but she watched the festivities from a chair as 10-year-old Mary and 20 friends made the house bright with holiday gaiety.

And then she was able to observe Christmas at home with her family — an important thing to her.

Survivors include two daughters, Mary Anne, at home, and Mrs. E. Bruce Capper, III, Dallas; one brother, Jesse Burts, Jr., Miami; her mother, Mrs. T. Finley Cato, Miami, and one grandson.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Friday in Van Orsdel Northside Mortuary, 3333 NE Second Ave., with private interment in Southern Memorial Park.

U.S. Envoy Switched to Cuban Post

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Philip W. Bonsal, a career diplomat, was nominated by President Eisenhower Wednesday to be the new ambassador to Cuba.

BONSAL

Bonsal, now ambassador to Bolivia, succeeds Earl E. T. Smith, who resigned Jan. 10—a few days after the forces of Fidel Castro overthrew the government of Fulgencio Batista.

Smith had been criticized by the Castro forces as having been favorable to the Batista government.

Bonsal became ambassador to Bolivia in 1957. He served previously as ambassador to Colombia. Bonsal, 55, has been in the State Department since 1938.

Gov. Egan Still 'Desperately Ill'

SEATTLE, Wash. —(UPI)— Gov. William A. Egan of Alaska remained in critical condition Wednesday in his 50-50 fight for life.

if this is not indeed respecting the will of the people."

Earlier, Castro had unleashed an attack on those who had criticized the actions of the revolutionary government but had remained silent about the evils of the Batista dictatorship:

"While the tyrant lived in this palace, who sold the interests of the country and granted the most onerous concessions to the foreigners, no one attacked him, no press campaign was carried out against him abroad, no congressional voices were raised to accused him."

Castro won another cheer from the mass of humanity before him when he asked if they approved of his recommendation of his brother, Raul, as second-in-command of the revolution to succeed him if he should be killed.

Virtually all normal activities ceased in Havana at 11 a.m. to allow the crowd to gather before the palace.

Castro spoke for an hour and 25 minutes. It was one of his shortest speeches.

He was followed by Provisional President Manuel Urrutia, who said he would seek changes in laws on international asylum so "dictators and collaborators" could not take refuge in foreign embassies.

After Urrutia's brief talk, the huge crowds before the palace began dispersing.

National Summary

The vicious winter storm in the midwest spread its effects throughout the eastern half of the country.

The low center moving slowly northward through eastern Indiana was gaining force as warm moist air from the Gulf continued to stream into the pattern.

Heavy rains ahead of the system broke records with a band of thunderstorms from the southern Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico.

Tornadoes were reported in the northern half of Mississippi and Alabama and into central Kentucky.

One band of most violent weather was moving across Ohio, Tennessee and into eastern Alabama while the storms associated with the sharpest drop in temperatures were along the front that stretched from the low center to Cincinnati, Nashville, Florence, Ala., Mississippi and New Orleans.

In the northeast moderate to heavy rains on top of snows of nearly a foot have created the danger of flash floods in western New York and Pennsylvania during the period of the sharp warming ahead of the storm.

King, right, Faces Court Again
. . . at table is Grady Burton, Wauchula, his attorney

King 'Payoff' Told to Jury

BARTOW, Fla. — (AP) — Boone D. Tillett told a Criminal Court jury Wednesday of circumstances surrounding a $10,000 payoff he received in 1956 from former State Sen. Harry E. King.

King, a Winter Haven attorney, is being tried for the second time on charges of inducing two men to lie to a Grand Jury. His conviction in May, 1956, was reversed by the State Supreme Court.

Tillett, former State Representative from Lake Wales, testified he met with King on the night of Feb. 4, 1956, and received the money in exchange for "some pictures and affidavits and a letter I gave him," announcing Tillett's withdrawal from a State Senate race.

Tillett testified the Feb. 4 meeting was agreed on the previous night.

"I went . . . to Waverly and arrived at approximately 7:30 p.m.," the witness said. "I found Sen. King about 8 o'clock in his car beside a packing house."

He explained he and King had a mixup over where the meeting was to be.

Tillett said they later went to an orange grove, near Babson Park, in separate cars, then drove to a lonely deadend road in Tillett's car, where the payoff took place.

The witness said several pictures and affidavits were burned by the two men in a fire on the road.

He also testified he gave King a letter, addressed to the Associated Press, announcing his withdrawal from the race.

Tillett was the fifth state witness called before Judge Roy Amidon recessed court until 9:30 a.m., today. Tillett will resume his testimony at that King's retrial started Tuesday. A six-man jury and one alternate were selected at 2:10 p.m., Wednesday.

Immediately after selection of the jury, Prosecutor Charles W. Nugent, Jr., of West Palm Beach, filed summonses for former Sheriff Pat Gordon and former Deputy Sentell Monk to appear as witnesses.

The defense invoked a rule prohibiting witnesses from appearing in the courtroom before being called to testify.

D. M. Martin of Plant City, attorney for Gordon, protested the state's calling of Gordon and Monk. He contended the only reason their names were listed as witnesses was to exclude them from observing proceedings.

Gordon and Monk were convicted with King and two others in 1956 and face retrial jointly.

Nugent told the jurors in his opening statement he plans to call Rollie Arnold and James L. Busbee to testify for the state.

Arnold and Busbee, deputy sheriffs under Gordon and codefendants in the first trial, pleaded guilty last week to perjury charges.

They admitted they lied to a Polk County Grand Jury which was investigating King's payoff to Tillett.

Tillett has maintained the payoff came in return for his promised withdrawal from the State Senate race.

King said Tillett was blackmailing him, and he gave the money in an attempt to trap the Lake Wales man.

Unions Eye Pay Hikes, Scoff at Ike

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Labor unions are reaching for hefty wage boosts despite a renewal of President Eisenhower's anti-inflation plea for a hold-down on higher pay and prices.

The AFL-CIO Economic Policy Committee meets here today and its staff is preparing a statement in effect rejecting the President's renewed call for wage-price stability. Auto Union Chief Walter Reuther heads the committee.

Organized labor's reply to Eisenhower reportedly will repeat contentions that workers don't earn enough now in relation to the rest of the economy.

Union officials remained mum pending the committee meeting today. But they cited a recent comment by AFL-CIO President George Meany that "I don't think a little inflation should be held up to stop the forward progress of the American people."

In his annual economic message to Congress Tuesday, Eisenhower said 1959 can be a prosperous year but that renewed inflation could put a crimp in the rosy prospects.

To avoid this danger, the President urged businessmen to "wage a ceaseless war against costs." But he said labor union leaders "have a particularly critical role to play, in view of the great power lodged in their hands."

However, sizable wage boosts already are going into effect for 200,000 coal miners.

Oil companies, faced with a strike threat, have just offered a five per cent wage boost which figures at about 13½ cents an hour. But this is the first general oil pay hike in two years.

Telephone workers' bargaining is heading to a crisis in six Midwest states next week. In practically every case unions are insisting on some vacation, pension, insurance or other gains in addition to higher wages.

Coming on fast are labor contract negotiations in aircraft, chemical, rubber, steel, aluminum, electrical manufacturing, meat packing, maritime and railroad industries.

Labor agreements covering some three million workers run out this year.

Wage increases, not including welfare or other concessions adding to labor costs, averaged about nine cents an hour in 1958, a bit lower than in 1957 or 1956.

$1 Million Institution Is Urged

By JOHN L. BOYLES
Capitol Bureau Chief

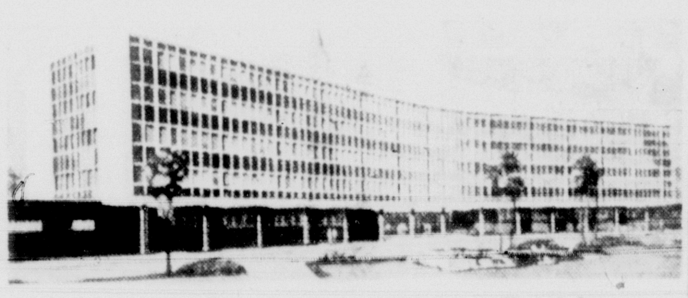
TALLAHASSEE — Construction of a million dollar institution in Broward County for treatment of psychotic and emotionally disturbed children will be recommended to the 1959 Legislature by an Interim Committee on Mental Health.

Sen. J. Emory Cross of Alachua, a member of the committee, said the facility would have at least 48 beds.

Cross told the Parent-Teachers Association legislative conference the state now has no facilities for treating such cases under 12 years of age "but there are many children who could be helped by treatment.

The senator said one of Florida's big drawbacks in the treatment of children is the lack of any program for identifying retarded children "although they number in the thousands. There is an urgent need for an identification program, for many of our retarded children can be trained and educated."

The Sunland Training Center at Gainesville is caring for 1,700 retarded children and a new institution at Fort Myers will accommodate another 700, but "at least 1,000 retarded children already are on the waiting list," Cross said.



Sketch of New State Office Building
. . . no inspections, declares city official

State Won't Take Out Building Permit Here

The State of Florida has refused to take out a Miami building permit for its 2.5-million-dollar office structure and the city building department is flabbergasted.

"Okay," said Ellis Knox, head of the department, "No tickee, no washee."

He explained that if the state didn't take out a permit, the building department will not inspect construction of the big facility on NW 12th Ave. at 14th St.

Asked if the state could carry out its own inspection, Knox replied:

"That's dangerous. The construction business is highly competitive. I'm not saying that they'd cut corners—but we like to make sure they're up to our standards."

He said the permit would have amounted to about $5,000 in fees for the city's experts and it could cost the state $40,000 to have the inspections made privately.

Knox said Attorney General Richard W. Ervin had ruled that since the Miami charter did not specifically require the state to take out building permits, the state isn't going to.

Shot Over Rent

Two bystanders aid Quimby W. Holden, 28, of Clearwater, after he was shot by his roommate, Newlin P. Wilson, 48, during an argument over rent. According to Clearwater police the two, both taxi drivers, shared an apartment. Holden was reported in serious condition.

School Bus Accident Injures 2

VERO BEACH — A teacher and student were injured Wednesday on lateral A when the teacher's car collided with the side of a school bus making a left turn onto N. Gifford Rd.

State Trooper W. C. Frossard charged Selvin Cobb 28, of Gifford, Negro driver of the school bus, with violating the right-of-way.

About 40 Negro children from Fellsmere were on the bus. All were taken to Indian River Memorial Hospital for check-ups. Only one, Juanita Brown 15, was injured. She was treated for cuts on her head and released.

Mrs. Jane Bryant Yates of Vero Beach, Negro teacher at Douglas Elementary School, was admitted to the hospital with a broken right arm and bruised shoulders, chest and legs. Her sedan was a total loss, Trooper Frossard reported.

Charge is Filed In Auto Fatality

COCOA — The Florida Highway Patrol Wednesday filed an improper passing charge against the driver of a car which killed a motorcycle rider here Tuesday night.

FHP Sgt. Hope Carlan said records of the accident investigation would be turned over to the state's attorney for further investigation aimed at determining whether additional charges should be filed.

The death car was operated by Thomas A. Maxwell Jr., 22, of 1207 Columbia Way, Cocoa. Maxwell was free on bond Wednesday.

Sgt. Carlan and Trooper G. F. Brubaker said investigation showed Maxwell's car and the eastbound car collided while Maxwell was passing several other cars between the Indian River drawbridge and Merritt Island.

Maxwell also swerved onto the shoulder and the two vehicles met headon. Snellgrove's death was Brevard County's second 1959 traffic fatality.

Snellgrove, a native of New Brockton, Ala., is survived by his wife, Fay and two children, Judy 3, and Tom Jr. 4.

Navy Cadets Start Flying In New Jets

PENSACOLA — (AP) — The Navy may do away with propellor - driven airplanes in primary flight training if studies beginning with a new all-jet trainer prove satisfactory.

A special all jet class is ready to start its training with the PT-1 Pinto, a high performance two-place trainer.

The first of 15 Pensacola Naval Air Station cadets who will learn to fly in the Pinto, went aloft Wednesday.

K. A. MacDonald, 22, of Rockbury, Mass., rode as a passenger with Maj. William Lucas of Chicago as pilot.

Vice Adm. Robert Goldthwaite, Naval Air Training chief, said the performance of men trained in jets and those trained in prop airplanes will undergo a year's evaluation.

The Pinto is manufactured by Temco Aircraft Corp., of Dallas. It cruises at 270 m.p.h. and lands at 86 m.p.h. Nine have been delivered, and two more are expected.

Church Sets Ceremonies

NAPLES — Dedication of the new Trinity-by-the-Cove Episcopal Church parish house and rectory will be held Sunday at 5 p.m., with the Rt. Rev. William Francis Moses, Orlando, suffragan bishop of South Florida, in charge.

The rector, the Rev. Kee H. Harrison, said Bishop Moses will also confirm 20 children and adults.

The parish house and rectory are on Galleon Dr., across the street from the church.

Martin County Still Destroyed

STUART — The first moonshine still raid in 1959 was made Monday three miles south of Salerno between U.S. 1, and A1A.

A 1,500 gallon abandoned still complete with all the "fixings," plus a gallon of shine was discovered and destroyed by W. V. Eddy, beverage agent of Tallahassee, and Sheriff Roy C. Bakerm and Deputy Sheriff Morgan Sprott.

The still was located deep in the "piney woods."

Chattahoochean Wins Road-E-O

MARIANNA — (UPI) — Douglas Shelby, 18, Chattahoochee High School senior, won top place in the Northwest Florida Teenage Driving Road-e-o.

Second place went to Eugene Goodwyn, Tallahassee, and Franklin Forehand, Bonifas, was third.

Officers Picked At Church Meet

NAPLES — Named this week to three year terms on the vestry of Trinity-by-the-Cove Episcopal Church were Henry B. Watkins Jr., Carl O. Hoffman and Roger Henshaw.

Chosen as delegates to the April diocesan convention in Lakeland were Tony Grana, William Gracely and Henshaw Watkins. Leslie Johnson and Frank Otte are alternates.

Home Rule Bogey Rears Head Again

Herald Bureau

NAPLES — That home rule argument which raised such a hot hassle two years ago may bring as warm a dispute again, judging by the brief City Council discussion Wednesday.

"If you had home rule all over Florida you'd have so many laws you wouldn't be able to leave the county without breaking one," declared Arnie Haynes when Dr. Francis Ford mentioned the proposal. "I don't agree with you."

Dr. Ford had mentioned the matter as one to be discussed with State Sen. Travis A. Gresham of Fort Myers. The doctor protested he had headed the civic association when it opposed the law change two years ago.

He added he thought the people should be given information on the matter, even if it does benefit the county.

Contracts Urged On All Projects

By TOM MORGAN
Naples Bureau Chief

NAPLES — The costs of shell, compared with lime rock, for street paving purposes — subject of a hot running debate in the Naples City Council for more than a year — may be settled by a test section, to be built on 26th Ave., N.

Councilman Archie Turner, whose father sells shell to the city, and Dr. Francis Ford, who says lime rock is cheaper over a long period, have often tangled in noisy debate on the subject.

Wednesday the question popped up again, with Ford linking it to another hot topic — the right of Naples contractors to bid on city projects — tossed around at two council sessions last week.

Manager Fred Lowdermilk continued to hold out for construction by city crews, and pointed out that, since 1949, when the city had 12.87 miles of paved streets, including 3.6 miles of state highway, paving has been increased 19.05 miles by sub-dividers and 29.56 by city construction.

Lowdermilk said he could not give cost figures, because much of the work was done as maintenance, and the last big job, paving five blocks of Ninth Ave., S., was not included in additions and betterments.

The city manager added "and the tax rate has been constantly reduced, until we built the city jail and fire station additions." He pointed the millage had been reduced from 29.5 in 1949, to 12, but did not mention the re-evaluation five years ago which more than doubled the tax roll.

Mayor W. Roy Smith agreed with Dr. Ford that actual street costs could be found by putting projects up for bids.

"We could do it and I'd be glad to," said Lowdermilk.

Dr. Ford priased Lowdermilk for his work, but added "I'd like to see the city of Naples get out of the contracting business. We're growing too rapidly to continue."

The mayor proposed that, on future street assessment projects, owners of property decide what materials be used, whether lime rock or shell.

Lowdermilk declared contracting work by the city would require sale of city street equipment, on which $30,000 was spent this year, and the city now has "more equipment than any contractor."

"That's the tragedy of it," snapped Dr. Ford.

"That's the good thing of it," countered Lowdermilk.

"As far as I'm concerned you can use limerock, marl or sawdust," said Turner, "just so we get good streets."

Changing the subject to the 26th Ave., N., paving now underway, Lowdermilk asked what material to use.

Dr. Ford suggested the manager decide, and Lowdermilk said delivery savings might make it possible to use rock instead of shell. No decision was reached.

Collins Hits Ike's Gas Tax Plan

TALLAHASSEE — (UPI) — Gov. LeRoy Collins expressed strong opposition Wednesday to President Eisenhower's call for a 1½ cent per gallon increase in the federal gasoline tax.

The President suggested an increase from 3 to 4½ cents a gallon to keep the interstate highway program, on which the federal government pays 90 per cent of the costs, on a pay-as-you-go basis.

Collins said he recognizes the necessity for the huge network of defense highways.

"I am opposed to the federal government's placing any additional tax on gasoline," Collins said. "This is a field of taxation that should be left to the states."

State Road Chairman Joe Grotegut agreed and said Florida's congressional delegation will be asked to oppose the tax increase.

Collins indicated he might ask the next Legislature to authorize an additional state gasoline tax to help counties buy right-of-way for primary road projects.

The state now collects seven cents per gallon, in addition to the three-cent federal levy.

Everything Is Higher These Days

Herald Bureau

NAPLES — Fire costs are following the cost of living, they're going up for areas adjoining the city of Naples.

That means the charge to make the run by the city fire department, not the actual losses.

Council Wednesday decided to raise the price for answering alarms from $2 per fireman and $10 per engine to $3 and $25. The costs, paid by the county, haven't been changed since 1949.

The change was made effective Feb. 15, to give the County Commissioners a chance to learn of it at the Feb. 3 meeting.

Our Girls (It's the Makeup) Score With Mikoyan's Son

By Herald Wire Services

WHAT IMPRESSED Sergo Mikoyan most during his visit to the U.S. along with his father, Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan?

"The girls."

The 29-year-old Sergo gave that prompt answer to a Washington Star society reporter who chatted with him at a reception at the Soviet embassy.

"Ours (girls) are just as pretty as yours," he hastened to explain, "but you have the textiles and cosmetics."

The younger Mikoyan, a writer and editor for the Soviet magazine World Economics and International Relations, said:

"I found the people here quite friendly, much more friendly than I expected."

But he added that he does not believe some news magazines reflect this—"especially U.S. News and World Report and Newsweek. Those are two I have noticed."

"I must say I like your newspapers," he went on. "They were all most friendly (in reporting on his father's visit) . . . They were fair."

Teller Just Pressed Alarm

Leon Harent

. . . 83, still plugging

DETROIT —(AP)— Leon Harent, who says he has spent 69 years of his life in jails across the country, walked into the National Bank of Detroit's main branch.

He handed a teller a note written on a piece of paper bag. The note said: "This is a holdup. I want $1,000 in small bills."

The elderly man's possessions at the time of his arrest included a pair of broken eyeglasses, a pocket knife, a safety razor and three razor blades.

"Is this all you've got to show for 83 years?" police asked.

"I've made progress," Harent replied. "When I was young they didn't have safety razors."

Ducktail Haircuts Really a Poor Risk

"I HAVE FOUND that defendants with ducktail haircuts make poor risks on probation," said General Sessions Court Judge Bruce Littlejohn in York, S.C., last December.

Nevertheless the judge imposed one-year suspended sentences on Bennie Kimbrell, 19, and Richard Broome, 18, of Rock Hill, who had pleaded guilty to housebreaking and grand larceny. But, as a term of their probation, Judge Littlejohn ordered haircuts for the pair.

Last week, York County police caught Kimbrell and Broome taking auto parts from a spare parts yard in Rock Hill. Wednesday, General Sessions Court Judge George T. Gregory Jr. revoked their probations and sent them to the State Penitentiary. Both were again sporting ducktail haircuts.

It's Mental And Dental

DALLAS, Tex. — (UPI) — D. E. Jones is returning to his $50-a-week job in a Corsicana, Tex., service station, ending a hoax that began when he claimed to have found about two million dollars worth of gold bars in a berry patch.

Jones, 38-year-old father of eight children, told Secret Service men that the story was untrue, as a lie detector test had indicated earlier.

"The only gold I have is what's in my teeth," he said. "That cost $450 when the dentist put it in, but I've been losing teeth lately."

Jones could be fined $10,000 and-or given a five-year prison sentence for making a false statement to the government.

Natural Gas...will bring new industrial and domestic economy to Florida

This scene is becoming familiar throughout Florida. Perhaps you have seen it alongside a busy highway, in the outskirts of the city or even in your own backyard.

What you are seeing is part of the Houston Corporation's 1517 mile pipeline which will bring an abundant supply of natural gas to all of Florida.

The next time you see this scene, stop and take a second look, for in a few short weeks the men and equipment will be gone and in their wake will come vast new developments in Florida's industry and economy.

Beautiful Oleander Can Be Deadly
. . . one of 157 poison plants in Florida

Please . . . Don't Eat Oleander

By CLARENCE ZAITZ
North Broward Bureau

"PLEASE DON'T eat the oleander," could well be one of the most important warnings a parent can give a child in Florida.

For the oleander is one of 157 species of plants grown in Florida that are poisonous to people.

Many of the plants are ornamentals and commonly found in many gardens.

While the number of them sounds frightening, actually the non-toxic plants grown here compose an overwhelming majority.

Angel's Trumpet
. . . can mean dirge

An expert in the field of poisonous plants is Julia F. Morton, director of the Morton Collectanea, University of Miami.

While anxious to make the public aware of these dangerous plants, Mrs. Morton claims she does not "advocate complete extermination of them." She says, "Everyone should know which plants produce undesirable reactions.

"The principal hazard is not so much in the plants," she asserts, "but in our unfamiliarity with their properties."

While some of the 157 species of plants can be fatal to children or adults, most of them are on a par (as far as reactions) with poison ivy or poison oak.

The susceptibility of individuals varies so greatly, it cannot be said in generalities that every toxic plant is poisonous to every human being.

* * *

While poisonous plants may sound a bit alarming, they are also necessary, for many life-saving drugs, useful insecticides and a number of popular food products come from them.

Many cases of plant poisoning may provide evidence of symptoms seemingly identical with acute indigestion, appendicitis, epilepsy, meningitis, cerebral hemorrhage, tetanus or cholera.

Children have died from eating the flowers or chewing leaves, twigs, or cuttings of the oleander. The seeds of the yellow oleander have caused death, as have leaves and twigs of the Malay rubber vine.

* * *

THE ROSARY PEA is the fatal object used for Haitian vodoo dolls' eyes which the U.S. Public Health Service recently warned against. Yet the same pea, when dried, can safely be used by children in pea shooters.

Pencil Tree
. . . fatal message

The seeds from the yellow fruits of the coral plant are a common cause of poisoning of children and adults.

The angel's trumpet has caused serious poisoning in children who put the flowers in their mouths, pretending they are trumpets.

There are many different ways plants can be harmful.

The seeds and fruits of some are dangerous; the leaves and twigs of others are. Often smoke from burning some of these plants can cause difficulty with breathing, skin irritations, or hurt the eyes.

A few of the more commonly found hazardous species of plants in South Florida include:

Bungle chalice vine, Carolina yellow jessamine, night-blooming jessamine, cashew nut, akee, fern palm, alsam pear, sand-box tree, candlenut, golden-dewdrop, chinaberry, Persian lilac, ochrosia plum, devil's apple, poisonwood, Brazilian pepper, Mexican flame vine, candelabra cactus, or pencil tree, poinsettia, lalbar glory lily.

Mrs. Morton, again refraining from being an alarmist, points out that "plants known to have toxic properties should be treated with the same respect given common household hazards such as matches, electricity, gasoline, insecticides, contents of the medicine cabinet, and the indispensible automobile."

Ike's Penny Plus 1½-Cent County Levy?

Broward Countians May Pay 2½ Cents More on Gas Tax

By ART ROBINSON
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — Broward County residents next year may be paying 2½ cents more in taxes on a gallon of gasoline than they are now.

One penny would be in the form of a levy imposed by the County Commission. The other cent and a half would be the increased federal tax proposed Monday by President Eisenhower.

County commissioners will have the right to levy the one cent if the Legislature adopts a bill proposed by the State Road Department. It would bring the county $1 million or more a year to be used for road and bridge construction and to buy right-of-way.

At the moment, a majority of the commissioners favor adding the penny if all money collected from it is returned to the county.

William D. Singer, Miami Road Board member, said that is the purpose of the Road Board's proposal — to give each county, where the penny is collected, all revenue from it.

The idea is to help counties, especially those unable to meet their mounting road needs, finance construction and the purchase of right-of-way.

In the fiscal year ended June 30, the state collected $6,944,099 in gasoline taxes in Broward County from the seven cent per gallon tax.

In the same period, the state spent in the county $2,137,172.25 on various road and bridge projects. A number of county leaders have contended that if the state spent in the county all of the money collected here, or even most of it, all of the county's road needs could easily be financed.

A spokesman for the department in Tallahassee replied Monday that the Road Department has to spend gasoline tax revenue on the basis of statewide need.

If the extra penny had been levied in 1957-58, it would have returned $992,000. A majority of the commissioners feel that the money is needed badly enough to levy the tax.

"If it's the only equitable way to raise taxes and build roads, then we'll have to have it," said Frank C. Adler, new member of the County Commission.

Adler served on the Governor's Tax Council which recommended levying the extra penny.

Commissioners Herbert Burke and Vivian Saxon also favor it provided all of the money returns to the county for road and bridge improvements.

"The cities and counties definitely are going to need help in building roads and buying right-of-way," Burke said. "It would give the county some revenue to pledge for new capital improvements.

"In May, the county traffic survey will be completed, and we'll find we need more east-west and north-south arterial roads.

"The School Board is buying school sites which require roads to them."

George Petersen opposes the extra cent.

"My personal feeling is that it's awful easy to levy tax and awful hard to get rid of it," he said.

"If we got a more equable share of our gasoline taxes now, we wouldn't have to levy an additional cent . . . If we got back the same amount we send to Tallahassee in gasoline taxes, it would about take care of all our road problems."

Members of the legislative delegation said the proposal would take considerable study. State Reps. A. J. Ryan and Emerson Allsworth want to know whether some of the money would go to the cities.

The cities now are having to bear the brunt of right-of-way costs, they said. State Sen. George Tedder said he will remain uncommitted until it's clear whether the government plans to levy the 1½-cent gasoline tax increase.

Motorists now are paying 10 cents in taxes on each gallon of gasoline they buy — seven cents in state and three cents federal taxes.

They All Want Pompano Homes

By CLARENCE ZAITZ
North Broward Bureau

POMPANO BEACH — Apparently there are many residents up north interested in buying a home one mile from the beach for under $7,000, enjoying subtropical living, and paying only 50 cents a year in real estate taxes.

At least that's the indication from the mail pouring into the Chamber of Commerce inquiring about that kind of life.

It all started Jan. 12, when nationally syndicated Columnist Jim Bishop wrote in The Herald and other papers about an elderly couple who had retired to Pompano Beach Highlands under those conditions.

Within a week, more than 50 letters of inquiry had been received. They're still coming.

Most of the response has been from that part of the country east of the Mississippi River, with the majority from Northeastern states.

Individually, Chamber of Commerce directors have mixed emotions about this kind of publicity, but collectively, they're coyly non-committal [illegible] their comments.

About the safest thing you could quote them as saying is that "any publicity which mentions Pompano Beach helps."

Jim Bishop
. . . he knew couple

The directors are noncommital because they don't want to go on record as opposing such an attraction, and they certainly don't want to be reported endorsing any particular home builder.

Bishop had written about a retired couple living in Pompano Beach Highlands who had purchased a home in 1955 for $6,790 with a down payment of $280 and a 25-year mortgage payable at $45.50 a month.

Network of Steel Beams Will Brace Walls of Coffer Dam
. . . south half of tunnel expected to be completed by next fall

Noise of Tunnel Construction Soon to Sink to a 'Whisper'

By ART ROBINSON
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — In two weeks people living near the Federal Hwy. tunnel site can start catching up on their sleep. That's when the pounding will stop.

From then until some time next fall, work will be comparatively quiet. The pounding has come from pile drivers used to sink sheet steel piling for an enormous coffer dam.

The dam, said George Poland, project engineer, is nearly completed. It extends 800 feet southward from the center of the river and encloses an area that varies in width from 76 feet in the river to 84 feet at SE Fifth Ct.

After the last of the piling is driven at the river end, the Thorington Construction Co. will start excavating inside the dam. The excavation will vary from a depth of 50 feet at the center of the river to 10 feet at the south end of the dam.

Poland and other Thorington officials have nothing but admiration for the forbearance of people living near the highway. They almost never complain.

"The only complaint we've had recently came from a woman living a mile away, to the southeast," Poland said. "A northwest wind was blowing and it carried the noise to her house. She said she couldn't sleep."

Work has been starting at 7 a.m. and continuing until after 11 p.m. At night, batteries of floodlights illuminate work areas.

At the south end of the coffer dam, welders are preparing steel beams which will brace the walls of the coffer dam against the pressure of earth and water.

When the excavation is completed, steel rods will be inserted in the underlying rock to anchor the concrete slab which will then be poured for the bottom of the tunnel.

Water then will be pumped out of the dam, and the walls of the tunnel will be built. The company expects the south half of the tunnel will be finished some time next fall.

Consumer Cost Not Frozen Last Year

Orange Prices Juiciest In History -- for Growers

By FRAN LASLIE
Herald Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD — Consumers are now paying for last year's citrus-killing freeze.

Broward growers said the cost of an orange has reached its peak — an all-time high that is not likely to drop for the rest of the season.

Prices are currently pegged anywhere from 33 cents to $1.20 per dozen oranges—about 20 per cent higher than last winter.

On a wholesale level however, Broward growers — in contrast to Central Florida producers — are profiting from the 1958 record cold snap.

Local grove owners, whose trees were not fatally frost bitten, expect to market more than 2½ million boxes of citrus this year.

Hully Stirling, owner of a 508-acre grove near Davie, commented:

"Due to last year's freeze there is a 20 per cent reduction of citrus produce.

"This means Broward growers will get high prices for the next four or five years because it will take that long for central state groves to get back to full production."

Wholesale dealers are now paying $2.50 to $3 per box, or about double the $1.15 per box growers here were getting in 1957.

This increase is passed on to the buyer.

Manufacturers of frozen orange products buy 90 per cent of all citrus grown on Broward's large groves.

"Housewives," said Stirling, "still judge an orange by outside appearance rather than content."

Retired Postman Remembers When

He Delivered Mail Seven Times a Day

By PETER LAINE
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — Once upon a time the post office used to deliver letters seven times a day.

And a letter mailed before noon would reach its receiver that evening.

Admittedly this was a long time ago. The year was 1913. The place was New York.

But John Hussin remembers it very well. That was the year he started as a mailman.

"We made deliveries from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.," he said, "all for two cents postage."

Bicycles and horses got the mail through. The newfangled motors didn't come in until 1920.

Pneumatic tubes ran under the big city, he explained, firing bursts of 5,000 letters at a time from one end of Manhattan to the other. They followed the subways.

Hussin, who lives at 1008 Long Island Ave., Melrose Park, retired from postal service in 1956.

He was then a supervisor at Grand Central Station, which handled some four or five million pieces of mail daily.

Hussin nowadays is vice president of the local branch of the National Association of Retired Civil Employes.

It's a youthful group of oldsters interested in government and current affairs, that meets monthly. There are about 240 members.

Frank Anthony will be succeeded as president next month by Paul Hainkins. Both are Melrose Park residents.

The membership chairman is John D. Kennedy, former postmaster from Massachusetts.

"He's 82 or 83 now," Hussin said. "He does a wonderful job."

Harry L. Golden
. . . fund dinner talk

Author Golden To Speak

HOLLYWOOD — The author of a current best seller, "Only in America," will be speaker at the Jewish Welfare Federation annual fund raising dinner Feb. 8 at Hollywood Beach Hotel.

Harry L. Golden, humorist and publisher, will come here from Charlotte, N. C., said Murray Simons, campaign chairman.

Golden skyrocketed to fame when his non-fiction book gained national popularity, holding the No. 1 seller spot for months.

In addition to local charities, JWF proceeds will be distributed to 20 national charities.

The largest donations, Simons said, will go to the United Jewish Appeal special fund to supply housing, welfare and rehabilitative services to refugees from the Middle East who are living in tin and canvas huts in Israel.

Pupils Plant Garden Club Fiscus Tree

DANIA — The Dania Junior Garden Club's arbor day program was held at Dania Elementary School when the Little Magnolias planted a ficux Benjamin tree in the school's playground.

Mrs. J. V. Novak, junior garden club chairman, headed the program with the ceremonies conducted by the high school members made up of fourth, fifth and sixth graders.

The ficus tree was donated by Mrs. Albert Le Beck, a member of the Dania Garden Club. The Rev. A. D. Haughn of the Dania Methodist Church gave the invocation.

Pamphlets Tell Services Story Of Lauderdale

FORT LAUDERDALE — A resume of the services of city government is contained in a booklet that will be distributed to Fort Lauderdale residents next week.

"The Whys of Your City Government" is the title of the pamphlet prepared by Roger Line, administrative assistant to the city manager. It's being bound now and will be mailed to everyone who has a water account with the city.

The text, illustrated by clever cartoons and photographs, tells the story of the day to day services of the city and outlines major capital improvements of the year.

A graph shows, in percentages, where the city's income comes from and how the money is spent.

The booklet was printed by the city.

Industry Safety Jobs Open

FORT LAUDERDALE — The safety department of the Florida Industrial Commission has several openings for the position of industrial safety representative.

Charles R. Saunders, local manager of the State Employment Service, said qualification for the position are graduation from high school, college level courses in industrial safety, three years experience in manufacturing and construction or an equivalent combination of training and experience.

More information may be obtained from the FSES office.

Acting Principal Confirms It

Opportunities Ripe For Broward Teacher

By ERWIN POTTS
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — "Here in Broward County the opportunities for young teachers are as great as any in the country."

Joseph Brewer is in a good position to offer that opinion. In four years with the schools here he has risen to acting principal of Fort Lauderdale High School.

Brewer, who stepped into his job three weeks ago, said between two and three hundred new teaching jobs are open in the county yearly.

"And our salary scale is beginning to compare favorably with other parts of the country," he said. "I believe the state of Florida rates about 16th in the nation for teaching salaries. And we're either first or second in the state.

"We take in about 6,000 new students in the county schools the number is growing all the time, so we keep adding teachers."

Brewer himself has found the transition from teacher to principal a pleasant but busy one.

"I'm a lot busier now—busier than when I was coaching tennis and teaching too," he said. "And my wife doesn't see too much of me."

Brewer didn't care to comment on his chances of becoming permanent principal, but indicated he'd apply for the position when applications are taken next fall.

"I haven't found it too difficult to handle the job," he said. "I believe my work as dean of boys and assistant principal prepared me adequately."

A native of South Dakota, Brewer was graduated from Yankton College in that state and received his masters degree from the University of Florida. He is a veteran of eight years naval service.

At Miami

Teachers Urged to Go To Science Workshop

FORT LAUDERDALE — Primary teachers throughout the county were urged Wednesday to attend a science workshop at the Holmes Elementary School in Miami Saturday.

Speakers will include several professors from the University of Florida and the University of Miami.

Sponsored by District 10 of the State Teachers Association, the meeting will start at 9 a.m.

Teachers from Dade, Broward and Monroe counties are to attend.

PTA Leaders Attend Workshop

FORT LAUDERDALE — Mrs. Luther L. Dameron, president of the Broward County Council, Parent-Teacher Association, and Lt. Col. George Leppig of Hollywood, legislation chairman of the council, joined a group of Dade Countains Tuesday to fly to Tallahassee for a State legislation workshop.

The workshop was held in the state capitol. It brought together educators, parents and state representatives from throughout the state for a preview of legislation affecting education and children.

The Broward County council plans a similar one-day conference in the county with George Tedder Jr., Emerson Allsworth and A. J. Ryan.

Bailey Firemen Plan Barbecue

FORT LAUDERDALE — Bailey Rd. Volunteer Fire Department will hold its first annual pit barbecue at the Broadview Country Club Estates Jan. 31.

The event begins at noon and continues the rest of the day. The Bailey group is a member of the Broward County Voluntary Fire Association.

Want to Paint Postal Boxes?

FORT LAUDERDALE — Postmaster Dale Dunifon will accept sealed bids until Feb. 6 for painting 35 postal storage boxes red, white and blue.

Bid forms can be obtained at his office in the downtown post office.

Science Fair To Be Feb. 5

POMPANO BEACH — The Pompano Beach Junior High School's science fair will be held at 8 p.m. Feb. 5 at the Elks Club, 2300 NE 10th St.

Models of projects students have worked on will be exhibited.

Miramar Police Dance Slated

MIRAMAR — The Miramar Police Department will hold its second annual ball Feb. 28 at the Golden Gate Hotel in Miami Beach.

Assistant Police Chief Fred R. Pagano is general chairman. Patrolman James Quigley is ticket chairman. Bob Munsey's Orchestra will play.

Tough Gadget

PALO ALTO, Calif.—(UPI)—A new tape recorder is reported so rugged it will survive a jet plane crash at 1,100 miles an hour into a concrete wall.

The Lockheed Aircraft Corp. developed the eight-pound recorder for moon shots and interplanetary space travel. It can record up to three million items of scientific data as it sails through outer space, the company said, and can then divulge the information six times faster than it had recorded it.

Thanks . . . for Telethon

EDITOR: Thank you for helping to publicize Broward County's participation in the Telethon.

Also our deep appreciation to the more than 150 volunteers who worked for and with us at First National Bank headquarters during the 17-hour period. It would be almost impossible to name each individual who contributed so unstintingly of time, energy and enthusiasm.

"Behind-the-scenes" workers made possible the smooth-running machinery required to keep things moving. Telephone operators, girls of Fort Lauderdale High School Anchor Club, men and boys of the motorcycle corps, radio "hams," those who furnished banking facilities, refreshments for the short "coffee breaks" for tired workers, and the dozens of men and women from service clubs, banks and others from every walk of life who made possible the handling of the monumental detail work.

Thanks, also, to the countless youngsters who picked up canisters and canvassed their neighborhoods.

To everyone who helped us in anyway, our heartfelt gratitude for their wonderful support and help before, during and after Dennis James made his countless pleas from Miami Beach Auditorium for public assistance.

Last, but by no means least, our heartfelt thanks to those whose monetary contributions will make possible not only the continued treatment of the cerebral palsied in Broward County but will also provide the means for research necessary to improve treatment and, if possible, ultimately eradicate the cause of this dread crippler.

Very Sincerely,
UNITED CEREBRAL PALSY OF BROWARD COUNTY

Not All Top Men On 'Top 10' List

IF YOU were present the night the country's 10 outstanding young men received their awards at War Memorial Auditorium, you'll know why my heart is so heavy today.

I think you know what I'm referring to.

But fortunately I'm not one to cry over spilled milk.

Life must go on. I know there will be other years, other awards.

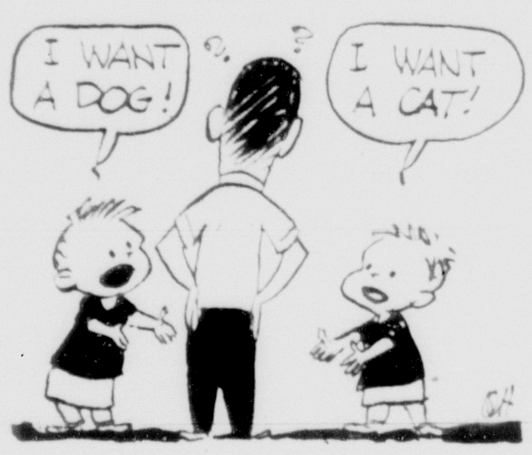
In my rapid rise to fame and fortune I've learned that a yong man fired with enthusiasm and gifted with superior intelligence can't dwell on the past.

* * *

Life Ambition: Own Dog

HE MUST surge ahead, accept defeat on occasion, but be prepared, to the best of his ability, to meet and conquer life's many complexities.

And that brings us to today's topic—a story of a little boy whose life ambition, at the present, is to have a dog he can call his own.



I WANT A DOG!
I WANT A CAT!

Doesn't sound too serious, does it?

But it is. There's more to the story.

This little boy has a little brother. And little brother happens to be a dog hater.

He loathes them, and vows he'll leave home the minute a dog arrives on the scene.

* * *

Dog Lover Vs. Cat Lover

LITTLE BROTHER isn't as cruel and heartless as he may appear.

He detests dogs, true, but he loves cats.

That's what he wants. He wants a cat like the one that lives across the street—the one he's forever sharing his sardines with.

The older boy, of course, wants no part of a cat. He's strictly a dog lover.

To add to the problem, our house wasn't designed for animals. Sometimes we wonder if it were intended for people. That's how small it is.

It's equipped with a doghouse, true, but it's mine and I'm not sharing it. That's out.

* * *

Room for a Cat But . . .

WE COULD, however, make room for a cat. A little box in the kitchen would take care of that.

But Mom and Dad Jones don't care for cats. We like them, but only from a distance. About 400 feet. We feed our neighbors' cat when they go on vacation, and once we took care of another neighbor's bantam rooster.

We could solve our problem, I suppose, by saying no to the boys, but that would be contrary to all the child psychology we've read.

Psychologists say all children, especially boys, should have pets. But they fail to go into the housing problem, and I don't remember seeing anything on this dog-versus-cat question.

And you thought you had problems!

Mr., Mrs. and Miss-- They All Can Compete

HOLLYWOOD — A Mr., Mrs., and Miss South Florida contest will be held Saturday by the City Recreation Department in the Young Circle bandshell.

The winner in each classification will receive a trophy.

Recreation Director Patrick Heneghan said 15 men and 20 women are to compete. It will start at 8 p.m.

On the program is muscle-flexing by Mr. Universe of 1956, Steve Klisanin of Coral Gables. Smashing a rock with a sledge hammer while it rests on a man's stomach is also part of the Mr. South Florida contest.

WEST HOLLYWOOD

More Schools Forced To Double Sessions

By FRAN LASLIE
Herald Staff Writer

LIKE THE old woman who lived in a shoe, West Hollywood schools are getting so many children they don't know what to do.

Housing developments are sprouting like Topsy to accommodate an influx of 30 families a week — and school officials are having a tough time keeping up with the increased educational demands, especially on the elementary level.

FRAN LASLIE

An average of 10 new students enroll in the five public grade schools every week.

All except one school has at least two grades on double session and in some cases, more classes threaten to split.

So far, Watkins Elementary, which was spilling over last year, is the only school to report adequate facilities.

"Sixteen permanent classrooms were completed this month. We're not at all crowded," said Wayne Wilson, principal.

* * *

Three Teachers Added

BUT ENROLLMENT figures at the other four schools add up to a difficult problem for the School Board to solve.

Driftwood Acres, with two grades on half days at the beginning of the year, are putting grades three and four on double session Monday.

"It is the only way we can take care of attendance which has jumped from 392 to 503 since September," Warren G. Cox, principal, said.

Driftwood, with 13 portable rooms, was forced to add three teachers this month, he said. No plans for construction of a permanent building have yet been made, according to the latest release from the county school plans division.

Authorities have termed conditions "critical" at Boulevard Heights which opened for the first time this year.

Parents there complained to the School Board that grades five and six, the only classes now on full-day schedules, may have to double up unless relief is given.

* * *

780 Students--Room for 720

JOHN O. CALVIN, School Board vice chairman of Hollywood, said several portables from Olsen Junior High will be transferred to Boulevard Heights this spring.

West Hollywood Elementary, still overcrowded despite the promise of 13 classrooms to replace that many portables, has accommodations for 720 students and an enrollment of 780.

Eighty-four new students boosted Miramar rolls to 835 this month. The first and second grades are on half-days.

For the last three years, one new school has been created each fall to take care of the overflow.

But PTA leaders — and some school officials — noting the influx of new families, are wondering if two new schools won't be a necessity by next September.

A Close Look at Drunk 'Reel' Self

COHASSET, Mass. — (AP) — Police Chief Hector J. Pelletier, who is also secretary-treasurer of the Massachusetts Chiefs of Police Assn., has a novel approach to the tipsy driver problem.

Pictures should be taken of them at the time of their arrest, Chief Pelletier says. The photos, he notes, would be admissible in court as evidence.

"Maybe if these drunken operators really see what they look like," the chief says, "they will think twice before taking the wheel of a car."

Robert Taylor to Make 'Adamson' in Africa

HOLLYWOOD — (UPI) — The next of our Hollywood stars to go to Africa to make a picture is Robert Taylor.

Bob signed a contract with Producers Cubby Broccoli and Irving Allen to do "Adamson," which is based on a novel, "Tales of the African Frontier," by J. A. Hunter and Daniel P. Mannix. The picture, a Warwick production, will be released by Columbia.

Bob leaves here Feb. 16. He will go to London, then to Mombasa. The film will be shot in Kenya.

Bob was quite excited at the chance to see far-away places, and he seemed unconcerned at the possibility of having to undergo the rigors which are said to go with picture-making in Africa.

He said he won't be separated long from his wife, Ursula. She is decorating their house now, and will join him as soon as she finishes.

ELIZABETH TAYLOR has indicated to close friends that she will be in Chicago on the first anniversary of Mike Todd's death. In the Jewish religion that is a sacred time when the monument at the tomb is erected.

There have been all sorts of rumors as to what kind of monument will be erected to the memory of the brilliant showman, but certainly it won't be an Oscar as was reported.

The Oscar is copyrighted and cannot be used for purposes other than the specfic award, which of course Mike won for "Around the World in 80 Days."

THE BUSIEST actor in seven states is Arthur O'Connell who knows where he's going for the next six months. He's been signed for "Operation Petticoat," the Cary Grant-Tony Curtis picture, but he can't leave for Key West, Fla., on location until Jan. 20. He'll first do a pilot on "The Secret Life of James Thurber," and March 9 he reports to Otto Preminger for an important role in "Anatomy of a Murder" starring Jimmy Stewart.

I asked Arthur about his romance with June Leff, head of talent at NBC, and his best girl for many a moon. "I love her and she loves me, but somehow we've just never gotten around to marriage. I never expect to marry any other girl, and I hope she never wants to marry another man." Then he told me he gave her a pearl and sapphire wristwatch with matching bracelet for Christmas.

IN THE GOOD old days when radio was king, I was on Kate Smith's show a number of tunes, so it was very pleasant to talk with her. She tells me she will not take any regular TV shows, that it's too difficult, but she will appear on guest spots.

"I spent 26 years on a weekly show on radio and TV," she said, "and when Ted Collins (her associate for all these years) became desperately ill and nearly died, we decided we would both take life easier."

She will be on a Garry Moore and a Perry Como show in New York, and she plans to do several Hollywood shows before she and Ted return East.

I DOUBT if any premier ever generated more excitement than "Compulsion" which took place at Sun Valley, Idaho, when Dick Zanuck showed his picture there to the national convention of district attorneys.

Two of the legal lights suffered injury — one who broke his leg in a skiing mishap, and the other (who shall be nameless) fell from a bar stool in the Sun Valley Lodge and fractured his arm. Well, boys will be boys at convention time, even if they are D.A.'s.

SNAPSHOTS of Hollywood collected at random:

Gene Tierney has an admirer who has made her forget Aly Khan. She and Aly now are good friends, but no romance.

Paulette Goddard and her husband, Erich Maria Remarque, leave Switzerland in a few days and are due to arrive in New York on the 17th. In a letter to some friends Erich says Paulette is a terrific cook.

At La Rue, Sir Laurence Olivier was holding forth at one table. At a table close by were Dinah Shore, George Montgomery, Joan Cohn and Harry Karl and Attorney Sidney Korshak.

The Party Tempo? It's Vivacissmo Before Opera Ball

By GRIFF PRESTON
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE—The party tempo is presto and vivacissmo (fast and lively, if you've forgotten your Italian) this weekend, with lots of entertaining before the Opera Guild's Rigoletto ball Saturday for sponsors, patrons and donors.

There will be a before-the-ball party at the Henry Wengers, with the Gordon Lunts, the Russell Allmans, the Charles Cuneos, Mrs. John Fauver, Mrs. Rudolph Morris of Los Angeles, and the Edgar Hamiltons among the guests.

The Thomas P. Quinns will have a cocktail party at their Sunrise home for the Warren Ellers, the Al Johnsons, the John Wrathers and the Harry Greeps.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Truman Clapp at their home on SE 16th Ave. will include the Edmund Drachs, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Burgess and the Clayton Lobbs.

The William Braisteds' cocktail guests will be the George Browns, Dr. and Mrs. Warren Traylor, the Walter V. Clarks, the Charles Sabourins and Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Yuengling.

Pre-ball party given by Mrs. F. M. Conklin will be at the penthouse at the Governor's Club Hotel with about 20 guests, including Mr. and Mrs. Alf Erickson, the Dave Pollocks, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Klauser, the Paris singers and the Victor Cannons, for cocktails and canapes before joining the big party downstairs in the ballroom.

Miss Meadows in Bridal Flurry

PRETTY HELEN MEADOWS is in the party-for-the-bride whirl these days.

MISS MEADOWS

Miss Meadows, whose marriage to Robert Conway Owen will be Feb. 5, is the daughter of the Clarence Meadows. Mr. Meadows is a former governor of West Virginia.

Among the party dates for the future Mrs. Owen have been the recent shower given by Misses Laurel Dickman, Gail York and Barbara Buehler. Next on her shower calendar will be the party to be given by Mrs. Jack Harrington and the sisterly shower given by Susan, Nancy and Lynn Meadows.

While the parties are going on in Fort Lauderdale, the man who started it all is working in "the wild blue yonder" at Lackland Air Force Base, Tex. He will be assigned to an Air Force school at the end of this month for special detail.

The marriage, at the Church-by-the-Sea, will be preceded by a rehearsal dinner given by the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Harnish. Reception following the wedding will be at the Lago Mar Hotel.

Watch Climate - - Californian Here

MRS. JOHN FAUVER is keeping an admonitory eye on the thermometer now that her house guest from California has arrived.

Mrs. Rudolph Morris, who planed in Tuesday, is getting her first look at Florida and Hostess Fauver wants to show off the Gold Coast under blue skies and gentle breezes.

First in a series of parties for the lady from Los Angeles will be the cocktail party given by Mrs. Fauver at her home Sunday for about 40 guests.

A Jeep With Fringe on Top

THE WILLIAM CARPENTERS leaving today via the airways for Acapulco (going south for the winter?) where they will stay at Las Brisas. This is that swank resort which has happily solved Mexico's transportation problem by furnishing the guests with pink and white jeeps, complete to candy-striped surrey tops. Shades of "Oklahoma!" — Now it's the jeep "with the fringe on top."

Clare De Lune Their Music Afloat

THE EDWIN TARANGERS who have sped their departing house guests on to Nassau, will take off for St. Petersburg Friday.

When they return, they'll board their new sailboat, Clare De Lune, (that "Clare" is for Clare Taranger), and set a course for Key West and the maiden voyage of their "all-mahogany" beauty with her 50-foot mast.

The Clare was built for the Tarangers during their European travels last summer when they visited Oslo, Norway.

SATURDAY AT GOVERNOR'S CLUB

Guild Polishing Opera Ball Plans

FORT LAUDERDALE — Final plans are being made for the annual Opera Ball to be given by the Opera Guild Saturday at the Governor's Club Hotel.

Mrs. S. J. Wilson and Mrs. Russell B. Carson head the social committee.

Invitations have been sent to patrons, sponsors and donors of the opera. This year's presentation will be "Rigoletto" Feb. 2 at War Memorial Auditorium.

Starring role will be taken by Patricia Cali, who will replace the German soprano, Erika Koeth, who canceled because of a heart ailment. Miss Cali, the former Nancy Firszt of Miami, changed her name and became a sensation in Italian opera. She will fly here from Milan for the role.

The ball, which begins at 9:30 p.m., will be climaxed by a midnight supper. Bill Goode's Orchestra will play for dancing.

Hostesses will be members of the social committee: Mrs. A. V. Moninger, Mrs. Victor D. Cannon, Mrs. Ray C. Qualmann, Mrs. R. R. Saunders, Mrs. John Wrather, Mrs. Harlow P. Davock, Mrs. Maxwell Baxter, Mrs. C. C. Winningham, Mrs. Harry O. Greep, Mrs. Alwen Neuharth and Mrs. Horace P. Robinson.

In the receiving line will be H. Charles Kersten, president of the Opera Guild, and Mrs. Kersten and vice presidents Raymond F. Gier and J. L. B. Weber with Mrs. Gier and Mrs. Weber.

Elaborate decor is being planned by Mrs. Kersten. Ball reservations are headed by Mrs. Moninger.

Holdup Youth With a Heart

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y.—(UPI)—Mrs. Vukosava Playsich told police a youth pulled her into a dark alley, but when she offered him $2 he told her to keep it; then he stopped her as she was hurrying to call police to return her eyeglasses.

Later, Mrs. Playsich discovered the would-be mugger had dropped his knife in her grocery bag.

'Mame' Worked For Thrift Shop

By MARY RUNYAN
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — The movie "Auntie Mame" has had its effect on members of the Junior Service League.

Wednesday they turned the home of Mrs. James B. Kerr, 1606 Lake Dr., into a theatrical setting and presented a satire on the movie as highlight of their annual rummage-tea, purpose of which was to increase the amount of good, wearable merchandise for the Junior League Thrift Shop.

Mrs. Linwood Cabot was chairman of the tea with Mrs. Ernest Phipps in charge of the fashion show, which included new merchandise to go on sale at the Thrift Shop at 10 this morning.

Auntie Mame (Mrs. Jack) Hansen was startling in Chinese red pajamas, while Auntie Mame's good friend, Vera (Mrs. Tom Berryhill), was true to form carrying an ice bag with her filmy white negligee. Mrs. Berryhill also sported a green velvet evening gown as another of her numbers.

Auntie Mame (Mrs. Marion) Lovejoy modeled gold lame and turquoise lounging pajamas. Mrs. Morton Weston played Auntie Mame in a grey suit in one act and wore a riding habit for another scene.

Mrs. Ernest Phipps wore a yellow chiffon gown and Mrs. Russell Fraser entranced the audience in a white Chantilly lace peignoir and negligee.

Mame (Mrs. Ed) Hart was gowned in black and white lace and Mrs. Lovejoy again appeared in beige taffeta.

Mrs. Cy Young's outfit was black velvet toreador pants, topped with a black sweater. Over this she wore a light blue hostess gown to depict Auntie Mame's black and blue period.

Roy Sanders Elected By Polish Alliance

FORT LAUDERDALE — The Polish National Alliance, Fort Lauderdale chapter, has elected Roy Sanders of Pompano Beach as its president for the year.

Other officers elected include Clara Clark, vice president; Mrs. Mary Tsyka, vice president; Jo Sloboda, treasurer; Walter Sokolowski, financial secretary; Sophi Kruszeski, recording secretary; Lester Sokolowski, sergeant-at-arms; and Walter A. Urban, publicity and activity chairman.

Installation will be at 5 p.m. Feb. 22 at the Knights of Columbus Hall, 333 SW 25th St.

Pilot Club Sets Show

FORT LAUDERDALE — The Pilot Club will present its dinner and variety show at 7 p.m. Tuesday at the Governor's Club Hotel.

The Little Theater will give a sketch and Riva Arden will commentate the show, which will feature a singer, guitarist, a monologist and a showing of this season's latest hair fashions.

The Dancing Alexanders Present 'Jubilee' Friday

FORT LAUDERDALE — Bambi Linn and Rod Alexander will present their famous "Dance Jubilee" at 8:30 p.m. Friday at War Memorial Auditorium under auspices of Community Concert Association, formerly Civic Music Association.

Stars of the Ed Sullivan Show, Your Show of Shows, the Steve Allen Show and the Arthur Murray Dance Party, Miss Linn and Alexander are taking time out from their television whirl to make a nationwide tour. They have been rated in a television poll as the country's favorite dance couple.

This marks their first concert tour, in which they will appear in 100 cities. Their program, subtitled "Minstrel Days to Swingtime," reviews the American dance pattern of many decades. They will also offer their impressions of unforgettable dance teams such as Vernon and Irene Castle, Marilyn Miller and Jack Donahue, and Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers.

The group's entertainment ranges from the tap dance, clog dance and cake walk of minstrel shows and vaudeville days up to the present.

The stars of the all-American show were both born and trained in this country. Miss Linn hails from Brooklyn. Trained by Agnes De Mille, she made her Broadway debut in "Oklahoma!" She moved on to stardom as the little girl in "Carousel" in New York and London. She appeared in an American Repertory Theater production of "Alice in Wonderland," starred as Sally opposite the late Willie Howard, and took a leading role in the Broadway musical "Great to Be Alive." In the latter, Rod Alexander played opposite her.

After the musical in which they danced together, they were married in 1950 and joined forces as a dance team. With their infant daughter Belinda, they live (between engagements) near Westport, Conn.

Two Artists Exhibit Work in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD—Art fanciers have a choice of two exhibits this week.

Portraits by Marguerite Geyer noted illustrator of children's books, are on display at the Hollywood Public Library.

Paintings in oil, pastel and water color are by Milla Harrison, portrait painter of Fort Lauderdale, are on exhibit at First National Bank.

Mrs. Harrison's work will be shown through Jan. 30. Mrs. Geyer's exhibit will run until Friday.

Daisy Maes at LHS Ready Pocketbooks for Sadie Hawkins Day

By MARY RUNYAN
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — "Put on your track shoes, men, and head for the hills, else you may have to unsheathe ye olde blow gun to stand off the foe."

So says Vicki Fuhrer, in her reminder that Sadie Hawkins Day is approaching.

The traditional twirp season at Lauderdale High, according to Vicki and Barb Roman, opens Monday.

During the ensuing two weekends, Daisy Maes will do their courting. They'll foot the bills, provide the transportation, and may even send a nosegay of turnip greens, string beans and cauliflower buds to the boys of their choice.

The Navigator staff is sponsoring a stomp 'n chomp as initiation of festivities Jan. 31. At 6:30 p.m. Abners will be whisked by motor caravan from LHS to the Davie Community Hall. After a chicken barbecue, country style, a preacher will supply twirp marriage certificates and the "Rovers" will tune up their fiddles for dance music.

The Juniorettes' annual pizza party will precede the Key Club-sponsored Sadie Hawkins dance Feb. 6, which will climax the stint and promises to be a real barn burner. Kick-a-poo juice will be served from a jug and once again the Abners will have an opportunity to crosscheck their stag line ratings. Prizes will be given for the best costumes.

And, if all this isn't enough, there are a few basketball games during twirp season too.

TEENS TALKING

Lauderdale High's teen of the week is Senior VINCENT ANTONIELLI. Vince is the 1959 winner of the Bausch and Lomb Science Award Medal. He also is a semifinalist in the National Merit Scholarship exam and is eligible for the National Honor Society scholarship. He is a member of the Honor Society at LHS.

CAN - CAN DANCERS at McArthur's minstrel show last week turned out to be male students, while many of the teachers were featured as soloists, reports Sue Pansa.

The show was sponsored by the McArthur ~~High~~ band, with proceeds marked for the band uniform fund.

McArthurites have had their fill of candy lately. The junior class had a sell-out last week when they peddled candy to make money for their class projects.

REX PLACE is McArthur's student of the week. He plays varsity football and basketball and is a member of the Key Club. He was chosen for the honor on the basis of his scholastic and athletic ability.

SOUTH BROWARD meladeers and choraleers have started student auditions for their musical comedy, "Tulip Time," to be presented April 2-4 in cooperation with the annual Fiesta Tropicale at the Hollywood band shell.

Rita Mannheim reports that the Polar Bear Club (that's the swim team's new name) has been breaking the ice, so to speak, in 60 degree waters this week in preparation for its Feb. 4 meet.

Among famous people at SBHS is Eddie DeMuzzio. Eddie saved five people at the Dania Beach last summer and will be presented a gold medal at an affair to be staged Tuesday by the Boy Scouts at the McAllister Hotel in Miami.

Faculty members beat the Wheel Club in a heated basketball game this week by a score of 31-21.

ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS

Notice is hereby given that SEALED BIDS will be received by THE BOARD OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION of Broward County, Florida, at the County Superintendent's Office (Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction of Broward County, Florida), in the School Administration Building, 1320 S. W. 4th Street, Fort Lauderdale, Florida, up to 2:00 p.m., the 11th day of February, 1959, for all materials and labor necessary for the construction of Pompano Beach High School, 1400 N. E. 4th Street, Pompano Beach, Florida.

Plans and specifications may be obtained at the office of the Director of Schoolhouse Planning, School Administration Building, 1320 S. W. 4th Street, Fort Lauderdale, Florida, upon the deposit of $100.00 for each set of plans. Said deposit on the first set of plans will be returned to the contractor upon the return of the plans and specifications in good condition within ten days after the opening of bids, providing that said contractor has presented the Board of Public Instruction with a bona fide bid. For each additional set of plans and specifications, a portion of the deposit in the amount of $25.00 may be returned, the remainder used to offset the cost of printing of the plans.

Each bid shall be accompanied by a Certified Check or Bid Bond in the amount of 5% of the bid, payable to the Board of Public Instruction of Broward County, Florida, as evidence of good faith and guaranteeing that the successful bidder will execute and furnish to the Board of Public Instruction of Broward County, Florida, a bond issued by a Surety Company approved by the U. S. Treasury Department and licensed to do business in Florida, for 100% of the contract price, said bond being conditioned for both performance and payment, within ten (10) days after being awarded the contract, said bond guaranteeing the performance of said contract; the premium of said bond to be paid by the said contractor.

All bids should be placed in an envelope, sealed, and addressed to The Board of Public Instruction, Broward County, Florida, in care of County Superintendent, 1320 S. W. 4th Street, Fort Lauderdale, Florida, and the name of the project should be placed on the outside of the envelope and words indicating that the envelope contains a bid for said project. Should the bid be mailed in, the sealed envelope containing the bid and so marked shall be placed inside another envelope to be delivered by registered mail.

The contractor will be required to build and complete said project within the time set forth in the special conditions.

The successful bidder, if any, will be notified within five (5) days after the bid is accepted. No bid may be withdrawn after the scheduled closing time for Receipt of Bids for thirty (30) days.

The Board of Public Instruction of Broward County, Florida, reserves the right to reject any and all bids, and to waive any informalities.

They Keep Track Dogs Running

By DICK MEYER
Herald Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD—If Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Webb ever appear on the television show "Masquerade Party" they would be disguised as a couple of bunnies.

Hollywood Kennel Club employes and habitues know them as the "bunny man" and the "bunny woman."

Eddie has operated the track's mechanical lure rabbit since the plant opened in 1934, and his missus makes the bunnies which he sends skipping along the inner rail of the oval.

She uses three rabbit pelts supplied by a New York furrier to fashion a fake cottontail, and does the job up fancy with a zipper on the tummy for secure fitting on the wire frame of the lure arm.

The bunny is replaced several times during the season, as it becomes dirty and a bit frayed. It can be laundered, but generally is presented to some youngster to doll up a bedroom.

Away from the track, the "dog bait" becomes "cute," for it is not unlike a big Easter bunny.

"When I go to the races, I watch 'my' bunny instead of the dogs," Mrs. Webb said.

Dogmen confide that the greyhounds would chase a bunny-less lure arm, for it's the whirring sound that excites the speedsters.

So the rabbit is for the fans, rather than for the dogs.

But Mr. Rabbit adds a dash of color to "the sport of queens." Anyway, in the days before mechanical lures, dogs chased live rabbits down a straightaway course, so some tradition could be involved.

Webb concedes that highstrung dogs would run without any lure, but that the gimmick keeps them going at constant rather than periodic full speed.

In a generation of lure operating at Hollywood, Eddie figures he's seen "nothing but the lead dog's nose."

He keeps the rabbit two posts (16 feet) ahead of the leader—close enough so the dogs see and hear it, but not too far away so that they lose interest in the gadget.

"I can't bet," Eddie said, "for then I probably would be watching my dog back in the pack instead of the leader."

The lure can go 60 miles an hour, so if Webb stays alert, it won't be caught. The dogs break from their box doing about 55, but average about 38 for the full trip.

Power failures generally have been responsible for the times the dogs have caught the lure. They paw at it a bit, scuffing the fur, but customarily return no sustained interest in the "catch."

Since the 1948 Hollywood Derby was canceled because of a mechanical blowout, the lure mechanism has had a double motor. If one fails, the other carries the load. The track has its own power plant.

One gets the impression Webb gets a bigger charge running his rabbit than he did operating an electric train when he was a kid.

The train didn't provide guffaws such as on two occasions when dogs caught the bunny.

Once, a dog was too smart for the racing bit. He left the racing strip and cut across the infield to lay in wait for the rabbit at the far end of the track.

The other time, a pup slipped at the first turn, and in becoming confused after regaining his footing ran toward the finish line in a wrong-way-Corrigan style dash.

At the head of the stretch, the skipping rabbit bore down on him; its electric motor whirring like a blast-off at the cape.

The dog turned tail and raced the other way—beating the rabbit across the finish marker.

Net Tourney Deadline Is Jan. 31

FORT LAUDERDALE — Entry deadline for the 15th Annual Austin Smith Tennis Tournament is 6 p.m. Jan. 31.

Play will be in five divisions —men's, women's and senior's singles, and men's and senior's doubles.

The Parks and Recreation Department again will sponsor the tourney, to be decided Feb. 2-8 at Holiday Park.

Golf Pros To Speak

POMPANO BEACH—Women Golf Pros Patty Berg, Mickey Wright and Betsy Rawls will conduct a links clinic here Saturday beginning at 2 p.m.

Their Pompano Beach Country Club appearance will include a nine-hole exhibition round, with city gal's champ Phyllis (Tish) Preuss completing the foursome.

The clinic will be sponsored by a sporting goods firm.

Ex-Flying L's To See Game, Spur on Team

FORT LAUDERDALE — A "reunion" of former Fort Lauderdale High basketball players Tuesday night is meant to inspire the Flying L cagers to maximum effort as they host North Miami.

The current FLHS basketball edition has a lackluster 1-5 record, so Coach Hal Hayes figures it's a good time to revive the memory of championship Blue and White teams, and perhaps in so doing to bolster the '59 quintet.

Athletic Director Clois Caldwell said that anybody who played on an "L" varsity cage team is invited to attend the North Miami game without charge, sit in a special section with other "old L's" and partake of post-game refreshments in the school cafeteria.

Hayes is working his boys on methods to improve their percentage of field goal and free throws. So far, the L's have hit on only 105 of 321 FG tries, and on 87 of 143 charity tosses. Stan wood is the leading rebounder with 63, but other players are far behind this total.

The individual breakdown:

PLAYER	FG-FGA	FT-FTA	Pts.
Moore	32-75	25-35	89
Roberts	17-42	20-30	54
Starr	6-26	8-17	20

Speedway to Roar Again Saturday

HOLLYWOOD —The recent cold spell is bringing one carryover benefit.

Stock car drivers didn't welcome having recent Hollywood Speedway programs frozen out, but the layoff (since Jan. 3) has given them time to tool their cars into top running condition.

The wheelman and their autos are ready to get the green flag Saturday night. A seven-event card is set.

The 30-lap feature will bring onto the track such heavy-footed speed boys as Bobby Johns, Al Gorham, Red Farmer, Roddy Perry, Freddie Sweikert, Whitey Hoben and Bill Ludwig.

Three races are on the amateur portion of the slate, and a 15-lapper for jalopy pilots will get things under way at 8:15.

It's Feb. 5-8

Kiwanians Line Up Boat, Sports Show

FORT LAUDERDALE — Details of the Downtown Kiwanians' sixth annual Boat and Sports Show, Feb. 5-8, will be "Broken down" Tuesday at a luncheon meeting for show officials, exhibitors and press and radio representatives.

A special meeting for exhibitors will follow the luncheon at the Governor's Club Hotel.

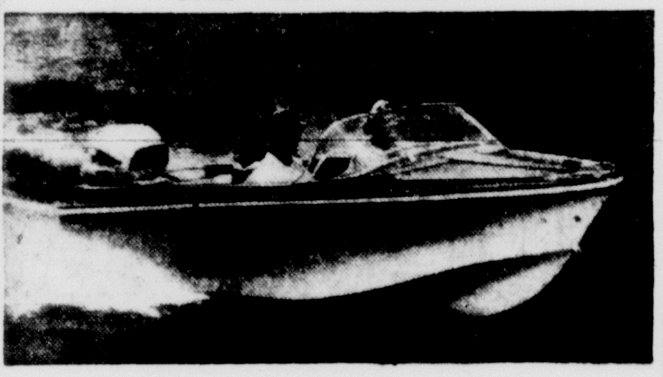
Kiwanians will summarize their work on behalf of underprivileged children which was supported by funds raised from the 1958 show. The four-day event supports club charities.

This year's War Memorial Auditorium program will tie in with Safe Boating Week, as proclaimed by Mayor John V. Russell.

The week's nautical activity will shove off Feb. 1, with a planned 200-boat parade in the Intracoastal Waterway between the Brook Memorial Causeway and Dania Mar. Decorated craft will vie for prizes in three divisions of the early afternoon spectacle.

The parade is being organized by Kiwanians, the Coast Guard Auxiliary and the Fort Lauderdale Power Squadron.

Glasspar
THE NEW TRIDENT



Glasspar's swift TRIDENT is the champion of the company's versatile fleet. The TRIDENT for 1959 has enough leg and elbow room for the entire family, yet is small enough for easy trailing and launching.

The TRIDENT is all fiberglas, putting the owner in the "10 minutes a month" maintenance class. There is little power-wasting spray and drag about the slick craft. It has been built to be steered and turned with finger-tip control.

The TRIDENT is available in Seafoam green, Signal red, Reef blue, Smuggler's gold, black and white. Hull and deck colors may be selected in any combination.

Fabulous DeMille Dies at 77

Highlights, Career, 2C

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. —(AP)— Cecil Blount DeMille, a founder of the Hollywood film industry and the most successful of all movie makers, died of a heart attack Wednesday at 77.

It was the third serious heart attack for the producer-director, whose name became a symbol of flamboyant films. He suffered the first in Egypt in November 1954, during location scenes for his last great Biblical epic, "The Ten Commandments." He refused doctors' advice to stop the film, saying, "I'll continue working until God wants me to quit."

Last June he suffered another attack. But in December he undertook a strenuous tour to exploit the last film he supervised, "The Buccaneer." The end came at 5:30 a.m. at his Hollywood home with his daughter Cecilia and her husband, Joseph Harper, at his bedside.

DeMille's wife for 57 years, also in ill health, was not immediately told of his death. But friends said she had sensed something was wrong.

The filmland titan died at the peak of a 45-year history in films. His second making of "The Ten Commandments" was just overtaking "Gone With the Wind" as the biggest money-maker of all time.

His other movies—"Greatest Show on Earth," "Samson and Delilah," "The Unconquered," etc.—were huge successes.

He was proud that his version of the Christ story, "The King of Kings," has been showing somewhere in the world every day since it was released in 1927.

He never won an Oscar for direction. The academy, perhaps in recognition of his great record, finally named "The Greatest Show on Earth" the best picture of 1952.

DeMille's death leaves Samuel Goldwyn the sole survivor of the famous triumvirate who started Hollywood in the big-time back in 1912.

DeMille was born Aug. 12, 1881, at Ashfield, Mass., of a Dutch family that came to America in 1658. His father was a schoolteacher turned playwright who introduced his sons to the theater world.

Cecil started as an actor and in 1902 married a fellow member of the E. H. Sothern troupe, Constance Adams. They had four children: Mrs. Harper, Mrs. Anthony Quinn, John and Richard DeMille. There are 13 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

The family announced that the funeral will be held Friday at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church in Hollywood. Private interment will follow in a $250,000 mausoleum DeMille built in Hollywood cemetery in 1953.

Ike Gets Housing 'Dare'

Veto Will Fail, Lawmaker Says

By FREDERIC SHERMAN
Herald Real Estate Editor

CHICAGO—President Eisenhower is going to get the chance to veto the biggest housing bill in the history of this country.

That was the challenge thrown at the White House Wednesday by Rep. Albert Rains of Alabama in a fiery speech to the National Association of Home Builders. He predicted Congress will override Ike's expected veto of a bill providing almost two billion dollars in special aid for housing and urban renewal.

Rains had been scheduled to talk about the problems of financing community facilities in mushrooming suburban areas. But he whipped the builders into rounds of applause with an attack on Republican Party leaders who are pushing for Ike's balanced budget.

"I read in the papers that I'm one of the big Democratic spenders in Washington because I want a decent house for every American family under the private enterprise system," Rains said.

Applause exploded through the ornate ballroom of the Conrad Hilton Hotel.

Rains accused the White House of trying to balance the budget at the expense of programs that have become a part of the nation's growth.

Mr. Eisenhower wants to hand back to the cities the responsibility for urban renewal, flood control and a dozen other important programs. But you don't hear the White House talking about turning back some of the federal tax sources to the cities," Rains said.

Rains told the builders he doesn't believe in government housing and this was worth loud applause. But the Alabama congressman followed with the gambit of his old log cabin school that didn't have electricity. You guessed it. It had a pine knot fire just like the one Abraham Lincoln studied by.

"It took TVA and REA to bring in electricity under the same kind of government help that I am asking for housing," he said. "The White House keeps saying we can't afford it. But those people in high places don't seem to understand the difference between spending and housing programs that don't cost the government a cent."

A bill Rains introduced last week provides 500 million dollars in special assistance to support mortgage prices. It includes the same amount for college housing loans, 1½ billion over three years for outright grants to the cities for slum clearance and urban renewal and 200 million in direct loans for housing for the elderly.

"I have great personal admiration for the President, but it is obvious he is beginning to believe his campaign speeches. If he stops the housing industry this year he will bring a terrible depression down on this country," Rains concluded in a storm of applause.

Tito Arrives In Ceylon

COLOMBO —(AP)— President Tito of Yugoslavia arrived in Ceylon Wednesday on the last stop of his tour of so-called neutral Asian countries.

Tito was to meet Premier Solomon Bandaranaike later for talks on the international situation. They are expected to reaffirm their abstention from alignment with both the Communist and Western power blocs.

Atlas Death Witnessed In Pacific

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. —(AP)— The flaming death-plunge of America's biggest satellite apparently was witnessed from two places in the Pacific, the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory said Wednesday.

The observatory said it had received what appeared to be "very reliable" reports from the naval station on Guam and from the Navy cruiser Rochester which was in the Guam area.

The 4½-ton satellite that broadcast President Eisenhower's Christmas peace message was launched Dec. 18 from Cape Canaveral, Fla.

Smithsonian officials said they received a radio message from Guam that a "fiery red comet" had been observed streaking through the sky at 9:10 a.m.

The skipper of the USS Rochester radioed that a "possible Atlas sighting" had been made at about 9:08 a.m.

Both these times would be near midnight Wednesday night, Guam time.

Cubans Cheer Castro Pledge That Executions Won't Stop

By Herald Wire Services

HAVANA, Cuba — Fidel Castro told a wildly-cheering crowd of Cubans Wednesday that the new regime will revise or wipe out burdensome foreign concessions granted by the fallen Batista dictatorship.

In a fiery speech, the rebel chief made it clear he will continue with the execution of Batista "assassins and torturers."

Estimates of the crowd ranged from 500,000 to one million. The massive turnout was all the more impressive in view of the fact that the total population of all of Cuba is just under six million.

As Castro spoke to the record crowd gathered before Havana's Presidential Palace, reports from interior cities said at least 22 more Batista followers had been cut down by military firing squads, bringing to an estimated 250 the total of those reported executed since the overthrow of Fulgencio Batista on New Year's Day.

The bearded rebel leader said his victorious revolutionary movement had been made the target of the "most infamous, the most criminal campaign ever launched against a people."

He blamed the campaign on foreign business interests because "they know that we are going to ask for the cancellation of all the onerous concessions made to foreign interests" by the Batista government.

Castro's first appearance on the scene was from a helicopter which flew over the crowd and the palace to land on Zayas Park, on the other side of the palace from the crowd. Those who recognized him from the ground broke into wild cheering.

Cubans of all ranks and ages had poured through downtown Havana streets and into the "People's Square" facing the palace to acclaim Castro and endorse his wholesale execution of "war criminals" of the toppled Batista dictatorship.

Among those who heard Castro were two U.S. congressmen and 46 American newsmen, as well as journalists from other countries who were invited here to witness Wednesday's demonstration and the next series of "war crimes" trials. The two congressmen were Rep. Charles O. Porter (D., Ore.) and Rep. Adam Clayton Powell (D., N.Y.).

The invitations were extended after snowballing criticism, particularly in the U.S., that the swift rebel trials and executions were a "bloodbath" with no legal basis.

Castro was greeted by a deafening ovation when he appeared on the speakers rostrum at 5 p.m. The start of his address was delayed several minutes by the thunderous acclaim.

Describing the Cuban crowd as a "jury of one million men and women, of all social classes, of all religions, of all political creeds." Castro asked that "those who are in accord with our justice raise their hands."

The huge crowd raised hands as one man and another tremendous cheer rang out.

Castro then said, "Gentlemen, representatives of the diplomatic corps, newspapermen from all over the continent: a jury of one million Cubans of all ideas and social classes has voted. Let those democrats, or those who call themselves democrats, say if this is not indeed democracy,

Long Wait in Hot Sun

He Packed 'em In-- And Scores Fainted

By JAMES BUCHANAN

HAVANA, Cuba — Fidel Castro played to a packed plaza Wednesday.

And he wasn't giving away a thing.

In fact, he kept half a million people waiting in the hot sun for three hours just to tell him he'd been right all along.

They told him, too, in no uncertain terms that they wanted the new Cuban government to go on trying and killing war criminals.

They came from the length and breadth of the island to fill the four-block-long plaza in front of the Presidential Palace.

And they overflowed into every side street and the park behind the palace, and filled every rooftop and balcony within a two-block area of the speaker's platform.

I believe there were 500,000 people answering Castro's call for a show of faith in the new regime.

They arrived loaded with banners and placards saying "Death to the Traitors," and "Kill Now — Not Later."

There were many in English, some proclaiming "Cuban

Port Unit Tosses Out Insurance

More Broward News On 1B, 7C

By ART ROBINSON
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE—The Port Board Wednesday voted to toss out a policy written by the former Republican insurance counselor and call for bids on a new one.

Robert S. McConnaughey, board vice chairman, told the board he had been advised the premium charged for the $750,000 excess liability policy "was high, possibly exorbitant."

It was written by Gerald F. Richardson in December before the new board took over. McConnaughey said the Port Authority had not approved the premium and he raised the question as to whether the policy was in force.

"All that we have here at the port is a cover note," he said. "I don't know whether we're insured or not. We don't have the policy."

Chairman E. J. Crowells reminded the board the whole matter of the handling of insurance by the previous Port Board "is now before the Grand Jury."

"It's possible they may get lower bids," Richardson said when informed of the Port Authority's action, "but I'll be surprised. I didn't think the premium was high."

He said the port has been and is now covered. The policy has only recently been delivered to his office, he added.

Among other business, the commission:

VOTED to send Port Manager R. T. Spangler, Attorney Ted Cabot and McConnaughey to Washington when it becomes advisable to work for inclusion of a $1,650,000 appropriation in the federal budget for enlargement and deepening of the turning basin and channel.

Forecast: Rain, Sleet And Snow

Ice Knocks Out Power Lines

CHICAGO — (UPI) — Winter's worst storm chased thousands of persons from flood-threatened homes and buried the mid-continent under blizzard snows Wednesday.

The vast storm, ranging from the Rockies to the Appalachians, also sent tornadoes racing through the Southland. A sub-zero cold wave moved into the Plains as the snows dwindled.

The U.S. Weather Bureau predicted more severe winter weather from the Great Lakes to the Middle Gulf States. In the North, the forecast was for more snow, sleet and freezing rains.

In the South, warnings of thunderstorms and possible tornadoes hung over parts of Tennessee, Georgia, the western Carolinas, southeast Kentucky and southern Virginia.

High waters forced 2,500 of the 16,000 residents of Mount Vernon, Ohio, from their homes, flooded the state Capitol of Columbus, created a state of emergency at Sharon, Pa., and closed highways in southern Indiana. Buffalo, N.Y., motorists abandoned their cars in the flooded streets.

From New Mexico to Indiana, Westerners and Midwesterners struggled to dig out of foot-deep snows. Schools, factories and roads were closed through nine states and traffic in the big cities of Kansas City, St. Louis, Dallas and Chicago became paralyzed.

Ice knocked out the power in scores of Midwest towns. At Decatur, Ill., the Red Cross set up shelter for an expected 2,500 persons driven from their homes because of power and water failures.

The Southland took its storm in the form of tornadoes which powered their way through Kentucky, Mississippi, Alabama and Tennessee.

A fast-moving twister smashed Caneyville, Ky., and Kentucky State Police said they had reports of at least one person killed or seriously injured, plus heavy damage. Two more persons were reported injured by high winds which hit the Fort Knox area. The highway between Elizabethtown, Ky., and Caneyville was blocked.

New Chill On the Way

A cold weather system moving in from the Gulf of Mexico promised to end Florida's warm weather respite today with a resurgence of temperatures ranging below the freezing point.

The weather bureau Wednesday night predicted a mercury drop of 25 to 35 degrees by midday today in extreme northwest Florida.

Forecasters said that by tonight all Florida would feel the chilly brunt of the new cold snap to some extent.

They said temperatures would be below freezing in North Florida and near freezing in the state's citrus-growing central portion by Friday morning, with sub-freezing temperatures in most of the state Saturday morning.

Shallow, But Too Deep for Them

Gusher Was a Real Gasser!

TULSA, Okla. — (UPI) — The Sooner State Drilling and Producing Co. of Coleman, Tex., recently brought in the world's shallowest oil well, a healthy 4,000-barrel-an-hour gusher in southern Oklahoma—at a depth of 2½ feet.

Unfortunately, the well nine miles east of Bretch, Okla., had to be abandoned soon after it came in.

The well sprayed over the top of the rig and continued to flow at the rate of more than 4,000 barrels an hour, until it was choked off 40 minutes later.

There was no fire, no damage to drilling rig and no crew injuries. About 2,700 barrels of oil were recovered, most of which flowed into an adjacent slush pit.

All was going like clockwork when suddenly the happy smiles on the faces of the drillers turned to frowns, then astonishment, and finally horror.

What caused the consternation was the unhappy discovery that the oil was coming from a 16-inch pipeline, owned by the Service Pipe Line Co., of Tulsa.

The line was repaired and the rig moved for another try.

'Recalled for Consultations'

Didn't 'Flee' Cuba, Says Envoy Rubirosa

Special To The Herald

CIUDAD TRUJILLO — Porfirio Rubirosa, the Dominican Don Juan, diplomat and sometime sports car racer, arrived here Wednesday afternoon from Cuba via Miami for diplomatic consultations.

He spoke of politics, Havana, and racing — but of women — no.

Accompanying Rubirosa was his beauteous young, French actress wife. And the suave diplomat, whose amours brought him more of an international reputation than his diplomatic skill, deftly spoke of politics, yet managed to court his lovely wife.

The great Latin lover, who has been representing his country in Cuba, denied that he was on thin standing with the Castro government and fled Cuba because Batista fell.

"I have no trouble with the new government in Havana.

"I enjoy my assignment there and see no reason why I would not return to Havana."

Mrs. Rubirosa, his fifth wife, kept holding hands with her husband and exchanging romantic glances with him while he discussed politics.

She also had with her a woven basket which contained a trio of Chihuahuas which she petted occasionally. And when she wasn't holding onto Porfirio, she was clinging to a nine-inch Raggedy Ann cloth doll.

Asked if he planned to do any more sports car racing, Rubirosa looked at his wife and said:

"No. I will do no more. I am too busy, and besides . . ." The words trailed off but he glanced at his wife.

An excellent reason to surrender racing.

PAA Talks Recess: No Strike Set

Contract negotiations between Pan American World Airways and the Transport Workers Union were recessed in New York Wednesday, but a union official said no date has been set for a strike of some 8,000 PAA employes.

"We will resume the negotiations on Friday," William Grogan, international vice president of the TWU, told The Herald by telephone.

He said the contract talks have not been terminated and that "there is no real significance" to postponement of negotiations over a new contract.

"We're just coasting for a day or so," Grogan said. "There are a number of issues on which we have not reached agreement."

Some 3,000 of the PAA workers involved are in Miami and 1,500 are at the missile base at Cape Canaveral.

Eastern Air Lines, meanwhile, announced formal signing of a contract with the Air Lines Stewards and Stewardesses Association. An Eastern spokesman said the new contract, effective through Jan. 31, 1960, provides more pay and improved working conditions for Eastern's 1,400 flight attendants.

Biggest issue in the talks between Pan American, the TWU and a federal negotiator is the union demand for a cut in weekly working hours from 40 to 37½.

"Strike standby" telegrams already have been sent to union members at all PAA installations, but Grogan refused to speculate on whether or when a strike will be called.

He said that if the present talks break off altogether, the government will offer arbitration to each side before a strike is called.

TV Tower Falls, Kills 1, Hurts 2

LEXINGTON, Ky. —(AP)— A 600-foot television tower toppled onto WLEX-TV station Wednesday killing a receptionist and injuring two other persons.

Fred Gregg, owner of Radio Station WLAP in Lexington, said the huge steel tower almost cut the building in half.

The tower collapsed when an old 300-foot tower fell cutting the guide lines to the 600-foot structure.

"The big tower whipped around in the wind and then fell directly across the center of the station," Gregg said.

The dead woman was identified as Mrs. Susan Grazley, who had been working at WLEX-TV for about three or four months.

Mrs. Nita Wash, bookkeeper at the station, and an unidentified man who was standing in front of the building were injured and taken to the hospital.

which hit Yokena, Miss., near Vicksburg. Wind damage was estimated at $100,000 at Adamsville, Tenn.; a twister swept away a 300-foot highway patrol tower at Lawrenceburg, Tenn., and more tornadoes wrecked buildings near Eva and Cullman, Ala.

Cold-wave fires killed at least 18 persons, 15 of them children.

National Guard troops moved into Mount Vernon to aid in this mass evacuation caused by a 3.69-inch downpour. The flood's first victim was a 17-year old boy who drowned trying to leap from the front porch of his flooded home to a truck pulling away.

Boats and ambulances were used to remove the sick from a 10-block area at Lima, Ohio, which was under water.

The Coast Guard, meanwhile, evacuated 25 persons stranded on the west channel of Rocky River near Cleveland, and authorities sent a distress call to a National Guard armory for amphibious tanks to rescue families in the Cleveland suburb of Eastlake. Ice chunks on the flooding Rocky River were two feet thick and as big as a room.

At Columbus, the worst flood in 23 years on the Scioto and Olentangy Rivers drove hundreds from their homes. Gov. Michael V. DiSalle alerted the National Guard and Highway Department to be ready for new emergencies.

In northwest Pennsylvania, Sharon Mayor Michael J. Dunn declared a state of emergency after the Shenango River poured into downtown stores. The Civil Defense and extra police were called out.

In southern Indiana, rains measuring up to 5.13 inches deep sent flood waters swirling over highways. School buses couldn't get through the floods in Jackson, Washington, Scott and Wayne counties, and a Decatur county teacher, Mrs. Anna Walke, 43, was rescued by boat after spending more than two hours in a car which had been swept into Salt Creek flood waters.

Chicago endured freezing rain and more snow in the wake of an overnight storm which dumped almost a foot of snow. More than 200 schools closed down in the Chicago area.

In Missouri, drifts were seven feet deep at Chillicothe, all public and parochial schools closed in storm-swept Kansas City along with some factories, and power went out for 40,000 persons in a St. Louis suburb.

Hundreds of snowbound schools were closed across Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Iowa, Michigan, Kansas, Colorado and Oklahoma.

Sun Fells Scores at Rally

Mothers Demand Death to Avenge Their Sons."

Those who held their signs in the air at 2 p.m. when Castro was scheduled to appear, couldn't put them down until 6:45 p.m. when the rally finally broke up.

They couldn't because they were packed in shoulder-to-shoulder and hip-to-hip.

Castro, who may be the most public relations-conscious national leader today, goofed on this rally.

He told his people to be on hand at 2 p.m., but didn't show up until 3:30 p.m. and didn't begin speaking until after 4:30 p.m.

In the meantime, he gave them no music or other entertainment. Just a hot sun that boiled tempers which grew hotter as the wait grew longer.

Women fainted by the score and were fanned back into consciousness standing up — unable to fall.

Women who fainted were passed overhead to the edge of the crowd, then taken by stretcher to first aid tents.

At one point, a big pushing movement began a block away from the speaker's stand. It was like watching a good breeze blow waves through a field of wheat.

When the surge hit the edge of the crowd, people went down like ten-pins.

Castro made what was for him a short appearance. He spoke for only an hour and a half.

At one point in his speech, a shapely young Cuban girl in the revolutionary attire of a tight red sweater and black skirt was passed over the heads of the crowd, apparently in a dead faint. Her body moved from hand to hand and went directly beneath and in front of Castro as if she were some living offering to a pagan god.

Once past the rebel leader, however, she quickly came to life and began slapping at a rescuer who was too free with his hands.

The rebel troops which handled Batista's army had more trouble with the Cubanos of Havana. The army buttressed its blockade around the speaker's platform with tanks and trucks, but when Castro appeared the people crawled over them and ended up directly under his nose.

Castro wasn't the only one who learned the Cubans were satisfied with the way the executions are going. Every U.S. and Latin American newsman was button-holed on the street and told why it was necessary to kill the men who themselves had killed and tortured.

The people's stories are too simple to have been made up for propaganda, and the pictures mothers show you of what happened to their sons couldn't have been faked.

There is no doubt in the mind of anyone who saw the demonstration Wednesday that the Cubans believe the quick execution of their war criminals is necessary and just.

Perhaps by U.S. standards the justice comes too quickly.

The Cubans themselves believe a firing squad is too quick. But they believe they are more humane in killing quickly than in torturing their prisoners for hours and days as they and their families were tortured by Batista.

Wife of Herald Executive

Mrs. A. J. Gucker, Civic Worker, Dies

Mrs. Virginia Gucker, 47, wife of Arthur J. Gucker, business manager of The Miami Herald, died Tuesday. She had been in ill health for about two years.

Mrs. Virginia Gucker

. . . dies at 47

A resident of Miami 17 years, she had been active in social and civic affairs. She was a member of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, Miami Woman's Club, the Bath Club and the Miami Shores Country Club.

She was a leader in the annual Easter Lily Balls, sponsored to aid the Crippled Children's Society.

Graduated from Southern Junior College, Chattanooga, Tenn., she was the widow of Kingsley A. Shaw when she moved to Miami from Gainesville.

She and Mr. Gucker were married in February, 1947.

After living in Miami Shores throughout their married life, they moved recently to a new home at 550 Melaleuca Ave., Bay Point.

Mrs. Gucker continued to be as active as possible until her death.

On Dec. 20, she insisted that the annual Christmas party for her young daughter, Mary Anne, must be held as usual. Friends did much of the work in arranging it, but she watched the festivities from a chair as 10-year-old Mary and 20 friends made the house bright with holiday gaiety.

And then she was able to observe Christmas at home with her family — an important thing to her.

Survivors include two daughters, Mary Anne, at home, and Mrs. E. Bruce Capper, III, Dallas; one brother, Jesse Burts, Jr., Miami; her mother, Mrs. T. Finley Cato, Miami, and one grandson.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Friday in Van Orsdel Northside Mortuary, 3333 NE Second Ave., with private interment in Southern Memorial Park.

U.S. Envoy Switched to Cuban Post

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Philip W. Bonsal, a career diplomat, was nominated by President Eisenhower Wednesday to be the new ambassador to Cuba.

BONSAL

Bonsal, now ambassador to Bolivia, succeeds Earl E. T. Smith, who resigned Jan. 10—a few days after the forces of Fidel Castro overthrew the government of Fulgencio Batista.

Smith had been criticized by the Castro forces as having been favorable to the Batista government.

Bonsal became ambassador to Bolivia in 1957. He served previously as ambassador to Colombia. Bonsal, 55, has been in the State Department since 1938.

Gov. Egan Still 'Desperately Ill'

SEATTLE, Wash. —(UPI)— Gov. William A. Egan of Alaska remained in critical condition Wednesday in his 50-50 fight for life.

Baker, chief of surgery at Virginia Mason Hospital here, performed a two-hour emergency operation on Egan Tuesday to remove an intestinal block.

if this is not indeed respecting the will of the people."

Earlier, Castro had unleashed an attack on those who had criticized the actions of the revolutionary government but had remained silent about the evils of the Batista dictatorship:

"While the tyrant lived in this palace, who sold the interests of the country and granted the most onerous concessions to the foreigners, no one attacked him, no press campaign was carried out against him abroad, no congressional voices were raised to accused him."

Castro won another cheer from the mass of humanity before him when he asked if they approved of his recommendation of his brother, Raul, as second-in-command of the revolution to succeed him if he should be killed.

Virtually all normal activities ceased in Havana at 11 a.m. to allow the crowd to gather before the palace.

Castro spoke for an hour and 25 minutes. It was one of his shortest speeches.

He was followed by Provisional President Manuel Urrutia, who said he would seek changes in laws on international asylum so "dictators and collaborators" could not take refuge in foreign embassies.

After Urrutia's brief talk, the huge crowds before the palace began dispersing.

National Summary

The vicious winter storm in the midwest spread its effects throughout the eastern half of the country.

The low center moving slowly northward through eastern Indiana was gaining force as warm moist air from the Gulf continued to stream into the pattern.

Heavy rains ahead of the system broke records with a band of thunderstorms from the southern Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico.

Tornadoes were reported in the northern half of Mississippi and Alabama and into central Kentucky.

One band of most violent weather was moving across Ohio, Tennessee and into eastern Alabama while the storms associated with the sharpest drop in temperatures were along the front that stretched from the low center to Cincinnati, Nashville, Florence, Ala., Mississippi and New Orleans.

In the northeast moderate to heavy rains on top of snows of nearly a foot have created the danger of flash floods in western New York and Pennsylvania during the period of the sharp warming ahead of the storm.

Temperatures climbed into the 70s during the morning into West Virginia and into the mid 40s into up state New York.

Protection Needed for Newcomers

IN RESPONSE to the discussion here last Sunday about protection for the newly arrived South Florida resident buying property, Mrs. Henri Males of Sea Ranch Lakes recites this instance:

In 1952 she and her husband bought a home on Middle River Dr., knowing nothing about building or zoning restrictions. Last month they discovered that the carport, which had been added in 1950, extended three feet over the setback line; they lost a sale of the property, now must remodel the carport and pay an attorney to get the title cleared because the encroachment has affected it.

"Our costly experience proves that protection of the kind you suggest is solely needed in Broward County. I believe that each broker should request a survey of property he represents . . ."

Some Carry Built-In Suspicion

THE SALES MANAGER of a big local real estate office commented thus on the matter of protection:

"You'd be amazed at the people who come down here and make sizable investments without knowing anything about the people they're dealing with. We've bailed out lots of them who found themselves in trouble."

He advised that anyone contemplating a purchase check local sources to make certain that the people they're doing business with have good reputations.

On the other hand, the man added, brokers and sellers also find it difficult to deal with the new arrival who has been told back north that everyone in Florida will try to cheat him and approaches every transaction in that state of mind . . .

Budget Balancing Is Ticklish

ONE REASON the federal administration always finds it nearly impossible to balance a budget:

The $1,650,000 proposed for the improvement of Port Everglades was left out and the Port Authority now is going to try to get Rep. Paul Rogers to get it back in. So it goes all over the nation, among people demanding economy in government and among congressmen, like Rogers, who are themselves dedicated to economy.

What a refreshing thing if Paul should up and say to the port commissioners: "Look here, now. If we're going to cut government spending, someone has to give up something!"

IMAGINE THE DRAMA of it.

* * *

Then the Taxpayers Faint

The scene is Rogers' office in Washington. The port commissioners have assembled there and presented their problem. Rogers replies:

"Gentlemen, federal spending must be reduced. This is a time for sacrifices. I can't help you."

All commissioners fall in a faint.

They recover, confer in whispers among themselves, then face Rogers and speak in unison:

"You're right. We can get along without the money."

Rogers faints.

Superintendent Job Appointment Urged

By DUANE JONES
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — Broward County's next school superintendent may be appointed instead of elected.

School Board members voted 3-1 Wednesday to ask the Legislature for an act making the job appointive.

Board member Don Moore opposed the move, saying he thought such action should be instituted by the public. Dean Dessenberger was not present.

School Attorney Ted David is to make the recommendation at a meeting with local legislators today.

David pointed out that making the job appointive would require a statewide referendum.

Supt. Raymond Maxwell declined comment on the board's decision. He has said before, however, that he thought the job should be elective.

The board also took under consideration a plan to build a new senior high school in northeast Fort Lauderdale.

Expected to cost two million dollars, the school would be financed over 20 years from state funds due the county from automobile tax sales.

The school probably would be located on the Piper Tract, on NE Fourth Ave., and could be occupied by September 1960.

On recommendation from Maxwell, the board also named William Minton, finance director, to the new post of business manager. Minton has unofficially served in this capacity several years.

The commissioners had to amend a city ordinance to make the helicopter ride possible. Porter Reynolds (dark glasses) climbs aboard, below, as Ed Johns wants his turn.

Court OKs Park Site Purchase

TALLAHASSEE —(AP)— The Florida Supreme Court Wednesday approved the long-disputed purchase of a $1,600,000 tract of oceanfront property on credit by Broward County. The tract was bought as the site of a public park.

The court refused to review a decision of the Second District Court of Appeal upholding dismissal by the Broward Circuit Court of a challenge to the county purchase by Hollywood, Inc.

The case has been in and out of the courts since October 1954.

The county bought the beachfront property Sept. 14, 1954, by payment of $160,000 in cash and executed a mortgage for the $1,440,000 balance. The debt was to be paid off in seven annual installments from property tax revenues.

Hollywood, Inc., sued, contending the giving of the mortgage by the county was in effect a general obligation bond issue and required approval by the county's property owners.

The Circuit Court dismissed the complaint, but the Supreme Court ruled the payment plan was void without an approving vote of property owners.

A freeholders' election was held Nov. 6, 1956, on the question, but failed because a majority of property owners did not vote.

After the special election, registration rolls were rechecked and the freeholders' list reduced from about 60,000 to 30,000. The county called another special election for June 25, 1957. This time the financing plan was approved by the required number of freeholders.

A new suit by Hollywood, Inc., was dismissed by the Circuit Court and the District Court upheld the dismissal.

Hollywood, Inc., sought review by the Supreme Court on grounds the freeholders' approving vote came after the financing plan had been executed, whereas the Supreme Court had ruled it must precede the purchase.

The Supreme Court said that while in its earlier opinion it had said freeholders' approval was "condition precedent" to the financing plan, there was nothing in the ruling "that conveyed the thought that by referring to approval of bonds in advance of their issuance, the court implied that ratification would be precluded."

Schools No. 1 Subject For Legislature -- Tedder

Herald Bureau

POMPANO BEACH — Schools and school financing will take more time in the 1959 Legislature than any other single item, State Sen. George W. Tedder Jr. said here Wednesday.

Tedder spoke of taxes at the annual meeting of the Pompano Beach Taxpayers Association.

He termed the state's minimum foundation program of school aid the most equitable tax the state has.

Of intangible property taxes, Tedder asserted "I'm against any form of personal property tax," but he said this county's legislative delegation would not commit itself to repeal of the intangible taxes until they find out how else the money can be raised.

Tedder said he felt the Legislature would pay more attention to keeping taxes as they are, and letting the natural growth of the state take care of increased needs.

Charles W. Bartley was named president of the taxpayers group for 1959.

To Keep Area 'Wholesome and Dignified'

Freeze on Liquor Licenses Called for by Area Dealers

By PETER LAINE
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — Liquor dealers asked the county legislative delegation Wednesday to keep Broward County "wholesome and dignified" by freezing the issuance of special licenses.

Attorney Frank Akerman, for the county dealers association, offered a bill that would allow only one regular or special license for every 2,500 residents.

The 1958 population estimates would entitle the county to 104 licenses, he added.

"In August 1957 it had 383," Akerman said.

After some rapid calculation, State Rep. A. J. Ryan asked: "You mean there should be no new licenses until we have a 957,500 population?"

Fred Franke replied: "There's more than enough now to handle a million people."

Akerman explained that regular licenses — restricted to the same population basis — are already frozen, and cost from $25,000 to $30,000.

"Special licenses, designed to let restaurants serve liquor, are subject to many abuses," he said. "They compete directly with regular licenses."

The State Beverage Department has only one agent to inspect 970 license holders of all kinds, he added.

Exempt from the proposed law, Akerman said, would be hotels or motels of more than 100 rooms, transportation operators, horse and dog track caterers, clubs and fraternal organizations.

The number of permissible licenses would be determined separately by each town and by the county, he added. The bill does not affect beer and wine licenses, he said.

In other action, the delegation heard:

GEORGE WILSON, president of the New Rivers Improvement Association, ask for incorporation of New Rivers with Melrose Park to form a community of some 32,000 persons. Melrose Park spokesmen said Monday they did not want to join with New Rivers. Wilson claimed they were in the minority.

RUSSELL CLARKE, Lighthouse Point mayor and Hillsboro Beach town attorney, ask for Lighthouse Point charter changes and "hot pursuit" powers for the police of both communities.

HARRY WADLINGTON, vice president of the Funeral Directors Association, ask for equal licensing regulations for all funeral homes.

ATTORNEY John Steele propose the incorporation of an all-Negro community at Carver's Ranches. Residents said they want to improve standards there.

RALPH GROSS, 1636 NE 18th Ave., ask for laws to reduce the bacteria count in milk.

HALLANDALE Vice Mayor Russell Wilson suggest charter changes, including salaries for commissioners of not more than $100 monthly effective June 1.

H. C. SCHWARTZ, chairman of the South Broward Hospital District, request a change in SBHD boundaries and greater borrowing power for the South Florida State Hospital.

The delegation arranged to hold more hearings March 2 and 4. Julian Ross, Fort Lauderdale city attorney, said he will then present a bill enabling the city to assess its own taxes while the county continues to collect them.

MDs to Pay Cost of Plans At Memorial

Early Start Seen For Expansion

By FRAN LASLIE
Herald Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD — The way was cleared Wednesday night for work to start immediately on plans for a three million dollar expansion program at overcrowded Memorial Hospital.

The South Broward Hospital Commission accepted an offer from Memorial's medical staff to finance a $40,000 set of preliminary plans.

The action will shave at least eight months from the three years it would take to enlarge bed-short Memorial.

Overcrowded conditions have forced hospital authorities to place beds in the halls.

At a board of directors meeting, Dr. Bertram Frankel told the board the medical staff would guarantee a $15,000 payment to John H. Ritchie and Associates of Boston, to go ahead with the plans now, instead of waiting until November.

He said Ritchie, who flew here to confer with the doctors last week, agreed to cut the guarantee from around $40,000 to $15,000.

"The medical staff has been deeply concerned over the bed shortage. We want to expedite construction to provide sorely needed expansion as soon as possible," Dr. Frankel said.

A three-million-dollar bond issue to finance the project is scheduled for a vote in November.

Tentative plans call for the expansion plan to be carried out in two stages.

The first would increase bed capacity from 165 to 280 beds and provide the framework for three additional stories atop the south section of the hospital.

Joseph McAloon, hospital administrator, called the doctors' offer "an outstanding display of civic interest."

He added that the time-consuming work on preliminary plans is the most important step in the expansion program.

About 120 more beds would be provided in the second section of the plan to bring the total bed capacity to 400.

$1 Million Institution Is Urged

By JOHN L. BOYLES
Capitol Bureau Chief

TALLAHASSEE — Construction of a million dollar institution in Broward County for treatment of psychotic and emotionally disturbed children will be recommended to the 1959 Legislature by an Interim Committee on Mental Health.

Sen. J. Emory Cross of Alachua, a member of the committee, said the facility would have at least 48 beds.

Cross told the Parent-Teachers Association legislative conference the state now has no facilities for treating such cases under 12 years of age "but there are many children who could be helped by treatment.

The senator said one of Florida's big drawbacks in the treatment of children is the lack of any program for identifying retarded children "although they number in the thousands. There is an urgent need for an identification program, for many of our retarded children can be trained and educated."

The Sunland Training Center at Gainesville is caring for 1,700 retarded children and a new institution at Fort Myers will accommodate another 700, but "at least 1,000 retarded children already are on the waiting list," Cross said.

Miramar Moves for Recall

By FRAN LASLIE
Herald Staff Writer

MIRAMAR—Leaders of a recall against this town's new mayor and council president said Wednesday affidavits requesting recall petitions would be filed today with the city clerk's office.

"They are being drawn up tonight by our attorney," said Mrs. Louise Borman, 3110 SW 66th Way. "We won't have any trouble getting signatures."

Political factions in this community split Monday over Mayor Charles Knapp's appointment of Roy Mericle to replace Buddy Arbuckle as building inspector.

Council President P. D. Kennedy Jr. tried to prevent Monday's outbursts against Knapp's appointment. He said it should be discussed at a regular meeting Feb. 2.

"Our attorney said even though there is no city clerk the affidavits will have to be honored," Mrs. Borman said.

Marion Fischer, city clerk for the out-going council, said Wednesday she had left the job, and Anthony Duane, appointed clerk Monday by Knapp, said he won't be clerk until Feb. 2 when the council approved his appointment.

Councilmen P. D. Kennedy Jr., J. G. Ferris, who is also city judge, and Willian A. Carney said it was the mayor's prerogative to make appointments.

Councilmen John Marini and R. H. Epstein said they favored retaining Arbuckle but they would not support a recall.

Too Much Alligator

POMPANO BEACH — If you were driving south of town Wednesday night and thought you saw an alligator along the road, you probably were right.

A six-footer was spotted along Federal Hwy. near McNab Rd., about 8 p.m. Two deputy sheriffs were sent, but they threw up their hands when they saw the gator's size and called in a state conservation officer. He tied up the critter and hauled it back into the Everglades.

Area Residents Must Give Go-Ahead

City's Annexation Race Hits Snag

By PAT MANGAN
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — City officials have hit a snag in their plans to hold an April 14 election on the question of annexing about five square miles west of Fort Lauderdale.

City Attorney Julian Ross pointed out Wednesday that the city cannot call an election unless 10 per cent of the voters registered in the area to be annexed petition for the vote.

Then, Ross said, 25 per cent of the registered voters must vote in the election for it to be valid.

City commissioners had hoped to have an election in the county on the same day (April 14) the City Commission primary is held.

Ross said the city charter also provides for annexation by legislative act, without a vote either inside or outside the city.

If a vote is held, a majority of voters voting in the city and a majority of 25 per cent of the registered voters in the annexation area must favor the move to make it effective.

Meanwhile, opposition to annexation was voiced by two representatives of residents in the annexation area.

Col. Ralph Wiltsey of Melrose Park said, "I'm agin it—as a taxpayer and a home-owner." Wiltsey appeared before the legislative delegation to request incorporation of Melrose Park.

The threat of incorporation of a number of small communities around Fort Lauderdale led Mayor John V. Russell to ask for an annexation vote before the Legislature convenes.

Bob James, of the New River Improvement Association, said his area is not interested in annexation either. New River also wants to incorporate.

James said a survey of the area west of Fort Lauderdale from the north fork of the southfork of New River to the north fork of New River showed residents 15-1 against annexation.

The annexation area is bounded by NW Sixth St., NW 27th Ave., Broward Blvd., State Rd. 7, the south fork of New River and SW 24th St. It also includes Fort Lauderdale Country Club and the subdivisions surrounding it. Both sides of Broward Blvd. and State Rd. 7 are included, with their lucrative business areas.

The city would make a profit on the annexation, according to present estimates.

Revenue from it is estimated at about $700,000 while the cost of providing services is put at about $600,000 a year.

Our Girls (It's the Makeup) Score With Mikoyan's Son

By Herald Wire Services

WHAT IMPRESSED Sergo Mikoyan most during his visit to the U.S. along with his father, Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan?

"The girls."

The 29-year-old Sergo gave that prompt answer to a Washington Star society reporter who chatted with him at a reception at the Soviet embassy.

"Ours (girls) are just as pretty as yours," he hastened to explain, "but you have the textiles and cosmetics."

The younger Mikoyan, a writer and editor for the Soviet magazine World Economics and International Relations, said:

"I found the people here quite friendly, much more friendly than I expected."

But he added that he does not believe some news magazines reflect this—especially U.S. News and World Report and Newsweek. Those are two I have noticed."

"I must say I like your newspapers," he went on. "They were all most friendly (in reporting on his father's visit) . . . They were fair."

Teller Just Pressed Alarm

Leon Harent

. . . 83, still plugging

DETROIT —AP— Leon Harent, who says he has spent 69 years of his life in jails across the country, walked into the National Bank of Detroit's main branch.

He handed a teller a note written on a piece of paper bag. The note said: "This is a holdup. I want $1,000 in small bills."

The teller took one look at the 83-year-old Harent and calmly pressed a burglar alarm. A bank guard held Harent until police arrived.

The elderly man's possessions at the time of his arrest included a pair of broken eyeglasses, a pocket knife, a safety razor and three razor blades.

"Is this all you've got to show for 83 years?" police asked.

"I've made progress," Harent replied. "When I was young they didn't have safety razors."

Ducktail Haircuts Really a Poor Risk

"I HAVE FOUND that defendants with ducktail haircuts make poor risks on probation," said General Sessions Court Judge Bruce Littlejohn in York, S.C., last December.

Nevertheless the judge imposed one-year suspended sentences on Bennie Kimbrell, 19, and Richard Broome, 18, of Rock Hill, who had pleaded guilty to housebreaking and grand larceny. But, as a term of their probation, Judge Littlejohn ordered haircuts for the pair.

Last week, York County police caught Kimbrell and Broome taking auto parts from a spare parts yard in Rock Hill. Wednesday, General Sessions Court Judge George T. Gregory Jr. revoked their probations and sent them to the State Penitentiary. Both were again sporting ducktail haircuts.

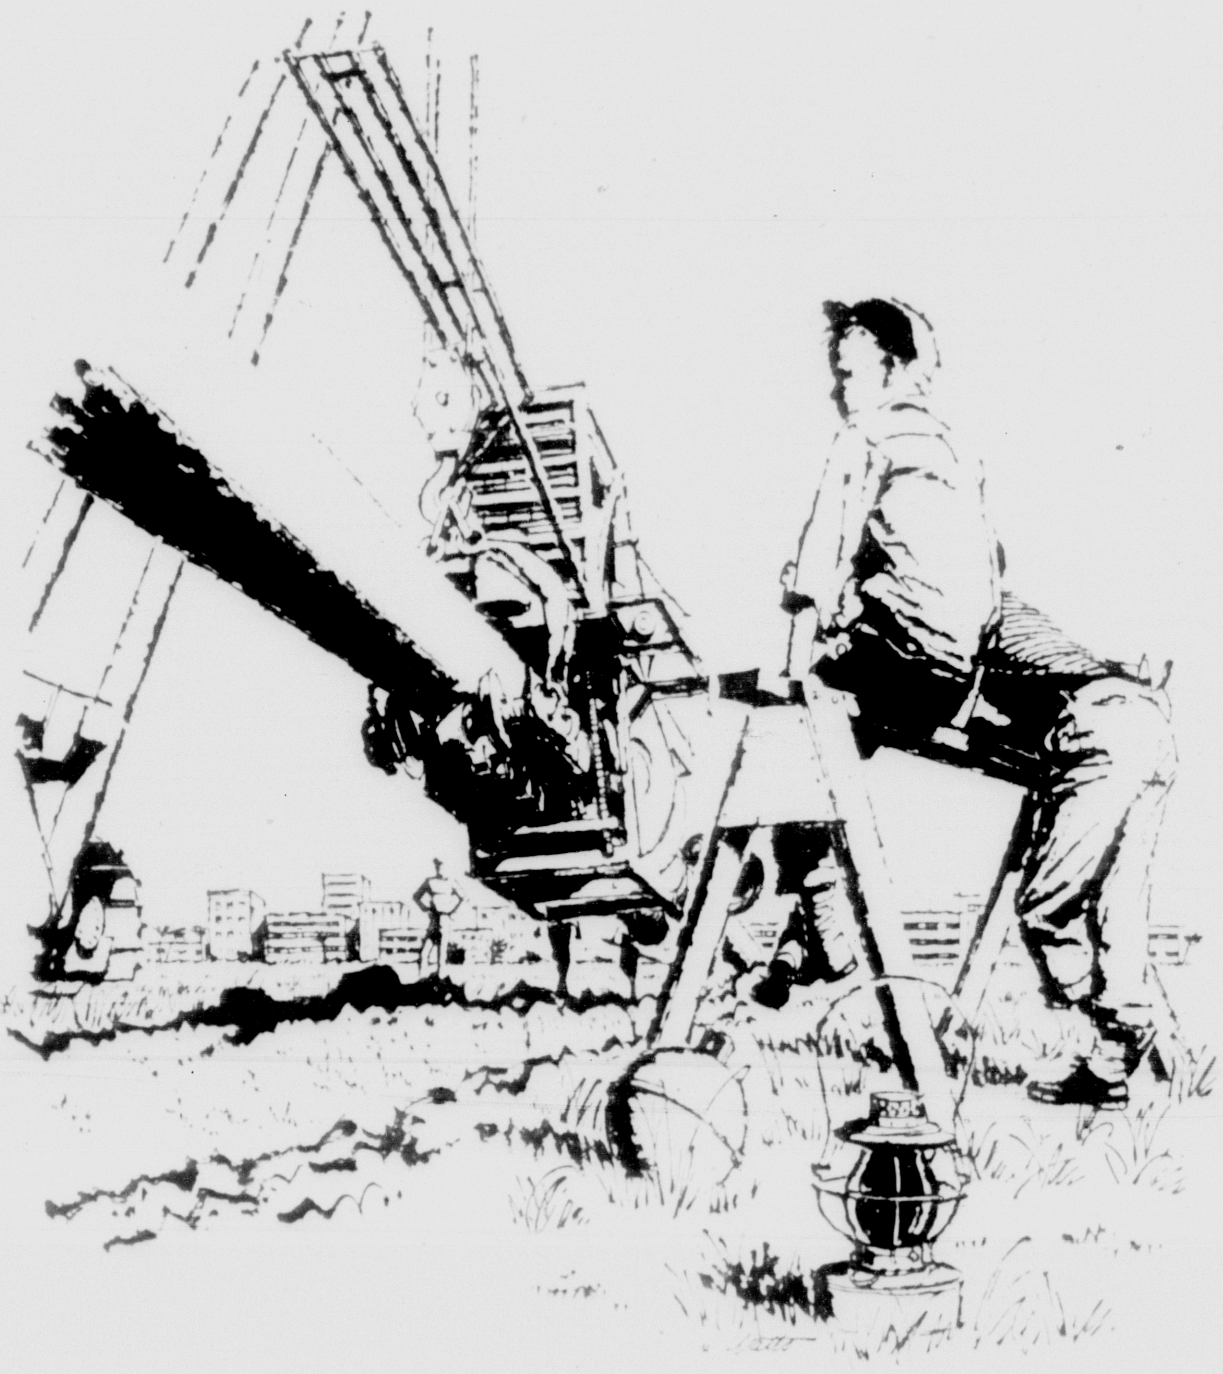
DALLAS, Tex. — (UPI) — D. E. Jones is returning to his $50-a-week job in a Corsicana, Tex., service station, ending a hoax that began when he claimed to have found about two million dollars worth of gold bars in a berry patch.

Jones, 38-year-old father of eight children, told Secret Service men that the story was untrue, as a lie detector test had indicated earlier.

"The only gold I have is what's in my teeth," he said. "That cost $450 when the dentist put it in, but I've been losing teeth lately."

Jones could be fined $10,000 and-or given a five-year prison sentence for making a false statement to the government.



Natural Gas... will bring new industrial and domestic economy to Florida

This scene is becoming familiar throughout Florida. Perhaps you have seen it alongside a busy highway, in the outskirts of the city or even in your own backyard.

What you are seeing is part of the Houston Corporation's 1517 mile pipeline which will bring an abundant supply of natural gas to all of Florida.

The next time you see this scene, stop and take a second look, for in a few short weeks the men and equipment will be gone and in their wake will come vast new developments in Florida's industry and economy.

West Hollywood Asks To Become New City

Advised To Hold Hearings

By PETER LAINE
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — Incorporation of a West Hollywood area with some 28,000 residents was requested Wednesday by its Chamber of Commerce.

The county legislative delegation advised the group to decide on boundaries and a charter, then hold public hearings.

Speaking for the chamber were Bob Fegers, Jack Meyer and Henry Perry. They asked for a referendum to establish a mayor-council form of government.

Tentative limits for the new city are from the Dade County line north to Stirling Rd., and west from Hollywood to either SW 84th Ave. or Douglas Rd.

Several times the size of Hollywood, it would exclude Carvers Ranches, Lake Forest, and possibly Pembroke Pines, spokesmen said.

Hollywood City Attorney August Paoli said that his city wants to take part of the area — a parcel of about 100 acres east of 56th Ave., north of Pembroke Rd. Paoli asked for annexation by special act.

Hollywood has taken no stand on its neighbors' incorporation, but will accept the vote of the people, Paoli said.

In other actions, the delegation told Mrs. Phyllis Hill they felt no benefits would be obtained from making School Board elections nonpartisan.

Mrs. H. C. Dearden, president of the League of Women Voters, also asked for a nonpartisan School Board. "Later, we'd like to have it nonsalaried," she added.

Mrs. Dearden said her group was also interested in having the school superintendent appointed, funds for compulsory driver training in junior high schools, raising the minimum age limit for motorscooter licenses, and facilities to treat psychotic children.

J. W. Taylor, Contractor, Rites Set

FORT LAUDERDALE — James W. Taylor, 71, a resident here 17 years, died Wednesday. A retired road contractor, Mr. Taylor came here from Birmingham, Mich., and lived at 515 NE 17th Way.

He was a member of Park Temple Methodist Church, Masonic Lodge, American Legion and Coast Guard Auxiliary.

Survivors include his wife, Esther; a daughter, Mrs. Sally DeValerio, and a son, James.

Services will be at 11 a.m. Saturday at Fairchild Chapel. Burial will be in Lauderdale Memorial Park.

Other Applications Awaited

Mayor Denies Salvino Job Was Suggested by Burke

By RICK TUTTLE
Herald Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD—Mayor E. L. McMorrough Wednesday denied that County Commissioner Herbert Burke had anything to do with his recommendation of former Commissioner Tony Salvino as a coordinator on the Sheridan St. bridge project.

Burke, a Republican, had recommended Salvino for the post of county road director but taxpayer opposition developed and Salvino later refused the job.

Salvino was defeated for the Democratic nomination as commissioner last fall.

"This is the gospel. I never even discussed this with Herb (Burke)," McMorrough said Wednesday.

City commissioners — with the exception of William Zinkil—had virtually appointed Salvino to the Hollywood post at a pre-meeting conference Tuesday night.

They agreed Salvino's connections in Tallahassee would help speed up the project which has been delayed because approval is needed from the Internal Improvement Fund, the Corp of Army Engineers and the Florida Inland Navigation District.

Late in the regular meeting, Zinkil walked out so he wouldn't be voting on the appointment.

Residents at the meeting objected to Salvino's appointment and the commission ended up asking McMorrough and City Manager Joseph Watson to accept and review applications for the job.

"I have nothing against Salvino," Zinkil said Wednesday. "It's just that I don't think we need a coordinator. The commissioners can do it. I shut up in the conference because I saw it was a four to one proposition."

McMorrough said Zinkil knows the city must have a coordinator. The commissioners themselves could never handle the red tape, he said.

"I'll meet with Watson Friday to see if he has received any applications," McMorrough said. "I haven't received any."

He said he would report next Tuesday on the applications.

The state has set aside $1,300,000 for the bridge which will link the mainland to Hollywood Beach.

Spaniel Wins Top Award In Dog Show

Herald Bureau

FORT LAUDERDALE — A black and tan American cocker Spaniel, Pinetop's Fancy Parade, was judged best dog in show at the 14th annual all-breed event sponsored by Fort Lauderdale Dog Club Tuesday.

Fancy Parade, owned by Mrs. Rose Robbins, Metairie, La., is not a champion. He came "up from the classes" to beat champions White Gables Aristocrat, a smooth dachshund; Ravensberg's Carlo II, doberman pinscher; Highlander Red Knight, Scottish terrier that was best in show at Miami Sunday; Talia of Villa Malta, Maltese, and Barlow's Romeo, Boston terrier, top winners in hound, working, terrier, toy and nonsporting groups respectively.

A Chesapeake Bay retriever, Dr. Roman's Mistake, owned by member Mrs. Mildred Buchholz, West Palm Beach, finished its championship and was judged best of breed.

Hollywood Near-Tragedy

Boy and Rescuer Hauled from Surf

Two insurance men Wednesday morning rescued a man and a boy from the surf near HOLLYWOOD BEACH Hotel, police reported.

Sterling Sill, 55, Salt Lake City, and George Redding, 13, Butte, Mont., were brought ashore by Robert E. Michell of Glenn Cove, N.Y., and Turner Monsell of Chicago.

Sill had gone to the boy's rescue but became exhausted about 30 yards from shore, police said. Mitchell swam out and brought in the teenager and then Monsell rescued Sill.

Bookmaking

FORT LAUDERDALE police Wednesday arrested an alleged bookmaker whose customers were mainly Stranahan Park shuffleboard players and other elderly men, several of them pensioners.

James Bernard Smith, 33, of 702 SE 22nd St., was charged with bookmaking and vagrancy. He is being held in City Jail. His bonds total $1,100.

Sgt. Mike Slepecky and Detective Dudley Johnston said Smith was caught in the act of taking a bet in the park about 1:45 p.m. He had been under surveillance for two days since police learned of a "floating" bookmaking operation there.

Slepecky said Smith's records showed he took bets ranging from $1 to $10 on horses running at tracks throughout the country.

Circus Lure?

Life under the big top may have lured a 17-year-old FORT LAUDERDALE boy away from home. Oris T. Sewell, 1616 NW 15th Ave., reported to police Wednesday that his son, Joseph Allen Halliday, has not been heard from since he telephoned his mother Tuesday night to say he was helping take down the tents of a circus that appeared at Bradley Field. He said he would be home later, but never arrived.

Welfare Patchup Sought

Board, Advisors, To 'Co-Exist'

By ART ROBINSON
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — The County Commission and its Health and Welfare Advisory Board sought Wednesday to smooth over their differences and find a way to live together.

The advisory board will continue in existence and keep an eye on the operation of the department, Dr. Curtis Benton Jr., chairman, reported.

At the request of the County Commission, it will make a study of private nursing homes for elderly sick persons and attempt to determine what the future needs for such homes will be, he said.

The committee feels that William Hogan, acting director, has done a good job in reorganizing the department, Dr. Benton said.

"We're still recommending that the head of the department be someone trained in welfare work," Dr. Benton said.

"The commissioners feel that the number one step in reorganizing the department was in the field of administration.

"We felt that the number one step should have been the hiring of a qualified director, but we're quite willing to watch the progress of the department under the present director."

Appointment of a trained director was one of the principal recommendations which grew out of a year-long study of the department by the advisory committee and an expert it hired, Dr. Robert T. Lansdale of the University of Florida.

Smart Kid Speed Ups Proposed

Herald Bureau

FORT LAUDERDALE — A stepped-up educational program for "smart kids" was proposed Wednesday by School Attorney Ted David, a former speaker of the State Legislator.

David intends to outline his plan at a meeting with the county legislative delegation today.

It calls for a statewide law that would authorize funds to finance special classes for children having exceptional learning ability.

The program, David explained, would start at the third-grade level and continue through high school.

"By giving these youngsters special attention, they should be able to graduate a year earlier," he said.

"A lot of smart kids are being held back by others who can't learn quickly. Under my proposal, smart kids would compete against each other and would be learning at top capacity."

David thought approximately 500 Broward County youngsters would qualify.

School Board Member Don Moore proposed manual training classes be increased two hours a day to benefit youngsters who don't do well in academic studies.

He said juvenile delinquency would be decreased if teenage boys could devote more time to technical skills.

Investigation Asked

Prisoners' Medical Care Still a Problem

By HENRY KINNEY
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — Medical treatment of prisoners is a problem that the county "still hasn't licked," Commissioner George Petersen said Wednesday, although it now employes three doctors instead of only one and recently raised their salaries.

"We feel we've done everything we possibly can," he said in commenting on the case of a stockade prisoner injured last Thursday.

The man was hurt during the morning while helping remove a tree from the courthouse grounds and wasn't visited by a doctor until 9 p.m., according to Stockade Warden Lester Borg.

The County Medical Association has been asked to investigate and Petersen took up the matter with the County Health and Welfare Advisory Board Tuesday night.

Petersen indicated recently that he feels a problem exists where an untrained employe is called upon to decide whether a doctor should be summoned or not.

The County Commission now employes Dr. John H. Faber of Fort Lauderdale as county physician, Dr. Jack Kartub of Pompano Beach for the north end of the county, and Dr. N. T. McGehee Jr. of Hollywood for the south end.

Kartub was the physician involved in last week's incident. Kartub pointed out that the prisoner in question was examined at Broward General Hospital "about midday" Thursday, and nothing serious was found wrong with him.

The County Commission increased the staff from one doctor to three at the recommendation of the County Medical Association, Petersen recalled.

Dr. Faber is paid $550 a month and the others $300 each. They put in service at the county clinics in addition to their work at the jail and stockade.

W. L. Warensford of HOLLYWOOD said Wednesday he would run for mayor in the April 7 election.

Stalter Takes Reins

Deerfield Unseats 17-Year Mayor

By CLARENCE ZAITZ
North Broward Bureau

DEERFIELD BEACH — This city has a new mayor for the first time in 17 years.

Commissioner Paul E. Stalter, 67, was named mayor by the commission at an organizational meeting Wednesday.

Paul E. Stalter
. . . Deerfield coup

Newly elected Commissioners Frank C. Gray, 29, and Hal G. Mullen, 72, were sworn into office.

In copping the mayor's seat, Stalter ousted B. E. (Barney) Chalker, 58, who has held a firm grip on the position since 1942. Chalker, who is local agent for the Florida East Coast Railway, has one year remaining in his present term.

The balloting for mayor went 4 to 1, the single vote being cast for Gray. It was a 3 to 2 vote for vice mayor, with Mullen getting two votes. But he moved that Tanner's election be by unanimous vote.

An early indication that Chalker's longtime political influence is waning came when the commission overruled Chalker's suggestion that the meeting be adjourned "to the conference room" for the organizational meeting.

The rest of the commission said they thought the meeting should be in public, before a group of about 15 spectators.

In assuming his new office, Stalter said, "I surely am happy and surprised, and with all humility accept the office as mayor-commissioner of Deerfield Beach. I know full well the responsibilities and duties connected with the office, and I shall perform them to the best of my ability."

Stalter has served as commissioner since December 1956, and has one year remaining of his term.

Animal Help Complaints Sent Board

Herald Bureau

FORT LAUDERDALE — More compaints the Broward Humane Society has failed recently to pick up injured animals were filed Wednesday with the County Commission.

Robert Waller, county dog pound manager, said he'd received four letters in the past week. They came from people who called the dog pound when the humane society failed to act, he said.

Several complaints were received by the commission last week.

Hal Bowen, society president, last month defied anyone to prove his group was not answering calls. The commission asked Bowen to submit a report each month.

Waller explained the pound's primary purpose it to pick up stray, rabid dogs. It must get owners permission before it can touch other animals, he said.

Thousands Flee Rising Waters

Blizzards and Floods Hit At Mid-Section of U.S.

Forecast: Rain, Sleet And Snow

Ice Knocks Out Power Lines

CHICAGO — (UPI) — Winter's worst storm chased thousands of persons from flood-threatened homes and buried the mid-continent under blizzard snows Wednesday.

The vast storm, ranging from the Rockies to the Appalachians, also sent tornadoes racing through the Southland. A sub-zero cold wave moved into the Plains as the snows dwindled.

The U.S. Weather Bureau predicted more severe winter weather from the Great Lakes to the Middle Gulf States. In the North, the forecast was for more snow, sleet and freezing rains.

In the South, warnings of thunderstorms and possible tornadoes hung over parts of Tennessee, Georgia, the western Carolinas, southeast Kentucky and southern Virginia.

High waters forced 2,500 of the 16,000 residents of Mount Vernon, Ohio, from their homes, flooded the state Capitol of Columbus, created a state of emergency at Sharon, Pa., and closed highways in southern Indiana. Buffalo, N.Y., motorists abandoned their cars in the flooded streets.

From New Mexico to Indiana, Westerners and Midwesterners struggled to dig out of foot-deep snows. Schools, factories and roads were closed through nine states and traffic in the big cities of Kansas City, St. Louis, Dallas and Chicago became paralyzed.

Ice knocked out the power in scores of Midwest towns. At Decatur, Ill., the Red Cross set up shelter for an expected 2,500 persons driven from their homes because of power and water failures.

The Southland took its storm in the form of tornadoes which powered their way through Kentucky, Mississippi, Alabama and Tennessee.

A fast-moving twister smashed Caneyville, Ky., and Kentucky State Police said they had reports of at least one person killed or seriously injured, plus heavy damage. Two more persons were reported injured by high winds which hit the Fort Knox area. The highway between Elizabethtown, Ky., and Caneyville was blocked.

A church and several barns went down before a twister

Fabulous DeMille Dies at 77

Highlights, Career, 2C

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. —(AP)— Cecil Blount DeMille, a founder of the Hollywood film industry and the most successful of all movie makers, died of a heart attack Wednesday at 77.

It was the third serious heart attack for the producer-director, whose name became a symbol of flamboyant films. He suffered the first in Egypt in November 1954, during location scenes for his last great Biblical epic, "The Ten Commandments." He refused doctors' advice to stop the film, saying, "I'll continue working until God wants me to quit."

Last June he suffered another attack. But in December he undertook a strenuous tour to exploit the last film he supervised, "The Buccaneer." The end came at 5:30 a.m. at his Hollywood home with his daughter Cecilia and her husband, Joseph Harper, at his bedside.

DeMille's wife for 57 years, also in ill health, was not immediately told of his death. But friends said she had sensed something was wrong.

The filmland titan died at the peak of a 45-year history in films. His second making of "The Ten Commandments" was just overtaking "Gone With the Wind" as the biggest money-maker of all time.

His other movies—"Greatest Show on Earth," "Samson and Delilah," "The Unconquered," etc.—were huge successes.

He was proud that his version of the Christ story, "The King of Kings," has been showing somewhere in the world every day since it was released in 1927.

He never won an Oscar for direction. The academy, perhaps in recognition of his great record, finally named "The Greatest Show on Earth" the best picture of 1952.

DeMille's death leaves Samuel Goldwyn the sole survivor of the famous triumvirate who started Hollywood in the big-time back in 1912.

DeMille was born Aug. 12, 1881, at Ashfield, Mass., of a Dutch family that came to America in 1658. His father was a schoolteacher turned playwright who introduced his sons to the theater world.

Cecil started as an actor and in 1902 married a fellow member of the E. H. Sothern troupe, Constance Adams. They had four children: Mrs. Harper, Mrs. Anthony Quinn, John and Richard DeMille. There are 13 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

The family announced that the funeral will be held Friday at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church in Hollywood. Private interment will follow in a $250,000 mausoleum DeMille built in Hollywood cemetery in 1953.

Ike Gets Housing 'Dare'

Veto Will Fail, Lawmaker Says

By FREDERIC SHERMAN
Herald Real Estate Editor

CHICAGO—President Eisenhower is going to get the chance to veto the biggest housing bill in the history of this country.

That was the challenge thrown at the White House Wednesday by Rep. Albert Rains of Alabama in a fiery speech to the National Association of Home Builders. He predicted Congress will override Ike's expected veto of a bill providing almost two billion dollars in special aid for housing and urban renewal.

Rains had been scheduled to talk about the problems of financing community facilities in mushrooming suburban areas. But he whipped the builders into rounds of applause with an attack on Republican Party leaders who are pushing for Ike's balanced budget.

"I read in the papers that I'm one of the big Democratic spenders in Washington because I want a decent house for every American family under the private enterprise system," Rains said.

Rains accused the White House of trying to balance the budget at the expense of programs that have become a part of the nation's growth.

Mr. Eisenhower wants to hand back to the cities the responsibility for urban renewal, flood control and a dozen other important programs. But you don't hear the White House talking about turning back some of the federal tax sources to the cities," Rains said.

Rains told the builders he doesn't believe in government housing and this was worth loud applause. But the Alabama congressman followed with the gambit of his old log cabin school that didn't have electricity. You guessed it. It had a pine knot fire just like the one Abraham Lincoln studied by.

"It took TVA and REA to bring in electricity under the same kind of government help that I am asking for housing," he said. "The White House keeps saying we can't afford it. But those people in high places don't seem to understand the difference between spending and housing programs that don't cost the government a cent."

A bill Rains introduced last week provides 500 million dollars in special assistance to support mortgage prices. It includes the same amount for college housing loans, 1½ billion over three years for outright grants to the cities for slum clearance and urban renewal and 200 million in direct loans for housing for the elderly.

"I have great personal admiration for the President, but it is obvious he is beginning to believe his campaign speeches. If he stops the housing industry this year he will bring a terrible depression down on this country," Rains concluded in a storm of applause.

Tito Arrives In Ceylon

COLOMBO —(AP)— President Tito of Yugoslavia arrived in Ceylon Wednesday on the last stop of his tour of so-called neutral Asian countries.

Tito was to meet Premier Solomon Bandaranaike later for talks on the international situation. They are expected to reaffirm their abstention from alignment with both the Communist and Western power blocs.

Atlas Death Witnessed In Pacific

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. —(AP)— The flaming death-plunge of America's biggest satellite apparently was witnessed from two places in the Pacific, the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory said Wednesday.

The observatory said it had received what appeared to be "very reliable" reports from the naval station on Guam and from the Navy cruiser Rochester which was in the Guam area.

Smithsonian officials said they received a radio message from Guam that a "fiery red comet" had been observed streaking through the sky at 9:10 a.m.

The skipper of the USS Rochester radioed that a "possible Atlas sighting" had been made at about 9:08 a.m.

Both these times would be near midnight Wednesday night, Guam time.

Million Cheer Castro Pledge That Executions Won't Stop

By Herald Wire Services

HAVANA, Cuba — Fidel Castro told a wildly-cheering crowd of Cubans Wednesday that the new regime will revise or wipe out burdensome foreign concessions granted by the fallen Batista dictatorship.

In a fiery speech, the rebel chief made it clear he will continue with the execution of Batista "assassins and torturers."

Estimates of the crowd ranged from 500,000 to one million. The massive turnout was all the more impressive in view of the fact that the total population of all of Cuba is just under six million.

As Castro spoke to the record crowd gathered before Havana's Presidential Palace, reports from interior cities said at least 22 more Batista followers had been cut down by military firing squads, bringing to an estimated 250 the total of those reported executed since the overthrow of Fulgencio Batista on New Year's Day.

The bearded rebel leader said his victorious revolutionary movement had been made the target of the "most infamous, the most criminal campaign ever launched against a people."

He blamed the campaign on foreign business interests because "they know that we are going to ask for the cancellation of all the onerous concessions made to foreign interests" by the Batista government.

Castro's first appearance on the scene was from a helicopter which flew over the crowd and the palace to land on Zayas Park, on the other side of the palace from the crowd. Those who recognized him from the ground broke into wild cheering.

Cubans of all ranks and ages had poured through downtown Havana streets and into the "People's Square" facing the palace to acclaim Castro and endorse his wholesale execution of "war criminals" of the toppled Batista dictatorship.

Among those who heard Castro were two U.S. congressmen and 45 American newsmen, as well as journalists from other countries who were invited here to witness Wednesday's demonstration and the next series of "war crimes" trials. The two congressmen were Rep. Charles O. Porter (D., Ore.) and Rep. Adam Clayton Powell (D., N.Y.).

The invitations were extended after snowballing criticism, particularly in the U.S., that the swift rebel trials and executions were a "bloodbath" with no legal basis.

Castro was greeted by a deafening ovation when he appeared on the speakers rostrum at 5 p.m. The start of his address was delayed several minutes by the thunderous acclaim.

Describing the Cuban crowd as a "jury of one million men and women, of all social classes, of all religions, of all political creeds," Castro asked that "those who are in accord with our justice raise their hands."

The huge crowd raised hands as one man and another tremendous cheer rang out.

Castro then said, "Gentlemen, representatives of the diplomatic corps, newspapermen from all over the continent: a jury of one million Cubans of all ideas and social classes has voted. Let those democrats, or those who call themselves democrats, say if this is not indeed democracy.

Long Wait in Hot Sun

He Packed 'em In-- And Scores Fainted

By JAMES BUCHANAN
Herald Staff Writer

HAVANA, Cuba — Fidel Castro played to a packed plaza Wednesday.

And he wasn't giving away a thing.

In fact, he kept half a million people waiting in the hot sun for three hours just to tell him he'd been right all along.

They told him, too, in no uncertain terms that they wanted the new Cuban government to go on trying and killing war criminals.

They came from the length and breadth of the island to fill the four-block-long plaza in front of the Presidential Palace.

And they overflowed into every side street and the park behind the palace, and filled every rooftop and balcony within a two-block area of the speaker's platform.

"I believe there were 500,000 people answering Castro's call for a show of faith in the new regime."

They arrived loaded with banners and placards saying "Death to the Traitors," and "Kill Now — Not Later."

There were many in English, some proclaiming "Cuban

$600,000 Asked for 6th District

More Palm Beach News, 1B, 7C

Herald Bureau

WEST PLAM BEACH — Nearly $600,000 has been requested by President Eisenhower for the maintenance and operation of federal-local projects in the Sixth Congressional District, Rep. Paul Rodgers announced Wednesday.

This money is in addition to nine million dollars in the President's budget for flood control district construction work and 1.1 million dollars for dredging of a barge canal in the intracoastal Waterway.

The FCD will get $182,000 through the U.S. Corps of Engineers, for maintenance of navigation in Lake Okeechobee, the Caloosahatchee and St. Lucie Rivers.

Three harbors — Fort Pierce, Palm Beach and Port Everglades — will get a total of $135,000.

Other allocations are $160,000 for the Inland Waterway and $111,000 for the Okeechobee Waterway.

A lump sum appropriation of $8,000 for a survey by the Corps of Engineers of Hillsboro Inlet at Pompano Beach is requested.

Rogers said that while he was gratified the President had recognized the value of projects in the district, he was disappointed there were no funds for new projects which have been shown to be economically justified.

Russia Accuses Western Planes

OSLO, Norway —(AP)— The Soviet government Wednesday charged that U.S. and British warplanes are using Norway's Bodoe Airport as a base for reconnaissance flights to Russia's frontiers. Moscow made the charge to the Norwegian ambassador.

Press Chief John Hedemann said the Norwegian Defense Department has no knowledge of British or American planes using the far-north base for such a purpose.

New Chill On the Way

A cold weather system moving in from the Gulf of Mexico promised to end Florida's warm weather respite today with a resurgence of temperatures ranging below the freezing point.

The weather bureau Wednesday night predicted a mercury drop of 25 to 35 degrees by midday today in extreme northwest Florida.

Forecasters said that by tonight all Florida would feel the chilly brunt of the new cold snap to some extent.

They said temperatures would be below freezing in North Florida and near freezing in the state's citrus-growing central portion by Friday morning, with sub-freezing temperatures in most of the state Saturday morning.

Shallow, But Too Deep for Them

Gusher Was a Real Gasser!

TULSA, Okla. — (UPI) — The Sooner State Drilling and Producing Co. of Coleman, Tex., recently brought in the world's shallowest oil well, a healthy 4,000-barrel-an-hour gusher in southern Oklahoma—at a depth of 2½ feet.

Unfortunately, the well nine miles east of Bretch, Okla., had to be abandoned soon after it came in.

The well sprayed over the top of the rig and continued to flow at the rate of more than 4,000 barrels an hour, until it was choked off 40 minutes later.

There was no fire, no damage to drilling rig and no crew injuries. About 2,700 barrels of oil were recovered, most of which flowed into an adjacent slush pit.

All was going like clockwork when suddenly the happy smiles on the faces of the drillers turned to frowns, then astonishment, and finally horror.

What caused the consternation was the unhappy discovery that the oil was coming from a 16-inch pipeline, owned by the Service Pipe Line Co., of Tulsa.

The line was repaired and the rig moved for another try.

'Recalled for Consultations'

Didn't 'Flee' Cuba, Says Envoy Rubirosa

Special To The Herald

CIUDAD TRUJILLO — Porfirio Rubirosa, the Dominican Don Juan, diplomat and sometime sports car racer, arrived here Wednesday afternoon from Cuba via Miami for diplomatic consultations.

He spoke of politics, Havana, and racing — but of women — no.

Accompanying Rubirosa was his beauteous young, French actress wife. And the suave diplomat, whose amours brought him more of an international reputation than his diplomatic skill, deftly spoke of politics, yet managed to court his lovely wife.

The great Latin lover, who has been representing his country in Cuba, denied that he was on thin standing with the Castro government and fled Cuba because Batista fell.

"I have no trouble with the new government in Havana.

"I enjoy my assignment there and see no reason why I would not return to Havana."

Mrs. Rubirosa, his fifth wife, kept holding hands with her husband and exchanging romantic glances with him while he discussed politics.

She also had with her a woven basket which contained a trio of Chihuahuas which she petted occasionally. And when she wasn't holding onto Porfirio, she was clinging to a nine-inch Raggedy Ann cloth doll.

Asked if he planned to do any more sports car racing, Rubirosa looked at his wife and said:

"No. I will do no more. I am too busy, and besides . . ." The words trailed off but he glanced at his wife.

An excellent reason to surrender racing.

PAA Talks Recess; No Strike Set

Contract negotiations between Pan American World Airways and the Transport Workers Union were recessed in New York Wednesday, but a union official said no date has been set for a strike of some 8,000 PAA employes.

"We will resume the negotiations on Friday," William Grogan, international vice president of the TWU, told The Herald by telephone.

He said the contract talks have not been terminated and that "there is no real significance" to postponement of negotiations over a new contract.

"We're just coasting for a day or so," Grogan said. "There are a number of issues on which we have not reached agreement."

Some 3,000 of the PAA workers involved are in Miami and 1,500 are at the missile base at Cape Canaveral.

Eastern Air Lines, meanwhile, announced formal signing of a contract with the Air Lines Stewards and Stewardesses Association. An Eastern spokesman said the new contract, effective through Jan. 31, 1960, provides more pay and improved working conditions for Eastern's 1,400 flight attendants.

Biggest issue in the talks between Pan American, the TWU and a federal negotiator is the union demand for a cut in weekly working hours from 40 to 37½.

"Strike standby" telegrams already have been sent to union members at all PAA installations, but Grogan refused to speculate on whether or when a strike will be called.

He said that if the present talks break off altogether, the government will offer arbitration to each side before a strike is called.

TV Tower Falls, Kills 1, Hurts 2

LEXINGTON, Ky. —(AP)— A 600-foot television tower toppled onto WLEX-TV station Wednesday killing a receptionist and injuring two other persons.

Fred Gregg, owner of Radio Station WLAP in Lexington, said the huge steel tower almost cut the building in half.

"The big tower whipped around in the wind and then fell directly across the center of the station," Gregg said.

The dead woman was identified as Mrs. Susan Grazley, who had been working at WLEX-TV for about three or four months.

Mrs. Nita Wash, bookkeeper at the station, and an unidentified man who was standing in front of the building were injured and taken to the hospital.

which hit Yokena, Miss., near Vicksburg. Wind damage was estimated at $100,000 at Adamsville, Tenn.; a twister swept away a 300-foot highway patrol tower at Lawrenceburg, Tenn., and more tornadoes wrecked buildings near Eva and Cullman, Ala.

Cold-wave fires killed at least 18 persons, 15 of them children.

National Guard troops moved into Mount Vernon to aid in this mass evacuation caused by a 3.69-inch downpour. The flood's first victim was a 17-year old boy who drowned trying to leap from the front porch of his flooded home to a truck pulling away.

Boats and ambulances were used to remove the sick from a 10-block area at Lima, Ohio, which was under water.

The Coast Guard, meanwhile, evacuated 25 persons stranded on the west channel of Rocky River near Cleveland, and authorities sent a distress call to a National Guard armory for amphibious tanks to rescue families in the Cleveland suburb of Eastlake. Ice chunks on the flooding Rocky River were two feet thick and as big as a room.

At Columbus, the worst flood in 23 years on the Scioto and Olentangy Rivers drove hundreds from their homes. Gov. Michael V. DiSalle alerted the National Guard and Highway Department to be ready for new emergencies.

In northwest Pennsylvania, Sharon Mayor Michael J. Dunn declared a state of emergency after the Shenango River poured into downtown stores. The Civil Defense and extra police were called out.

In southern Indiana, rains measuring up to 5.13 inches deep sent flood waters swirling over highways. School buses couldn't get through the floods in Jackson, Washington, Scott and Wayne counties, and a Decatur county teacher, Mrs. Anna Walke, 43, was rescued by boat after spending more than two hours in a car which had been swept into Salt Creek flood waters.

Chicago endured freezing rain and more snow in the wake of an overnight storm which dumped almost a foot of snow. More than 200 schools closed down in the Chicago area.

Hundreds of snowbound schools were closed across Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Iowa, Michigan, Kansas, Colorado and Oklahoma.

Sun Fells Scores at Rally

Mothers Demand Death to Avenge Their Sons."

Those who held their signs in the air at 2 p.m. when Castro was scheduled to appear, couldn't put them down until 6:45 p.m. when the rally finally broke up.

They couldn't because they were packed in shoulder-to-shoulder and hip-to-hip.

Castro, who may be the most public relations-conscious national leader today, goofed on this rally.

He told his people to be on hand at 2 p.m., but didn't show up until 3:30 p.m. and didn't begin speaking until after 4:30 p.m.

In the meantime, he gave them no music or other entertainment. Just a hot sun that boiled tempers which grew hotter as the wait grew longer.

Women fainted by the score and were fanned back into consciousness standing up — unable tofall.

Women who fainted were passed overhead to the edge of the crowd, then taken by stretcher to first aid tents.

At one point, a big pushing movement began a block away from the speaker's stand. It was like watching a good breeze blow waves through a field of wheat.

When the surge hit the edge of the crowd, people went down like ten-pins.

Castro made what was for him a short appearance. He spoke for only an hour and a half.

At one point in his speech, a shapely young Cuban girl in the revolutionary attire of a tight red sweater and black skirt was passed over the heads of the crowd, apparently in a dead faint. Her body moved from hand to hand and went directly beneath and in front of Castro as if she were some living offering to a pagan god.

Once past the rebel leader, however, she quickly came to life and began slapping at a rescuer, who was too free with his hands.

The rebel troops which handled Batista's army had more trouble with the Cubanos of Havana. The army buttressed its blockade around the speaker's platform with tanks and trucks, but when Castro appeared the people crawled over them and ended up directly under his nose.

Castro wasn't the only one who learned the Cubans were satisfied with the way the executions are going. Every U.S. and Latin American newsman was button-holed on the street and told why it was necessary to kill the men who themselves had killed and tortured.

The people's stories are too simple to have been made up for propaganda, and the pictures mothers show you of what happened to their sons couldn't have been faked.

There is no doubt in the mind of anyone who saw the demonstration Wednesday that the Cubans believe the quick execution of their war criminals is necessary and just.

Perhaps by U.S. standards, the justice comes too quickly.

The Cubans themselves believe a firing squad is too quick. But they believe they are more humane in killing quickly than in torturing their prisoners for hours and days as they and their families were tortured by Batista.

Wife of Herald Executive

Mrs. A. J. Gucker, Civic Worker, Dies

Mrs. Virginia Gucker, 47, wife of Arthur J. Gucker, business manager of The Miami Herald, died Tuesday. She had been in ill health for about two years.

A resident of Miami 17 years, she had been active in social and civic affairs. She was a member of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, Miami Woman's Club, the Bath Club and the Miami Shores Country Club.

She was a leader in the annual Easter Lily Balls, sponsored to aid the Crippled Children's Society.

Graduated from Southern Junior College, Chattanooga, Tenn., she was the widow of Kingsley A. Shaw when she moved to Miami from Gainesville.

She and Mr. Gucker were married in February, 1947.

After living in Miami Shores throughout their married life, they moved recently to a new home at 550 Melaleuca Ave., Bay Point.

Mrs. Gucker continued to be as active as possible until her death.

On Dec. 20, she insisted that the annual Christmas party for her young daughter, Mary Anne, must be held as usual. Friends did much of the work in arranging it, but she watched the festivities from a chair as 10-year-old Mary and 20 friends made the house bright with holiday gaiety.

And then she was able to observe Christmas at home with her family. — an important thing to her.

Survivors include two daughters, Mary Anne, at home, and Mrs. E. Bruce Capper, III, Dallas; one brother, Jesse Burts, Jr., Miami; her mother, Mrs. T. Finley Cato, Miami, and one grandson.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Friday in Van Orsdel Northside Mortuary, 3333 NE Second Ave., with private interment in Southern Memorial Park.

if this is not indeed respecting the will of the people."

Earlier, Castro had unleashed an attack on those who had criticized the actions of the revolutionary government but had remained silent about the evils of the Batista dictatorship:

"While the tyrant lived in this palace, who sold the interests of the country and granted the most onerous concessions to the foreigners, no one attacked him, no press campaign was carried out against him abroad, no congressional voices were raised to accused him."

Castro won another cheer from the mass of humanity before him when he asked if they approved of his recommendation of his brother, Raul, as second-in-command of the revolution to succeed him if he should be killed.

Virtually all normal activities ceased in Havana at 11 a.m. to allow the crowd to gather before the palace.

He was followed by Provisional President Manuel Urrutia, who said he would seek changes in laws on international asylum so "dictators and collaborators" could not take refuge in foreign embassies.

After Urrutia's brief talk, the huge crowds before the palace began dispersing.

National Summary

The vicious winter storm in the midwest spread its effects throughout the eastern half of the country.

The low center moving slowly northward through eastern Indiana was gaining force as warm moist air from the Gulf continued to stream into the pattern.

Heavy rains ahead of the system broke records with a band of thunderstorms from the southern Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico.

Tornadoes were reported in the northern half of Mississippi and Alabama and into central Kentucky.

One band of most violent weather was moving across Ohio, Tennessee and into eastern Alabama while the storms associated with the sharpest drop in temperatures were along the front that stretched from the low center to Cincinnati, Nashville, Florence, Ala., Mississippi and New Orleans.

In the northeast moderate to heavy rains on top of snows of nearly a foot have created the danger of flash floods in western New York and Pennsylvania during the period of the sharp warming ahead of the storm.

Temperatures climbed into the 70s during the morning into West Virginia, and into the mid 40s into up state New York.

BACHELOR: The only man who never learns what a woman really thinks of him.

Middle East Mostly Likes Us, Says Mott

By PETE WEITZEL
WPB Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — After four years overseas with the U.S. Foreign Service, James J. Mott Jr. still considers himself a "babe in the woods" diplomat.

Mott returned to this city in December to become city manager, a post he held on a temporary basis from 1952-54.

He joined the U.S. International Administration, also known as Point 4 and the ECA, worked in Italy, Ecuador and Iran.

MOTT

It was in Iran, as program officer for the ECA, that Mott spent the last year and a half.

The country is primarily known here for its rich oil resources and for having the longest border on Russia of any free nation.

It is one of the quieter sectors of the turbulent Middle East.

"There were occassional speeches denouncing the U.S., but mostly the people are on our side," he said.

"In all three countries I was in, there were some evidences of people who didn't like the U.S., but in all three, U.S. patience, cooperation and understanding was making progress against anti-American attitudes."

Mott said he felt patience and cooperation were key factors in improving relations with other countries.

"As individuals or as a nation," he declared, "we have got to work with them, gain their confidence. We can't jam anything down their throats."

Rather than trying to force aid on anyone, the U.S. should make its aid programs so successful in other nations that these countries will finally ask for help, he said.

Where there are faults in our foreign relations, Mott contended, it is mostly due to "our being new to the role of the greatest world power.

"But we're doing our best to learn our responsibilities and obligations."

Mott listed as responsibilities for Americans in foreign lands knowing the language and customs and learning to live with them in their communities.

He said it was the obligation of the U.S. not to try to dominate or be imperialistic.

Most of the anti-American sentiment in the Middle East is directed against the U.S. simply because it is a powerful outside nation with local ties, he said.

"I think the same kind of sentiment would be directed against Russia if they were in our position," Mott said.

He added there is always a danger that in any upheaval in the Middle East, communistic or anti-U.S. elements might step in.

Regardless of this danger, to take a "leave them alone" attitude would be wrong, he said. The U.S. must keep its foothold and work as best it can with whomever represents the existing governments, Mott claimed.

Giant Garage in Plan

Off-Street Parking Department Proposed

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — City officials and businessmen Wednesday night launched a "crash" program on cheap parking which might include a multi-deck parking garage and a new city department to handle offstreet parking.

The group will meet again at 7 p.m. Friday in the City Hall conference room. Meanwhile figures on land and construction costs will be compiled.

The giant parking structure would be financed by a revenue bond issue at an estimated $1,500,000 to $2,000,000.

The committee of city officials and merchants contended the main problem involved providing "cheap" parking at about 10 cents an hour.

Paul Tilly, chairman of the group, proposed the city create an off-street parking department like Miami to handle a city-wide offstreet parking program.

City Commissioner L. W. Kelloway urged the city immediately attempt to acquire a downtown site for a parking garage. He suggested the corner of First St. and Dixie. Six pieces of property are involved. City officials indicated they would condemn the property if necessary to obtain it.

Revenue from parking meters would be pledged in financing the project. It was brought out that the city now puts the bulk of its meter revenue — or about $70,000 to $80,000 yearly — in the general fund, contrary to a supreme court ruling.

Businessmen urged the city to plan future budgets to leave the meter revenue free for creating parking facilities.

Golfview Group Elects Guandolo

WEST PALM BEACH—Joel Y. Guandolo is the new president of the Golfview Heights property Owners and Managers Association.

Other officers are Adger L. Wright, first vice president; Clyde S. Price Jr., second vice president; Mrs. D. D. Morgan, recording secretary; Lucien Ramey, corresponding secretary; and Kennon Clough, treasurer.

Man Shoots Self in Car

WEST PALM BEACH — A 50-year-old Lake Park man shot himself in the head on a desolate country road near Juno Wednesday, the sheriff's office reported.

The body of James R. Howlett Jr., of 900 Federal Hwy., was discovered in his car on Monet Rd., a quarter mile east of A-1-A.

Deputies said the man shot himself with a .32 automatic pistol.

Prison Labor Plan Urged

'Tote That Gladiola, Lift That Hoe'

By ROSE ALLEGATO
WPB Bureau

Kelloway claimed Wednesday the city could save $50,000 a year through a prison labor system.

"Now the prisoners just sit in jail and get fat," he said.

He advocates constructing a stockade on city-owned property on 45th St. and putting prisoners to tilling the soil.

"People may laugh," he went on, "but the prisoners could farm the land and raise gladiolas and other flowers. We could put the plants around city hall."

Kelloway also favors locating the city's sign shop out at the proposed stockade, using prison labor for the painting.

He also wants prisoners to paint traffic lines and markers on the streets during the night hours instead of using city crews.

Kelloway made his proposal to the City Commission several weeks ago.

"They forget all about those things, though," Kelloway complained. "That's the whole trouble with the city manager form of government. You never get anything done."

Kelloway said the city "worked prisoners for years and years" and feels the system could be put back into operation without any legislation.

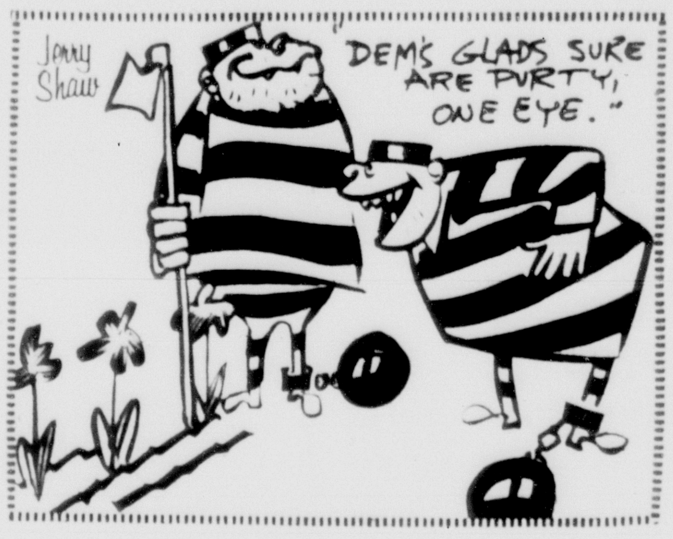
Besides saving the city dollars, the stockade plan, the commissioner said, could serve as a rehabilitation program for prisoners.

"We could reclaim men who are wine-burners," he said. "There are plenty of them around town. If we reclaimed one man, the stockade would be worth it."

Kelloway estimated it would cost the city $20,000 to $25,000 to construct the stockade.

The city houses prisoners in a renovated jail on Rosemary St.

"They get pretty good grub but the living conditions aren't too hot," Kelloway said.



Jerry Shaw
DEM'S GLADS SURE ARE PURTY, ONE EYE."

The condition of the city jail, which has come under attack in recent months, is another reason behind the stockade proposal. The jail now averages a population of 25.

"We've got no place to put any more," he said.

King Jury Hears 'Payoff' Testimony

BARTOW, Fla. — (AP) — Boone D. Tillett told a Criminal Court jury Wednesday of circumstances surrounding a $10,000 payoff he received in 1956 from former State Sen. Harry E. King.

King, a Winter Haven attorney, is being tried for the second time on charges of inducing two men to lie to a Grand Jury. His conviction in May, 1956, was reversed by the State Supreme Court.

Tillett, former State Representative from Lake Wales, testified he met with King on the night of Feb. 4, 1956, and received the money in exchange for "some pictures and affidavits and a letter I gave him," announcing Tillett's withdrawal from a State Senate race.

Tillett testified the Feb. 4 meeting was agreed on the previous night.

"I went . . . to Waverly and arrived at approximately 7:30 p.m.," the witness said. "I found Sen. King about 8 o'clock in his car beside a packing house."

He explained he and King had a mixup over where the meeting was to be.

Tillett said they later went to an orange grove, near Babson Park, in separate cars, then drove to a lonely deadend road in Tillett's car, where the payoff took place.

The witness said several pictures and affidavits were burned by the two men in a fire on the road.

He also testified he gave King a letter, addressed to the Associated Press, announcing his withdrawal from the race.

Tillett was the fifth state witness called before Judge Roy Amidon, recessed court until 9:30 a.m., today. Tillett will resume his testimony at that King's retrial started Tuesday. A six-man jury and one alternate were selected at 2:10 p.m., Wednesday.

Immediately after selection of the jury, Prosecutor Charles W. Nugent Jr., of West Palm Beach, filed summonses for former Sheriff Pat Gordon and former Deputy Sentell Monk to appear as witnesses.

The defense invoked a rule prohibiting witnesses from appearing in the courtroom before being called to testify.

Trial Slated Before Successor

Judge Faces Drunk Charge

By ZOLA SWARTHOUT
Herald Correspondent

STUART — A Martin County judge, suspended by Gov. LeRoy Collins on charges of drunkenness and incompetence, now faces trial before the judge named to succeed him.

The charge? Driving while intoxicated.

He was held in jail until 10 a.m. when he posted $100 bond.

The case came to light Wednesday when County Prosecutor T. T. Oughterson filed an information outlining the formal charges.

Lowery faces trial during the February term before County Judge Evans Crary Jr., named to the bench by Collins after the governor suspended Lowery Nov. 19.

Harris R. Lowery Jr.
. . . judge faces trial

Collins charged that Lowery was "drunk on the bench" at West Palm Beach Nov. 7.

"I cannot tolerate or condone nor do I have any feeling of lenience for a judge who so degraded himself and his court as to appear in a drunken condition on the bench," Collins said.

Earlier last year, Lowery faced charges in Martin County Court of being in possession of a car while under the influence, drunken driving and reckless driving.

Okeechobee County Prosecutor D. C. Durrance replaced Oughterson as prosecutor, dropped the first two counts, and Lowery pleaded guilty to reckless driving. He was fined $100.

The Senate, meeting in April, will review Lowery's suspension. If the suspension is upheld, Crary will serve the remainder of Lowery's term — through January 1961. If not, Lowery could be returned to the bench and get back pay for the suspension period.

He was elected in November 1956.

Air Base Annexing Talk Set

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — City and county fathers will sit around a conference table today in an attempt to settle differences about the proposed annexation of Palm Beach Air Force Base.

LYTAL

The city has made public its intention of annexing the huge air base tract as soon as the Air Force moves out this spring.

The county has announced itself unalterably opposed to any "premature" annexation, and Lake Lytal, chairman of county commissioners, even went so far as to propose a legislative bill which would check any city move toward the annexation without county approval.

The proposed bill, however, was shelved in favor of a parley today at 9 a.m.

The title to the airport land is now held by the federal government, but will revert to the county after the deactivation.

Commissioners say they do not want a third party—meaning the city—involved in negotiations for title to the land. The county will also attempt to acquire title to lands added to the airport by the federal government.

The county contends it will take "two to three" years before the airport tract is ready for development. Commissioners refer to city moves toward annexation as "premature."

The county wants to sell the land, using the proceeds to develop a jet age airport. Commissioners contend the city will interfere with county plans by an early annexation.

Suit Asks $175,000

WEST PALM BEACH — A Palm Beach County man Wednesday filed suit to recover $175,000 in damages for injuries he alleged he received in a May 25, 1958, accident on State Rd. 80.

John M. Diedrich brought the action against Leon J. Brodie, Steve Brodie, and Patricia Jane Barry Byrd.

Diedrich said he was a passenger in the Brodie car, which was involved in an accident with the Byrd vehicle.

He claims he suffered temporary and permanent head, body, and leg injuries in the accident. He asks $125,000 compensatory damages and $50,000 punitive damages.

'Biggest Ever'

Gala PB Fair Opens Friday

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — Palm Beach County's Golden Anniversary Fair will open Friday at 8 p.m. with the formal dedication of two new buildings on the 135-acre fairgrounds off Southern Blvd.

Then Miss County Fair will be crowned and the gala nine-day exhibition will be officially under way.

Fair officials boast the 50th annual fair will be the "biggest ever."

Exhibits representing every aspect of Palm Beach County life and economy will be housed under the four huge permanent buildings, including the two new ones, and 14 big tents.

Special events will get under way Saturday morning with a bike race for school youngsters. That afternoon and Sunday there will be a western style horse show.

Micro midget auto races will be held on the tenth of a mile speedway track Saturday evening. Main event will be a 25-lap finale.

Sunday afternoon, it will be a turn around the track for NASCAR-sanctioned stock cars. The race will bring five former national champions to the speedway for a 40-lap county fair championship.

Wednesday night, volunteer fire departments from throughout the county will compete in the second annual tournament. There will be ladder climbing contests, oil fire competition and a special firemen's brand of water polo.

In this event, teams armed with high pressure hoses will try to push an oil drum to either end of a tight wire.

Major exhibits will be housed in the agriculture, home, electrical and industrial buildings.

One of the highlights of the agriculture exhibition will be the National District Guernsey show. In another area, winning entries in the countywide amateur arts and crafts competition will be on display.

Integration Case to Be Heard

Plaintiffs in a Palm Beach County school discrimination lawsuit will seek a federal court order Jan. 30 to force the county school authorities to offer a general desegregation plan before the next school term.

Federal Judge Emett C. Choate set a hearing on that date on "all pending motions" in the case of William M Holland Jr., and others, versus the Board of Public Instruction of Palm Beach County.

The motion of the plaintiffs also asks Judge Choate to admit the plaintiff, Holland, to school on a nonsegregated basis immediately.

The plaintiff's motion is the only one pending at present. It cites a ruling by the 5th Circuit Court that "primary responsibility rests on the Palm Beach County Board of Public Instruction to make a prompt and reasonable start," and "proceed in good faith compliance."

Jaycee Award Won By PB Bar's Prior

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — Frederick C. (Ted) Prior, 34, president of the Palm Beach County Bar Association in 1958 and Marine veteran of the Korean War Wednesday received the Jaycee's distinguished service award.

The presentation was made at the annual award dinner of the Junior Chamber of Commerce at the George Washington Hotel.

He was graduated from Princeton with an AB in 1947 and received his law degree from the University of Florida in 1951. After service as a Marine captain he launched his law practice in this city.

The distinguished service award is based on leadership, achievement and service to the community. Judges were Criminal Court Judge Hugh MacMillan, Carl Price, John McDonald, John Perry Jr. and Rev. Ryan L. Wood.

Lee Off Board at 1st Federal

By PETE WEITZEL
WPB Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH—The proxy battle for control of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association ended in defeat for ousted President E. B. Lee Wednesday.

Lee also lost out in an effort to remain on the 11-man board of directors, of which he was a member, until Wednesday's balloting.

More than 200 persons jammed the ballroom of the Pennsylvania Hotel in the all day session.

Lee began the battle for proxies recently after the board replaced him as president of the association with H. Loy Anderson.

Savers and borrowers voted nearly three to one for Anderson and six of his backers to fill the seven expiring terms. The vote was 156,000 to 58,000.

Named were Riley Sims, John M. Crabtree, Stafford Beach, H. Elmo Robinson, George C. Slaton, Marshall B. Wood and Anderson.

"It was gratifying to me that we received more new proxies than Lee and his group," Anderson said after the balloting.

He said he had received 80,000 new proxies.

"Since the clean cut victory, we are now ready to get down to business and provide finer service," he added.

Lee, contacted at his home, conceded, "They beat us all right. But he added, "We accomplished a change in the board of directors that we set out to do."

He said that although none of the slate with which he was identified were elected he felt they now "have a pretty good board and we have accomplished something for First Federal." He said, "They are good businessmen and my friends."

Lee said, "They sent out proxies and we sent out proxies and they didn't beat us too bad on our proxies, but they did beat us on the proxies they get when a new account is opened and a signature card, which is used as a proxy, is signed."

He questioned the validity of the signature proxies but said he was uncertain whether he would make an issue of this in court.

In connection with the proxy battle, Lee recently filed suit in Circuit Court asking an accounting of money spent by the institution's proxy committee in the fight for control.

Named in the suit were six of the seven new directors and the four other members of the board.

Lee asked the court to require the monies spent be returned to the association.

Gov. LeRoy Collins Wednesday appointed Mrs. Margaret T. Scott of Everglades as Collier County Circuit Court Clerk. She succeeds the late Ed Scott.

Our Girls (It's the Makeup) Score With Mikoyan's Son

By Herald Wire Services

WHAT IMPRESSED Sergo Mikoyan most during his visit to the U.S. along with his father, Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan?

"The girls."

The 29-year-old Sergo gave that prompt answer to a Washington Star society reporter who chatted with him at a reception at the Soviet embassy.

"Ours (girls) are just as pretty as yours," he hastened to explain, "but you have the textiles and cosmetics."

The younger Mikoyan, a writer and editor for the Soviet magazine World Economics and International Relations, said:

But he added that he does not believe some news magazines reflect this—"especially U.S. News and World Report and Newsweek. Those are two I have noticed."

"I must say I like your newspapers," he went on. "They were all most friendly (in reporting on his father's visit) . . . They were fair."

Churchill's campaign got off to a false start when he started politicking in the wrong district.

He called a press conference at the Five Star Royal Bath Hotel at Bournemouth to announce his arrival to "test the political temperature." He said he hoped the local voters would call on him to discuss the state of things in Bournemouth East.

"They won't come here," a reporter told him.

"Why not?" asked Churchill.

"Well, this is Bournemouth West."

"Well," replied Churchill, "I must get a map and sally forth."

Ducktail Haircuts Really a Poor Risk

"I HAVE FOUND that defendants with ducktail haircuts make poor risks on probation," said General Sessions Court Judge Bruce Littlejohn in York, S. C., last December.

Nevertheless the judge imposed one-year suspended sentences on Bennie Kimbrell, 19, and Richard Broome, 18, of Rock Hill, who had pleaded guilty to housebreaking and grand larceny. But, as a term of their probation, Judge Littlejohn ordered haircuts for the pair.

Last week, York County police caught Kimbrell and Broome taking auto parts from a spare parts yard in Rock Hill. Wednesday, General Sessions Court Judge George T. Gregory Jr. revoked their probations and sent them to the State Penitentiary. Both were again sporting ducktail haircuts.

Teller Just Pressed Alarm

Leon Harent

. . . 83, still plugging

DETROIT —(AP)— Leon Harent, who says he has spent 69 years of his life in jails across the country, walked into the National Bank of Detroit's main branch.

He handed a teller a note written on a piece of paper bag. The note said: "This is a holdup. I want $1,000 in small bills."

The elderly man's possessions at the time of his arrest included a pair of broken eyeglasses, a pocket knife, a safety razor and three razor blades.

"Is this all you've got to show for 83 years?" police asked.

"I've made progress," Harent replied. "When I was young they didn't have safety razors."

It's Mental And Dental

DALLAS, Tex. — (UPI) — D. E. Jones is returning to his $50-a-week job in a Corsicana, Tex., service station, ending a hoax that began when he claimed to have found about two million dollars worth of gold bars in a berry patch.

Jones, 38-year-old father of eight children, told Secret Service men that the story was untrue, as a lie detector test had indicated earlier.

"The only gold I have is what's in my teeth," he said. "That cost $450 when the dentist put it in, but I've been losing teeth lately."

Jones could be fined $10,000 and-or given a five-year prison sentence for making a false statement to the government.

Natural Gas... will bring new industrial and domestic economy to Florida

This scene is becoming familiar throughout Florida. Perhaps you have seen it alongside a busy highway, in the outskirts of the city or even in your own backyard.

What you are seeing is part of the Houston Corporation's 1517 mile pipeline which will bring an abundant supply of natural gas to all of Florida.

The next time you see this scene, stop and take a second look, for in a few short weeks the men and equipment will be gone and in their wake will come vast new developments in Florida's industry and economy.

Harbert Construction Corporation is proud to have a part in it.
